TWO RUSSIAN SHIPS STRUCK BY FLOATING MINES

The Pabieda Came in Contact With Torpedo in Port Arthur Roadway and a Hole Was Knocked in Her Side, but She Kept Afloat.

TWO SHIPS LOST AND ONE CRIPPLED IN FIGHT

The Japanese Admiral Maintains That the Petropavlovsk and a Smaller Russian Vessel Were Sunk by Torpedoes Fired From His Fleet

WHAT IS LEFT OF THE SQUADRON IN PORT ARTHUR.

The Port Arthur squadron is now quite seriously crippled. When the war began the squadron consisted of eight battleships, seven cruisers and a flotilla of torpedo craft and destroyers.

It has been reduced, as the result of engagements with the Japanese and accident, to three battleships and probably four cruisers and a small flotilla of torpedo boats and destroyers. The battleships are:

	Guns.	Men.
Pervavlev	58	732
Sevastopol	50	700
Alexander II	64	816

The large cruisers are the Pallada, the Askold, the Novik and the Preminschek. In addition there are a few gunboats that add little strength to the squadron.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 14, 4:26 p. m.—It was officially announced today that the torpedo boat destroyer Bezstrashni was cut off from the rest of the Russian fleet at Port Arthur and sunk by the Japanese; that her crew was lost and that the battleship Pobieda accidentally struck a mine while maneuvering, but was able to return to the harbor without loss of life.

TOKIO, April 14, 5 p. m.—A brief report from Rear Admiral Uriu of Wednesday's fighting off Port Arthur reached the navy department this afternoon. It says Vice-Admiral Togo's fleet attacked Port Arthur in the morning and succeeded in sinking a battleship of the Petropavlovsk class and one torpedo boat destroyer. The Japanese sustained no losses. One Japanese was wounded.

A detailed report of the engagement is expected hourly. It is clear from this meager report that the Japanese claim an important victory.

CHEFOO, April 14, 11 a. m.—It has been learned from Japanese sources here that the attack on the Russian Port Arthur fleet of yesterday morning was planned and put into effect in the following manner:

At daylight the Japanese torpedo boats made a demonstration before the port and at the same time laid mines across the outer entrance to the harbor. They then retired and joined the main squadron. The squadron then advanced and as it drew near the Russian ships were seen coming out. The battleship Petropavlovsk struck one of the mines laid by the Japanese torpedo boats and was destroyed.

THE PORT ARTHUR FIGHT AS SEEN BY CORRESPONDENT AT SEA

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1904, by the Press Publishing Co.)

LONDON, April 14.—The correspondent of the Times sends a wireless message from the Times steamer Haimund dated off Port Arthur at 2 o'clock this afternoon. He says the Japanese first made a torpedo attack on Port Arthur early this morning and subsequently the fleet bombarded the ports.

Describing the approach of the Japanese fleet the correspondent says:

"At 4:30 o'clock this morning, in the dim light, amid rain squalls, we made out a squadron of warships in a line ahead steering a course similar to our own. As the light increased it proved to be a Japanese squadron of six battleships, followed by a first-class cruiser squadron of six ships, formed in line ahead, the third and fourth being the Kamga and Nishin, which were making their first appearance. The fleet, with the Mikasa leading, was shaping its course for Port Arthur; 40 miles distant from that port the battleships drew out at full speed, and the Kasuga and Nishin left the cruisers and joined the battleships, the cruisers remaining behind.

The interval between battleships and cruisers was maintained by the destroyer division and a dispatch boat. As we neared Port Arthur we found first-class cruisers and four second-class cruisers already here. This squadron had covered the torpedo attack made in the small hours of the morning. The battleships now hoisted their fighting flags and steamed in the formation, the Mikasa leading and the new ships bringing up the rear, to within six miles of Port Arthur's frowning promontory.

"At 10:20 a. m. the shore batteries opened, but the fire was only of a desultory nature, and it seemed as though Admiral Togo was paying a demonstration rather than a bombardment.

CUPID PAYS A UNIQUE ELECTION BET MADE BY GOVERNOR'S SECRETARY

Success of Gov. Davis in Arkansas Primaries Fulfilled Condition Imposed on Young Lawyer and Politician by Loyal Girl.

MR. CHAS JACOBSON.

MRS. CHAS JACOBSON.

Charles Jacobson, private secretary of Gov. Jeff Davis of Arkansas, and his bride, who was Miss Dillie Navra of Little Rock, whom he won when he won renomination for his chief at the Democratic primaries March 26, are in St. Louis, the guests for a few days of Mr. Jacobson's aunt, Mrs. Celia Lears of 721 North Spring avenue.

Mr. Jacobson and Miss Navra were married Tuesday evening at Little Rock, and reached St. Louis Wednesday. They will go East on their wedding tour in a few days, returning to St. Louis in time for the opening of the World's Fair, when Mr. Jacobson, as adjutant-general of the Arkansas militia and a member of Gov. Davis' staff, will take part in the ceremonies.

The wedding was practically the payment of an election bet, according to the friends of the bride and bridegroom. Mr. Jacobson has been Gov. Davis' private secretary for several years; prior to that time he was assistant attorney-general of Arkansas. He is a close personal and political friend of the governor, and when Davis sought the Democratic nomination for a third term as governor and began one of the most vigorous and exciting campaigns that the state has known since the days of reconstruction, Jacobson became his campaign manager.

The campaign was a long one, and before it ended Jacobson had fallen in love with Miss Navra, a daughter of I. Navra, a prominent business man of Little Rock. About the first of the year, and when the close of the campaign was three months distant, Mr. Jacobson proposed. Miss Navra hesitated. Then she told him to first win the campaign for Gov. Davis' renomination. Jacobson accepted the terms, and went to work with renewed vigor. His friends say that is why his work as campaign manager showed such increased personal interest, and why it led him even into personal encounters with opponents of Gov. Davis.

This was not generally known at the time, however. Davis was working for "vindication" against the charges of his political opponents; Jacobson was working for a bride.

In the county Democratic primaries Davis gained an overwhelming majority, carrying two-thirds of the counties. Jacobson, as the results came in, saw his own goal was won. The day after the result had been positively known, Jacobson called on Miss Navra. She agreed that he had won, and, without waiting for the state convention to ratify the nomination and make it formal, she set the wedding date.

The wedding was at the home of the bride's parents, at Fourteenth and Louisiana streets, Little Rock. Rabbi Wolsey performed the religious ceremony, and it was followed by a civil ceremony performed by Gov. Davis himself. Jacobson was attended at his wedding by his brother, Adolph Jacobson. The bride's attendant was Miss Eva Jacobson, a sister of the bridegroom.

8 MEN LIFTED BY EXPLOSION AT WATERWORKS

ONE ENGINE WAS WRECKED; LOSS WILL BE ABOUT $3000

Fragments of the Machinery Were Sent Crashing Through Windows, but No One Was Injured—Cause of the Accident Not Known.

With a roar and a reverberation that hurled eight men from their feet and filled them with a fear that all were to be buried in the wreck of the building, the air chamber of No. 6 high-service engine, one of the three at the Bissell Point pumping station of the city water department, located on May street in North St. Louis, exploded Thursday morning.

A huge triangular section of the air chamber, 15 feet long and weighing 1500 pounds, was torn out and thrown 20 feet, while smaller fragments were shot through the north and west windows with the force of cannon balls. One buried itself a foot under ground in the yard outside the building.

The excitement inside the building was intense. The engineers hurriedly shut off their engines, and the workmen, as soon as they became convinced that the building was intact, rushed to the third floor to see what had happened. They were surprised when they learned that no one was injured.

The wrecked air chamber was 10 feet in diameter and 45 feet high. It had cast-iron walls two inches thick, and was built in 1894. So far as is known, it was in good condition, and as the pressure on the wall at the time of the accident was less than 90 pounds, the cause of the explosion is a mystery.

This air chamber and the engine of which it is a part supply 18,000,000 gallons of water a day to the two standpipes and various water mains in the north end of the city.

The air chamber is destroyed, and the engine will be of no service until a new air chamber is installed.

The other two engines, however, were not damaged, and resumed pumping after about three hours' delay. No inconvenience was caused by the temporary shut-down, as the reserve supply in the standpipes was sufficient for the demands.

THIS BOUNCING GIRL PICKED UP UNHARMED AFTER 23-FOOT FALL

An upturned clothes basket, left carelessly in the entrance to the granitoid-paved basement of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bell, 3951 McRee avenue, Wednesday afternoon, saved little Melba Bell, 3 years old, from death.

It did its work so well that the child escaped from a 23-foot fall without a scratch or a bruise.

Melba was at a rear window on the second floor, overlooking the entrance to the basement, while her mother was busy about her household duties. The little girl was playing with a pencil. It rolled upon the window sill. She drew a chair, climbed into it and reached over to get the pencil.

She lost her balance, rolled across the window sill and fell. Her chubby body struck the bottom of the upturned clothes basket and bounced safely up and down two or three times. Her frightened mother, hurrying downstairs in answer to the child's scream as she herself falling, ran to the basement entrance, fearing to look into the space below. She found Melba sitting upright on the basket, looking puzzled, but not even dazed.

A physician was called at once and made a careful examination of the child. He could not find a scratch or a bruise.

"I fell out of the window but I didn't get hurted," said Melba Thursday morning. "My bad pencil rolled and then I rolled and I falled downstairs. But the good basket kept me from getting broked all to pieces."

JENKINS FAILS TO APPEAR AT O'BRIEN INQUEST

Coroner's Inquiry Into Death of Folk Adherent Delayed by Non-Appearance of "Snake" Kinney and "Kid" Sheridan.

OFFICERS CONTINUE SEARCH FOR TRIO OF WITNESSES

After Waiting Until Noon, Testimony Is Commenced on Death, Which Followed Blow Dealt in Political Quarrel in Kinney's Saloon.

The inquest over the body of Charles O'Brien, editor of the American Celt, and a Folk adherent, who died Tuesday night from a blow on the jaw after stating that he received his injuries in "Snake" Kinney's saloon on Ninth street, while denouncing Harry B. Hawes before Kinney, Thomas M. Jenkins and "Kid" Sheridan, was delayed three hours Thursday morning by the non-appearance of the three men, and finally proceeded without them.

In the three hours from 9 o'clock, when the inquest was to have begun, until noon, when it finally did begin, Officers Phillips and Daniels were seeking high and low for Jenkins, Kinney and Sheridan, who are under $5000 common law bonds to answer any charge that may be made against them in the O'Brien case.

Capt. Reynolds stated that he had sent officers to the homes of the men Wednesday night to subpena them for the inquest, but he did not know whether the officers had found them.

It was stated in the coroner's office that the men were not appearing because of their contention that they had not been properly subpenaed. The coroner could not confirm this, and the police did not know the nature of the technicality upon which the men claim the right to stay away, if they claim such right.

Coroner Funkhouser refused to delay the inquest more than three hours, and it began at noon without the men who are believed by the police to know something of the affair in which O'Brien received his injuries.

The jury chosen for the inquiry is made up of J. W. Merz, J. W. Cummings, D. P. McCarthy, John L. Kick, H. K. Barker and E. L. Selumb.

Brother Thought His Tooth Ached.

The first witness was Joseph F. O'Brien, the dead man's brother. He said his brother came home last Friday night complaining of soreness about his jaw. He did not say anything about having been struck, and the household paid little attention to his complaint, supposing he had an aching tooth.

Dr. R. B. H. Gradwohl, who conducted the autopsy, was the next witness. He said that O'Brien had evidently received a blow or jar upon the jaw, for the jaw had swollen and was bruised.

Dr. Gradwohl said that O'Brien had pleurisy and a hemorrhage in addition to the injury on the jaw, and that either might have caused death.

Dr. A. C. Bernays testified that Sunday afternoon O'Brien called at his residence with a badly swollen jaw. Dr. Bernays examined the injury, and advised O'Brien to go to the Lutheran Hospital. He asked O'Brien how he received the injury. "I got soaked," he replied.

Dr. Bernays did not see O'Brien again until Tuesday, when he called at the hospital. O'Brien was in a serious condition, and the physicians decided that there was no hope for him. He had either a fractured skull or a concussion of the brain. Dr. Bernays questioned him as to the manner in which he received his injuries, but could get nothing coherent from him.

Dr. Bernays denied that he had told anyone that O'Brien had said he was hurt in Kinney's saloon. He notified the police as soon as he decided that O'Brien could not recover.

Said Jenkins Hit Him Twice.

Dr. William Vogt, manager of the Lutheran Hospital; Miss Louise Kraus, superintendent, and Miss Mary Morris, a nurse, told of O'Brien's stay at the hospital. He told them he was hurt April 9, but did not say how he received his injuries.

William C. Cochran told of an interview with O'Brien four hours before the injured man's death. He said O'Brien told him he had been in Kinney's saloon and got into a political argument with Kinney, Sheridan and Jenkins. He expressed a preference for Folk, and began to "roast" Hawes. Jenkins struck him twice, he said—once on the jaw and once on the mouth. The witness said he tried to get O'Brien to say when this had happened, but the patient seemed to be becoming delirious and answered indefinitely, "about three weeks ago."

John L. Cooper of 6226 Page boulevard, an attache of the Folk campaign headquarters, said O'Brien called at the headquarters Friday morning with a bruise on his jaw. Cooper, who was a personal friend of O'Brien, asked him how he received the injury. "I was over at 'Snake' Kinney's saloon last night," he said, "and Tom Jenkins struck me. If it hadn't been for Kinney, who stopped the fight, Jenkins would have killed me."

O'Brien called on the witness again Saturday, when his jaw was badly swollen. Cooper advised him to attend to the injury, and loaned him $1 with which to purchase medicine.

Detective John W. Cordell testified that he called at the Lutheran Hospital Tuesday morning and that O'Brien told him that while he was in Kinney's saloon he was struck by either Sheridan or Jenkins. O'Brien said he did not know which of the two, but was positive it was one or the other.

The inquest was then continued until 9 o'clock Friday morning in order to allow the police to secure the attendance of Sheridan, Jenkins and Kinney.

A warrant was issued at Clayton Thursday for the arrest of Thomas Armentrout of Kirkwood, following sworn statements made by six negroes arrested on a charge of burglarizing the Slinkard Grocery Co. and Luyties Grocery Co. stores in Kirkwood Saturday night.

The negroes all claim they were employed by Armentrout to commit the robberies and that they were paid for delivering the goods to him.

JUMPING ROPE KILLS GIRL.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 14.—Jumping the rope caused the death of Mary Cuff, the 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Cuff of Bayonne, N. J. Mary had always been an enthusiastic rope jumper. She spent her time at recess in jumping the rope and took great pride in her ability to keep it up longer than most of her little companions. When she was not jumping the rope during school recesses she was jumping the rope in her yard at home.

She was taken ill yesterday because of over-indulgence in this sport. The day previous she had been jumping rope with other little girls a good part of the day. When a doctor was called in he found that his little patient's heart was affected and a few hours later she was put to bed and she became delirious. It was impossible to save her, and it was seen that the end was not far off.

All during her delirium until she passed away she lay on her bed counting the imaginary jumps she was making. She was counting when a priest arrived to the house to anoint her, and the last words she uttered before breath left her body were numbers which she imagined represented the jumps she was making.

REAL SNOWSTORM IN MID-APRIL

Biting Wind Accompanies Fall of Large Flakes in the Region of New York.

NEW YORK, April 14.—For the first time in many years New Yorkers today witnessed a real snowstorm in mid-April. At one period it assumed the proportions of a regular winter storm and the low temperature and biting wind which whirled the large flakes made it most uncomfortable for the thousands on their way to business in the city.

Although the fall of snow was rather heavy, the flakes melted as soon as they struck the ground.

NOW FOR SUMMER DAYS

Hopes of summer days are inserted in the weather prediction for today.

"Partly cloudy tonight and Friday; Showers Friday. Warmer. Variable winds becoming fresh, southerly," is the forecast as issued from the weather bureau.

The "warmer" means more when to this forecast is added that there are snow flurries in the upper Mississippi and Ohio valleys, the lake region and the Atlantic. Showers have fallen in Ark., Missouri and on the north California coast.

In all other sections the weather has been fair.

Rising temperatures are reported from the South and the Canadian border. North of the Ohio valley and east of the Missouri the temperature is at freezing or lower. A moderate fall in temperature was recorded in Nebraska and Iowa.

Thursday morning warrants were issued charging them with assault.

AGED BASEBALL FAN INJURED

Eugene Holly, Aged 66, Was Showing Boys How to Play, When Accident Happened.

Eugene Holly, 66 years old, who lives in Venice, Ill., is an enthusiast on baseball, and one of the thirty-third degree fans.

Wednesday evening he stopped to watch some small boys who were playing ball on a vacant lot at Broadway and Zepp street. He became so interested in the game that he got in among the boys to show them how the game was played in the good old times.

Loran Collins, 13 years old, of 1027 Bates street, was at the bat and Holly got behind him to show him how to face out the ball for a home run. The ball was pitched. Holly yelled "Hit it!"

Loran made a swipe, hit the ball and hoisted it clear across the field.

With the enthusiasm of youth he lit out for first base, throwing the bat behind him. The end of the bat struck the kind instructor in the eye.

After the doctors at the South Side Dispensary had taken a few stitches and applied lotions Mr. Holly went back to Venice, vowing that the youth of the present day were too strenuous for him.

ALLEGE ASSETS ARE WASTED

Two Stockholders of Dr. Ozias Paquin Immune Co. Ask Receiver Be Appointed.

Application for a receiver for the Dr. Ozias Paquin Immune Co., which conducts a sanitarium at 3121 Locust street, was filed in Judge O'Neill Ryan's division of the circuit court Thursday. Dr. Paquin is also named as a defendant. The court ordered the defendants to show cause April 19 why the application should not be granted.

The petition was filed by I. S. Strobhart, formerly business manager of the concern, and E. H. Strobhart, formerly house manager, each claiming to own 21 shares of stock in the company. They allege that the company owes $200 for its equipment, and that while it is doing a good business, a receiver is necessary to prevent the wasting of the assets. The charge is made that Dr. Paquin is diverting the company's funds to his own use.

BANK CASHIER, ONCE MESSENGER, IS DEAD

Richard Hospes, Officer of German Savings Institution, Died of Liver Trouble.

RICHARD HOSPES.

END CAME WEDNESDAY NIGHT

He Had Risen Steadily Through Successive Positions of Trust in Well-Known Institution.

Richard Hospes, who died Wednesday night at his home, 3001 Lafayette avenue, had grown up with the German Savings Institution at Fourth and Pine streets, having started there as a messenger boy fifty years ago.

In succession he steadily rose to the positions of clerk, bookkeeper, teller and cashier, having held the latter position since 1865.

Mr. Hospes numbered the leading financiers and business men of St. Louis among his friends, and two months ago, by a special effort, got up from a sick bed to act as pallbearer at the funeral of William J. Lemp.

Mr. Hospes' death is attributable partially to injuries he received in falling from his horse last June. A complication of liver trouble contributed to his death, after an illness of several months.

As cashier of the bank which had its beginning only two years before he began his career there at the bottom, he had endeared himself to all the employes of the institution. The bank will be draped in black in his memory.

Mr. Hospes was a native of Missouri, having been born 66 years ago on Christmas day at Augusta, St. Charles County. He was a son of Conrad and Lydia Schrader Hospes, both of German antecedents.

He came to St. Louis at an early age and attended the public schools here till he entered the German Savings Institution at the age of 16 years.

He was married in 1862 to Miss Johanna Bentzen of Dubuque, Io., who, with six daughters, survives him.

Mr. Hospes was a member of Unity Council, Legion of Honor. The accident which befel him last year was suffered while riding in Tower Grove Park. He was injured in the side in a fall from his horse and had been in poor health since.

Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been announced.

AS WIFE OR HOUSEKEEPER?

His Mother-in-Law's Advertisement, Which Brought Men to House, Named as Divorce Cause.

In his petition for a divorce, Jesse I. Hardy of Wellston alleges that life became unbearable because of the number of strange men who invaded his home in reply to an advertisement for a husband, which, he alleges, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Joseph Trumbauer, inserted in a newspaper.

Mrs. Trumbauer says she did nothing of the sort, but that she advertised for a position as housekeeper, and that two of the men who answered the advertisement had the effrontery to propose marriage.

Hardy alleges that Mrs. Trumbauer went to live in his home in 1894, and that her advertisements for a husband began in 1897.

Hardy's petition is in the form of an answer and cross bill to a suit for divorce bled by Mrs. Hardy.

Mrs. Hardy and her mother live at 1265 Delaware avenue, Wellston.

Mrs. Hardy gives the same version of the advertisement incident as her mother.

DOUBLE WEDDING AFTER ALL

Two Couples Who Went to Belleville and Edwardsville to Escape Publicity, Married Here.

Justice Robert J. Carroll married two couples Wednesday who had journeyed to Belleville and Edwardsville to have the knot tied, only to be refused on account of their youth. Their names were Albert Winkler and Jessie Mahin and William Reehten and Anna Von der Ahe. The men live at 3625 Van Buren street and the young women at 1014 North Thirteenth street and 2240 Mullanphy street, respectively.

Because both young women appeared to be too young, the license clerk at Belleville, to whom they first applied, refused to issue licenses to wed. Each of the young women said they were 21 years old.

"We are stenographers from St. Louis," said Miss Mahin to Deputy County Clerk Stookey at Belleville, "and we came to Belleville to get married because we did not care to have our employers know of the event."

The clerk was obdurate and the quartet decided to take the chances of publicity by marrying in St. Louis.

Union Men Win at Fair.

Thirty steamfitters employed at the refrigerating plant at the World's Fair threatened to strike if four nonunion men who had been engaged were not discharged. Thursday morning the matter was settled by the dismissal of the nonunion workers.

WARM MEMBERS THESE ESQUIMAUX

While Americans Shivered Four Greenlanders Were Ready to Drop From Heat.

At least four men working on the Pike at the World's Fair grounds never saw such hot weather at this season of the year as we are having in St. Louis today.

The four men are Esquimaux from Greenland, and this morning while 40 Americans of different nationalities were buttoning their coats closely about their muffled necks and shivering despite their exertions, the four Esquimaux, engaged with them in shoveling dirt, were working in their undershirt with perspiration streaming down their faces and almost ready to drop from the heat that oppressed them.

The Esquimaux are a part of the colony of 50 that will take part in the Esquimaux village exhibition. This morning they were given their first lesson in building a la the United States method.

They were put to work with a large gang of men leveling off the site of the village, handling scrapers and shoveling dirt. They went to work in their coats; in a few minutes they were in their shirt-sleeves; then off came their vests; and a few minutes later they took off their top shirts. Still they complained of the awful heat.

Their fellow workmen, wrapped in heavy coats and wearing gloves on benumbed hands, looked upon them and wondered.

JERSEY MAY NOT INSTRUCT DELEGATES

Sentiment in the Convention Seems to Be Turning in That Direction.

TRENTON, N. J., April 14.—Delegates to the Democratic state convention who will elect delegates to the national convention at St. Louis began arriving today. The Hearst men of Camden, headed by a brass band, were among the first to arrive, and the air was filled with rumors that they would bolt the convention.

Robert T. rBemmer, the leader of the Hearst men from Passaic, positively refused to have any connection with the bolt, and he was sustained by the Hearst men from his county and Sussex County. The talk of bolting, therefore, practically ceased. Former United States Senator Smith had a conference with Leader Davis of Hudson County on the question of instructing the delegates for Judge Parker of New York. The Hudson men wanted such instructions given. Mr. Smith stood out for an uninstructed delegation, and said that if there was to be any instructions at all he favored instructing for Grover Cleveland. Mr. Smith was sustained in this view by the majority of the state committee.

The convention will almost certainly send an uninstructed delegation to St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS TUNNEL FUMES KILLED HIM

Indiana Coroner Decides Railroad Man's Death Was Due to Inhalation of Smoke.

Inhalation of gases and fumes of the St. Louis tunnel are held by Coroner Tabor of Terre Haute, Ind., to be responsible for the death of Nicholas Dodson.

Dodson was a traveling auditor of the Vandalia Railroad, and April 2, 1904, was a passenger on a train which was detained in the tunnel an hour and 20 minutes.

The verdict of the inquest, held several days ago, but which was held open at the time, was returned Wednesday, and gives directly to cardiac congestion, "due to acute congestion of the lungs, caused by inhaling gas, smoke and foul air while a Vandalia train on which he was passenger was detained in the tunnel in St. Louis one hour and 20 minutes, April 2, 1904."

Interest was added to the investigation from the fact that Dodson held a $5000 accident policy, which stipulates that but one-ninth of the amount shall be paid in case of death from noxious gases.

No Securities Decision Today.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 14.—Contrary to the expectations which prevailed at the time, the United States circuit court adjourned yesterday afternoon, the court today did not convene in open session and no decision was announced on the motion of Messrs. Harriman and Pierce for leave to intervene in the final settlement of the Northern Securities Co.'s affairs. The decision will come in the due course of the court's business.

TALK IT OVER

With People You Know, With St. Louis People.

No evidence can be stronger than the direct testimony of people you know. The public expression of friends and neighbors is the proof of merit we offer. If you still remain a skeptic talk it over with the testator.

Mrs. J. L. Weber of 2607 Caroline street says: "I have no idea what caused my back to ache for four or five months, nor do I know why during the latter part of that time it became more severe, but I noticed that if I contracted the slightest cold the aching was increased and often, too often to be pleasant, I was scarcely able to get around to perform the ordinary household duties. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised I procured a box at the Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and took them according to directions. They stopped the aching across my loins and strengthened the lame back in a very short time. I am only too pleased to add my indorsation to others in St. Louis."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents per box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no substitute.

OUT OF CAR INTO A PIT.

Actress Falls Ten Feet and Is Extricated by Crew.

Susie Hazelton, who lives at 112 North Twelfth street, and who says she is an actress, fell from a Broadway car into an excavation 10 feet deep at Broadway and Quincy street at 11:20 o'clock Wednesday night.

Miss Quincy was transferring from one Broadway car to another, and when she stepped off the car in the dark she fell into a pit, which the Transit company had made in repairing the street.

Car men and passengers dragged her out of the hole and took her to a physician's office, from which she was later taken to her home, with a badly dislocated ankle and many bruises.

Kidney Disease Permanently Cured.

The case of Joseph Skerry illustrates the thoroughness with which Warner's Safe Cure cures kidney disease. He writes:

"I owe the life of my son to your wonderful 'Safe Cure,' the greatest medicine ever discovered. About 19 years ago one of my sons was stricken with kidney trouble. Three good doctors said they couldn't save him—it had gone too far. I was in despair. A friend urged me to try 'Safe Cure,' which had cured him some years before. The first few doses helped my boy and he was soon completely restored. The doctors made a careful examination and declared every trace of kidney trouble had disappeared.

"He is now married, with a family of beautiful, healthy children, and has never had a touch of kidney trouble from that day to this." Joseph Skerry, New Ross, Nova Scotia, Canada.

Warner's Safe Cure is the only kidney medicine that has stood the test of time. For over 30 years it has been carrying the blessings of health, strength and vigor to every part of the world. It cures when doctors and all other medicines fail.

SIDELIGHTS ON THE FAIR

By Rose Marion.

LULLABIES are the same the world over. I put the Ainu baby at the World's Fair grounds to sleep with "Papa's gone a-hunting to get a little rabbit skin to wrap up Baby Bunting in" yesterday afternoon.

She had been playing with my gloves and a big wooden comb and I didn't suspect that she was a bit sleepy.

But the words of the old cradle song were scarcely said before her little head dropped as flowers do when the twilight comes. The big comb fell to the floor and the dainty little hands let go my gloves. Her father and mother bowed their thanks and began to fix a bed for her on a nearby cot. And I carried her there and put her down, and she never said a word. She opened her round brown eyes just once, but I kept on with the song and she shut them and slept on.

The Ainu baby has a right to go to sleep as flowers do. Her name is Kinu, which means Chrysanthemum. She's only 2. Her hair is black and short and grows down on the side of her ears.

She wears Japanese clothes and queer plaid cloth shoes. When she grows to be a woman she will have no black tattoo marks about her mouth, as has her mother and the other Ainu women of the party. The Japanese government has forbidden that. The Ainus are the aborigines of Japan.

Kinu has a sister, Kim, aged 5. Kim means gold.

"OUR books have come. Would you like to see them?" asked Peter de Abrew, assistant commissioner from Ceylon, of me yesterday afternoon.

And, of course, I climbed to the second story of the interesting Ceylon building at once. I saw much pottery, many inlaid jewel boxes, pieces of statuary, but not a sign of a book.

"Here the yare," said Mr. de Abrew, pointing to what looked like a pile of decorated sticks with bright-colored strings wrapped about them.

And Iheld tight to my breath.

He picked up one of the "sticks" and unwrapped the string that bound it. One end of the string served as the binding of the book. The stick opened and there were leaves within it—palm leaves—three inches in width and eighteen inches long. On the palm leaves was writing, beautiful writing, but unintelligible to me.

"These books are written by men who sit cross-legged on the floor and write upon prepared palm leaves with a stylo. When the writing is done an assistant sprinkles black powder over the writing and it can never be erased," explained Mr. de Abrew.

The books that have been sent for exhibition at the Fair contain on an average from 100 to 500 pages. The particular one that lexamined was "Gihi Vinaya," a book treating upon the duties of householders. Other books in the collection are poetry, classics, astrology, medicine, and other subjects.

Some of the books, especially those upon astrology, are beautifully illustrated. The pictures are necessarily small-sized.

I could find no scratching out of words, no blots, but I wondered if the styla man would be so careful if he owned a typewriter.

CLEANING COMPANY GETS COVETED FAIR CONCESSION.

Three companies are out for it, and the three-cornered fight is waxing spirited. The result will be one authorized company in the work in opposition to two other unauthorized companies.

That is, the Exposition company will grant but a single concession for janitor work, and this will go to a consolidated company made up of what were formerly the Exhibitors' Cleaning Company and the World's Fair Exhibitors' and Concessionaires' Cleaning Co. This consolidated company, which has not yet been given a name, will pay the Exposition one-fourth of its gross receipts.

The other two companiese are the General Service Co., of which H. B. Hardt is manager, and the General Exhibit Representatives' Co., of which Theodore Thomas is manager. Both these companies number many exhibitors in their organizations, and they claim the right of these exhibitors to do their own janitor work and to have it looked after by the company with which they are associated and which enjoys from its members the power of attorney.

The janitor privileges are considered one of the best plums to fall during the Exposition period, embracing in many instances not only the task of keeping exhibits cleaned and presentable, but in many instances meaning a complete supervision of exhibits. This is particularly true in cases where caretakers have not been sent with exhibits.

JAPANESE FIRST TO INSTALL EXHIBITS.

The Japanese are at the head again. Their exhibit in the Varied Industries palace is the first to be completed. It consists of ceramics and objects of art, and the Japanese are very proud of their work.

They will celebrate the event at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning with speeches, and will receive the congratulations of World's Fair officers.

The celebration will be held at the exhibit and will be under the direction of N. Kausakl. Director of Exhibits Skiff, E. S. Hoch, Chief of the Department of Manufactures Hurburt and others will make speeches.

WORK ON PHILIPPINE MINING BUILDING.

Work was begun Thursday on the Mining building in the Philippine reservation by native workmen. The building will be 120 by 40 feet in dimensions and constructed of nipa and bamboo, and will contain exhibits of native methods of mining.

WELCOME FOR THE FRENCH COMMISSIONER.

A celebration of welcome was accorded to Commissioner-General Legrave of France at the French building at 1 o'clock Thursday by the French colony in St. Louis. When M. Legrave arrived at the building he was met by a large number of clerks, workmen and the various attaches of the commission, together with exhibitors, concessionaires and visiting Frenchmen, and responded to a speech of welcome.

A luncheon was served afterward, at which the success of the World's Fair and the health of its builders were drunk, and many congratulatory speeches made.

COINS WILL OPEN CHAIRS FOR WEARY AT WORLD'S FAIR.

The committee on concessions has concluded that the park benches, to be placed on the grounds, will not afford seats enough, and a concession will be awarded for the privilege of placing in the grounds what are known as "coin chairs." A coin chair is one which is opened by placing a coin in a slot. It closes as soon as vacated. The applicant for this concession is Mrs. Rosa Sonnensthein.

Rhode Island Commissioners Coming.

The Rhode Island Fair commission will reach St. Louis April 27 and stop at the Planters' Hotel. The party will include Robert D. Treat, president of the commission, and his wife; Dr. William S. Gleason, vice-president, and wife; Edward P. Penniman, treasurer, with his wife and son; George E. Ball, secretary; George N. Kingsbury, executive commissioner, and Commissioners Frank L. Burglong and Patrick P. Hayes, with their wives.

GASHED FIST TO GAIN $10.

A burglar who wanted only small change, effected entrance into the Pockels Drug, Paint and Glass Co.'s building, at Gravois and Jefferson avenue, Wednesday night by climbing to the second story and smashing a window with his fist.

He left a trail of blood through the glass department on the second floor, down stairs and through the paint department till he reached the cash register in the drug store. About $10 in nickels and dimes was taken. The safe was not disturbed.

NEW PLAN TO END STRIKES OF MINERS

Special Agents to Be Stationed Throughout Illinois, Who Will Try Suasion.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 14.—Miners and operators in Springfield as well as throughout the whole state are interested in a plan just inaugurated by the Illinois Coal Operators' Association for the purpose of bringing about an end to mining disputes.

This new departure, while novel, is said to be eminently practical and will receive careful consideration and study wherever men are turning their attention to plans intended to preserve industrial peace and to insure industrial prosperity.

The executive board of the Coal Operators' Association has decided to employ three special agents, who are to be subject to the orders of the members of the association, through the commissioner, Herman Justi of Chicago. These agents will be stationed at different points in the state and their movements during nearly every hour of the day will be known to the main office of the commission in Chicago, so that a message may be sent at any time advising the special agents of trouble or prospective trouble at any point in the state.

In this manner the agents can be on the ground promptly and by their counsel and influence bring about a speedy and amicable settlement of all difficulties. The Illinois Coal Operators' Association asserts that it has clearly demonstrated that a great body of workmen can be kept at work pending adjustment of any dispute that may arise.

The purpose of this new departure is to bring about such an adjustment a little more quickly than has been possible in the past when the force at the command of the officers has been so limited. Two of these special agents already are in the field and the third will be at work within a few days.

PANTOMIME IN A COURT ROOM

Arguments by attorneys in the case of William H. Williams, charged with the killing of Michael T. Churchill in the latter's saloon, Twenty-third and Chestnut streets, May 30, 1903, were begun in Judge Taylor's division of the Circuit Court Thursday morning.

At a session of the court held Tuesday night Williams and his attorney gave an illustration of the manner in which Williams declares Churchill was killed, showing how a man reaching for a revolver in the hands of another might accidentally discharge the weapon.

Williams was formerly private secretary to Chief of Detectives Desmond, and at the time of Churchill's killing was manager of the Imperial dance hall, which Churchill owned.

BLOW AT COOK IN FOLK RESOLUTIONS

"No Member of State Committee Shall Be Appointed to Office of Profit or Patronage."

NO COMPROMISE WITH CRIME

"The Democratic party's state convention must take an advanced position against bribery, boodle and corruption in office, and the nominees must be men representing to the fullest extent that issue, and any other course is suicidal.

"A compromise with crime is no victory.

"Candidates who have escaped prosecution by the lapse of time will not do.

"The statute of limitations may close the door of the penitentiary, but will not wash away the stain of sin.

"No member of the state committee should be appointed to any office of profit or patronage."

The foregoing is the gist of the resolutions adopted by the Folk Democrats of Jasper County, who withdrew from the regular county convention Wednesday because of the alleged unfair rulings of the temporary chairman in behalf of the Reed interests.

From its wording it is believed that the resolution strikes at Secretary of State Sam B. Cook, among others, and is an indication that the friends of Mr. Folk will not give an encouragement to Cook's aspirations to succeed himself.

Cook, it will be recalled, advised R. B. Speed, coal oil inspector at St. Louis in 1899, to pay to Senator Lyons the sum of $800 to prevent the passage of a bill to reduce the coal oil inspector's fees.

Speed confessed the deal in all its details, but owing to the fact that the statute of limitations precludes prosecution of bribery after three years from the time the offense is committed, no action could be taken against either Lyons, Cook or Speed.

On the committee as at present constituted there are at least a dozen officeholders. In fact, the position of state committeeman has always been a stepping stone to official sinecures.

The contest in Jasper County emphasizes that despite the strong Folk following there will be a bitter fight for control of the convention.

The uncontested delegates organized the convention. This of course will give Folk an advantage provided the uncontested delegates exceed 356 or a majority of the entire number of 710 delegates.

Otherwise the state committee might attempt to organize the convention and this would prove disastrous to the Folk interests.

Mr. Reed's managers now assert they will carry not only Nodaway but also Cass County Saturday.

The Folk people laugh at this claim.

In a measure Saturday's results, which embrace the election of a total of 31 delegates, will have an important effect on the gubernatorial situation.

FOLK MEN LEAVE JASPER CONVENTION

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JOPLIN, Mo., April 14.—Angered by the refusal of Temporary Chairman Frank Yale to hear their protests against the majority report of the credentials committee throwing out all contests save those made by Reed, the Folk delegates to the Jasper County Democratic convention left it late yesterday afternoon and held a meeting of their own.

As a result, contesting delegations will be sent to the nominating convention at Jefferson City.

The report of the credentials committee came after two hours of wrangling. A majority report signed by ten members was presented by Reed men, seating no contesting delegation excepting two from Carthage. Thomas Hackney and four others submitted the minority report, recommending the seating of the contesting Folk delegation from Webb City and Joplin. Mr. Hackney's speech was short but effective. Frank Forlow replied for the Reed men. The house was in an uproar. John W. McAntire of Joplin took the floor and stood for five minutes, endeavoring to get recognition from the chair; but Chairman Yale declared that he had heard enough and did not expect to let more than Hackney and Forlow talk.

The Reed men then made Mayor John C. Trigg permanent chairman and chose three sets of delegates, instructed as follows:

F. M. Cockrell for President, James A. Reed of Kansas City for governor, A. M. Woodson of St. Joseph for supreme judge, S. Cook for secretary of state, G. Orchard of Poplar Bluff for treasurer, N. J. Winter of Sullivan County for railroad commissioner, Thomas L. Rubey of La Plata for lieutenant-governor, and E. M. Salee for attorney-general, provided Crow does not ask for the nomination.

The Folk men chose D. E. McDowell as chairman and instructed their delegates for Cockrell for President of the United States, Joseph W. Folk of St. Louis for governor and M. E. Benton of Neosho for Congressman.

Rheumatism, more painful in this climate than any other affliction, cured by prescription No. 2851 by Elmer & Amend.

Beautiful Women Cured by To-ni-ta

AFTER DOCTORS AND MEDICINE FAILED TO BRING RELIEF.

Secret of Radiant Health and Good Looks Discovered in Dr. Lorentz's Wonderful Membrane Bitters.

MARVELOUS HEALING POWERS OF TO-NI-TA ACT LIKE MAGIC IN CURE OF OBSTINATE, DEEP-SEATED CATARRH, AND IN BUILDING UP RUN-DOWN, NERVOUS, OVERWORKED AND SICK MEN AND WOMEN.

The great number of cures effected by TO-NI-TA, DR. LORENTZ'S famous MEMBRANE BITTERS, proclaims it the most precious medicine and boon to the afflicted ever discovered.

TO-NI-TA is a scientific combination of the vital principles of the most powerful healing herbs known to medicine. It exerts a marvelous and immediate influence in the subjection and cure of the most obstinate cases of catarrh of the head, throat, lungs, stomach, bowels, kidneys and bladder, and female diseases in all forms.

The first symptoms of catarrh in the head or throat should be carefully noted. This is the danger warning of pneumonia, consumption, neuralgia, fevers, stomach and bowel troubles and of a breakdown of the health, and calls for the immediate use of TO-NI-TA.

Miss Marshall Had Quinsy Sore Throat Every Winter for Years, Until Cured by TO-NI-TA.

"I want to say a word about TO-NI-TA, and what it did for my daughter. She had been troubled with quinsy sore throat every winter for a number of years, and nothing did her any good. So, this winter, when her throat began to get sore I thought she was going to suffer with it again. I saw an advertisement in the Norwich Record about TO-NI-TA, and how good it was, so I got her a sample bottle. It made her so much better that I bought a large bottle, and it cured her. It is the most wonderful cure in the world for sore throat." F. X. Marshall, 363 N. Main St., Norwich, Conn.

"Suffered Torments From Insomnia, Indigestion and General Weakness. TO-NI-TA Restored Me to Perfect Health."—Nellie Grant.

"For some time I suffered with insomnia, nervousness, deranged digestion and general weakness. I was unable to eat, and was constantly getting worse. I lost many a day's work, as I was too sick to attend to it.

"After medical skill failed, I was advised to use TO-NI-TA, and am happy to report that after using your precious medicine for two weeks my insomnia was banished, and I rapidly began to regain health and strength. I am now in full enjoyment of robust, vigorous health, never felt better in my life. I am so grateful to TO-NI-TA." Miss Nellie Grant, 1 Williams St., Haverhill, Mass.

FROM BRINK OF THE GRAVE. Miss Hazel Noonan, Victim for Years of Catarrh of Head and Stomach, Cured by TO-NI-TA.

"TO-NI-TA is the most wonderful medicine for Catarrh in the world. For several years I suffered terribly from catarrh of the head, and tried everything the doctors prescribed, but instead of getting better I grew so bad that the disease spread to my bronchial tubes and stomach, and my health was entirely undermined. A friend advised me to take TO-NI-TA. The first few doses produced a decided improvement, and within a month I was completely cured. My sleep and appetite have been restored, and I can eat anything and enjoy it." Hazel Noonan, Lynn, Mass.

Every TO-NI-TA testimonial is genuine and the original letters may be seen at any time at our office. We have thousands of them. Write fully and in confidence, as no letters are published without the writer's consent, and all letters will be returned to you if preferred.

TO-NI-TA contains no cocaine or other dangerous drug or pernicious stimulant so generally found in so-called catarrh and asthma remedies, which do the sufferer more harm than good.

It matters not how run down, nervous, thin, weak and sick you may be, TO-NI-TA will build you up and make you strong and healthy again.

A few doses will convince you of the wonderful healing and invigorating powers of this great medicine. At all druggists, or direct, $1 a bottle.

BEWARE OF SUBSTITUTES.

Our attention has been called to a few cases where unreliable dealers have tried to sell some cheap, injurious substitute for "just as good as" TO-NI-TA. Ask for TO-NI-TA and insist on the genuine. Treat Catarrh in Spring.

The spring is the time to treat catarrh. Cold, wet, winter weather often retards a cure for catarrh. If a course of Peruna is taken during the early spring months the cure will be prompt and permanent. There can be no failures if Peruna is taken intelligently during the favorable weather of spring.

As a systemic catarrh remedy Peruna eradicates catarrh from the system wherever it may be located. It cures catarrh of the stomach or bowels with the same certainty as catarrh of the head.

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

A Famous Shop in the Carrollton Hotel, Baltimore, Maryland.

The barber shop in the Carrollton Hotel, Baltimore, sterilizes everything it uses in the shop. The sterilizing is done by heat. The towels, the razors, the strops, the soap, the combs and brushes are all sterilized before being used on a customer. Where there is no sterilization, have the barber use Newbro's Herpicide. TOO FAST FIRING ON THE MISSOURI COST 29 LIVES

"Blow-Back" From One Charge Ignited Its Successor and Fire Fell From Open Breach Upon 2000 Pounds of Powder in Hold.

TWO OF THE FIVE WOUNDED ARE REPORTED TO BE DYING

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PENSACOLA, Fla., April 14.—Rivalry and ambition brought about the horrible accident on the United States battleship Missouri, announced in the late editions of Wednesday's Post-Dispatch, and in which 29 lives were lost.

That they were in behalf of the nation's glory mitigates, even if it does not condone, the possible carelessness that may have permitted the slaughter.

The monster ship was on the verge of being blown to pieces.

The Missouri—new, stiff and green—was competing with the well-seasoned crews and smooth-worn Texas and Brooklyn for target honors.

The prizes offered for best scores and fastest firing and the glory accruing to the winning ship made every officer and man eager to prove his alertness and smartness at the guns. To this spirit the accident, which resulted in so terrible a loss of life, is attributed by naval officers ashore.

The explosion of almost a ton of smokeless powder killed five officers and 24 men. Two of the wounded cannot recover.

All of the officers killed belonged to the Missouri except Lieut. Weichert, who was attached to the Cleveland and was on the Missouri as an umpire.

The Missouri, commanded by Capt. W. O. Cowles, brother-in-law of President Roosevelt, had been at work two days at target practice 19 miles from this port, in the Gulf of Mexico. She was to have completed this work in two days more, and was under orders then to proceed to New York to be docked, to prepare for a cruise to Europe.

TWO VERSIONS OF ACCIDENT.

There are two accounts of how the accident happened. These are based on theories, as all the men who were in a position to tell are dead.

Lieut. Hammer's explanation seems to be the accepted one. In substance it is that one "string" had been fired from the 12-inch guns in the after turret and three shots of the second "string" had been fired when the first explosion occurred.

The left gun was being loaded and one section, or 180 pounds of powder, had been rammed home and the second of 180 pounds had cleared the hoisting car when gases from the previous shot ignited the powder.

This charge exploded and a portion of it dropped into the handling room 30 feet below, where four charges were ready to be hoisted, exploding them.

The officers describe the cause of the explosion as a "blow-back," or, in other words, the wind blowing from off shore, blew a portion of the flame from the muzzle back into the breech, where the charge was being rammed home.

This ignited the charge. This, the officers say, was guarded against with all possible precaution. For several days no firing was done on account of the wrong direction of the wind.

The breech of the gun was damaged, but otherwise the piece was not injured to any extent.

IT WASN'T A "HANG-FIRE."

Before the facts had been told, some of the officers ashore had ascribed the explosion to a "hang fire." This is where the charge fails to go off when the lanyard has been pulled. The rule is to keep the breech closed till it is certain that the load has not taken fire. It was supposed that the breech had been opened and that the powder already ignited blew out into the turret. Lieut. Hammer's explanation disposes of that theory.

The turret, at the moment of the disaster, was closed. The officers and men on the deck heard a dull, muffled sound, and saw flame leap for an instant from every portion of the turret.

It needed no word from one to another to tell all these what had occurred. The disaster in the turret of the Massachusetts off San Juan, a year ago, was fresh in their minds.

In an instant the second explosion of 1600 pounds of powder in the handling room took place. At the moment it was no man's duty to think of the victims. It was a question of saving the ship and the lives of all the survivors.

The immediate danger was a spread of the fire to the magazine, which was close to it, and this would mean the blowing up of the ship.

WRECKED QUARTER FLOODED.

"Fire" was sounded at once. Every man took his proper station, and in less than five seconds from the first explosion two streams of water were being poured into the wrecked handling room and into the magazine.

The fire from the handling room had so nearly reached the magazine that brass work outside the latter room was melted. In a short time both the handling room and the magazine were flooded with water and this danger was over.

Then Capt. Cowles called for volunteers to attempt the rescue of their shipmates. He led them gallantly. Smoke and the gases were everywhere. Officers and men with handkerchiefs over their faces charged into this danger. Every man volunteered.

Men, as they entered these places full of deadly gas, fell as if shot. The men behind dragged them into the air and plunged forward into their places.

Capt. Cowles snatched up a bluejacket in his arms and staggered up the companionway with him. This man, frightfully burned and stunned, had managed to crawl with two others out of the handling room and then had been overpowered by the powder gases.

In the turret, 29 men were found piled in a heap. Between the first and second explosion, the survivors in the turret had made an effort to escape.

CLOTHES BURNED FROM BODIES.

Lieut. Davidson, in charge of the crew at this gun, evidently had given some command to his men, for he lay on the top of the heap, having allowed the rest to pass him in a rush toward the door of the turret.

At that moment the uprush of flame through the hoist from the handling room burned their clothing from their bodies and killed all but one instantly.

The one alive was breathing when the rescuers reached him, but he died a moment after he reached the deck.

Three minutes after the explosion all the dead and wounded were laid out on the deck. The Texas and Brooklyn had already started their surgeons on the way to the Missouri.

There was work for all in attending to those of the rescuers who had been overcome, as well as the five wounded men found among the dead below.

Capt. Cowles communicated, in a brief dispatch by wireless telegraph, the first news of the disaster to Admiral Barker, on board the Kearsarge here. He said an explosion had killed ten men.

A later dispatch to the flagship said the victims were nearly three times the number given in the first dispatch. Admiral Barker, replying, ordered the Missouri to return "for a report and funerals."

When the Missouri steamed slowly into Pensacola harbor, the flags on all naval vessels were half masted and most of the merchantmen in port followed their example.

SECOND ACCIDENT IN THE MISSOURI'S BRIEF CAREER.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—The Missouri was put into commission Dec. 1, last. She is one of the finest ships in the navy, and Capt. Cowles, who had been assistant chief of the bureau of navigation, was given command of her.

During the maneuvers a few weeks ago the Missouri rammed the battleship Illinois and narrowly missed sinking her. The court of inquiry exonerated Capt. Cowles and Secretary Moody approved its recommendation that no further action be taken, though he previously had insisted on courts-martial for all officers on whom the slightest reflection was thrown by the court of inquiry.

The court that investigated the ramming of the Illinois reported that, if Capt. Cowles had obeyed the regulations and given the prescribed signals at the proper time, the accident could not have happened, but excused him on the ground that his ship and crew were green.

The fact that the crew was green is not thought to have had any bearing on yesterday's accident, as the officers at least, and probably the gun pointers were experienced men.

ONE ST. LOUISAN AMONG THE DEAD FROM THE EXPLOSION.

PENSACOLA, Fla., April 14.—The only St. Louisan among the dead on the Missouri is Frank T. Rowlands, an electrician of the second class. His next of kin is John Rowlands, his father, who lives at 2426 Spofford street, Chicago.

Lieut. William Russell White, whose mother lives at the Usona Hotel in St. Louis, was on the ship, but was not injured by the explosion.

In addition to Rowlands, the dead are: Lieut. W. C. Davidson, Lieut. E. A. Weichert, Lieutenant of Marines J. V. P. Gridley, Midshipmen W. T. Neumann and Thomas Ward, Jr., Coxswain J. Bloxopolgus, Boatswain Mate J. K. Peterson, Seamen W. J. Bogard, O. N. Sonder, E. R. H. Alison, Ordinary Seamen C. Rice, G. J. Killen, J. Gedris, J. F. Kennedy, J. P. Starr, J. C. Nunn, C. M. Franke, C. W. Meyer, R. C. Tobin and J. W. Cyle. Landsmen H. S. Cherbarths; B. J. Milligan and J. M. Roach, Gunners' Mate (second-class) A. Smith, Chief Gun Captain T. E. Braun, Private Marine W. L. Shipman, Apprentices (second-class) J. C. Hardy and P. R. Castler.

The two men who cannot live are J. T. J. Donnelly, ordinary seaman, and O. B. Moe, apprentice (second-class).

Lieut. Gridley was a son of the late Capt. Gridley, who commanded the flagship of Admiral Dewey's squadron when he sailed into Manila bay and fought the Spanish ships. He was a marine officer on the Missouri. He was appointed to the marine corps March 26, 1900, from Pennsylvania, his native state. A telegram was sent by the navy department to his mother at Erie, Pa., advising her of the death of her son.

Midshipman Thomas Ward, Jr., was a son of Gen. Thomas Ward, who recently retired from the active list in the adjutant-general's corps in the United States army. He was appointed to the naval academy May 28, 1899, from New York, in which state he was born. He completed a four years' course at the academy last year and was assigned in commission to serve his allotted two years at sea after graduation.

RECKLESS COMPETITION TO EXCEL IN FAST FIRING CAUSE OF ACCIDENT.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—The gun crew was trying for a record in competition for the trophy offered by the navy department for the most accurate and most rapid firing. It is believed by naval experts that the cause of the accident will be found in that fact.

It is thought that the charge came in contact with some unconsumed powder from the previous charge and was fired in that way. With the meager information at hand that is the only way in which the disaster can be explained.

Recently, the Alabama's crack gun crew in practice with dummy charges, allowed only 30 seconds to elapse between fires. In actual firing the shots were only 33 seconds apart.

The Wisconsin beat this record by firing 10 shots from her big guns in 5 minutes and 40 seconds.

When the record of the Alabama was submitted to one of the highest and most conservative officers in the navy, he remarked that he believed the danger line had been reached and that it would be wise to incorporate in the regulations a rule that five seconds must elapse after each shot before the opening of the breach and five seconds more before the first section of the charge was put in the gun.

He said it was the proper thing in war to fire as rapidly as possible but that, in

CLERK CLAIMS SECOND SALARY

Col. M. C. Wetmore Sued for Ten Years' Service as Private Secretary.

Col. Moses C. Wetmore was Wednesday sued for $11,693.75 salary by Hubert D. Barry, who alleges in his petition that he worked as private secretary for Col. Wetmore while drawing pay as bookkeeper for the Liggett & Myers and M. C. Wetmore tobacco companies, as stated in the late editions of Wednesday's Post-Dispatch.

The plaintiff resigned ten days ago, he states, and files claim for $100 a month from Aug. 1, 1901, to April 13, 1903, and from Jan. 1, 1900, to Jan. 1, 1902. During those periods, he says, he had no pay for acting as private secretary.

Will You Help a Sick Friend

Get My Book for Him Now.

Send me no money.
Only tell me which book to send.
You certainly know of some one who is sick—some sufferer who will be grateful for the help my book offers.

And that book tells of a way to help. Tells of a way so certain that I, as a physician, offer that help on trial. The book tells how for 30 years in hospitals and at bedsides I searched for a way to cure deep-seated and difficult diseases. It tells how I perfected my prescription—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. How by scientific experiment I traced out the causes that bring on chronic diseases.

I found invariably that where there was a weakness, the inside nerves were weak. Where there was a lack of vitality that the vital nerves lacked power. Where weak organs were found, I always found weak nerves. Not the nerves commonly thought of, but the vital organs' nerves, the inside—the invisible nerves.

This was a revelation. Then my real success began.

Then I combined ingredients that would strengthen, that would vitalize these nerves. That prescription I called a restorative. It is known the world over now as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. After that I did not fail to cure one case in each hundred. In the extremely difficult cases my failures for five years were one in each 40 treated. I found cancer incurable. Cancer is for surgery, not medicine.

Then how to get this prescription to sick ones everywhere was my thought. I must announce it in the public press. But, thought I, will they realize the truth of my discovery—the real power of Dr. Shoop's Restorative? Then a way came to me—like an inspiration. "I will offer it to the sick on trial. Then they will know I am sincere."

I wrote a reliable druggist in each city and village in America. They agreed to co-operate with me.

Now by any sick one

Dr. Shoop's Restorative.

Can be taken on trial. For a full month I will let you use it entirely at my risk.

Send no money. Just write me for the book you need. When I send it I will tell you of a druggist near by who will permit the month's trial. Use the Restorative a month. Then decide. If you say to the druggist, "It did not help me," that will relieve you of any expense whatever. He will bill the cost to me.

This is my way of clearing your mind of all doubts as to what Dr. Shoop's Restorative can do. No matter how prejudiced, you cannot dispute this absolute security I offer. You cannot resist an offer like this if you are at all sick.

If you have a weakness, write me. If you can't do things like you used to do them, tell me about it.

Write in confidence. As a physician I will tell you a way to help. Get my book now—today.

GIANTS VICTIMS OF NOSTALGIA

It Looks as Though It Had Been Used as a Shield, It Is So Scarred.

The Patagonian giants reached the World's Fair grounds Thursday morning.

The party consists of five men, two women and one child. It is in charge of Vicente Cane, a Peruvian who has lived among the Tehuelches, the tribe from which these giants were recruited.

The most striking member of the party is the King of the Tehuelches, whose name sounds something like Groom. He is a veritable giant, with a great, Ajaxian frame and a massive face.

The King and all four of the men of his tribe are over six feet tall. The two women are five feet and seven inches tall. They are much the largest people on the Fair grounds, and much the most primitive in appearance, for their clothes are blankets made from the skins of the guanaco, the camel-like creature which roams the plains of Patagonia in great herds, and which supplies the Indians with almost all their food and clothing.

King Groom and his people were given a fine reception, quite befitting the big savage's rank. They were met at the Union Station with a fine team and trap, and went to the Fair grounds in style.

They are copper-colored people, much like the Indians of the United States, and their faces are so big and their features so rugged that they look more like statuary than animate beings.

Groom has the face of a real king of his kind. It is so rugged and scarred that it might easily be taken for the shield which has caught the blows of his people's enemies for some hundreds of years.

None of the Tehuelches can speak anything but their own guttural tongue, which may be likened in sound to a steamboat whistle with consumption.

Inasmuch as the Peruvian who brought them cannot speak English, information on the party's trip from South America was rather a slim harvest when the giants appeared on the grounds.

The Tehuelches opened their eyes something like a foot when they saw the Fair buildings. They seemed inclined to run, but they stuck to their seats. They were the pictures of home-sickness.

They will build their native huts, or toldos, on the grounds. These are made of guanaco hides stretched over stick frames. Until they begin this work they will be quartered alongside the little hairy Ainus, who recently arrived from Japan.

MMES. MANNING, BOTH DISTINGUISHED, OFTEN CONFUSED

One Is President World's Fair Board of Lady Managers, the Other Is an Authoress, and Both Are Seen Much in Society.

MRS. COURTLAND C. MANNING.

Two Mrs. Mannings are being entertained by society in St. Louis, one Mrs. Daniel Manning, president of the Board of Lady Managers for the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, and Mrs. Courtland C. Manning, authoress and writer for magazines. When at receptions and social functions the two Mmes. Manning are often confused, and Mrs. Courtland C. Manning is congratulated, and asked if she does not get tired of handshaking, and is otherwise taken for the president of the ladies' board.

Both of these distinguished women are from New York. Mrs. Daniel Manning from Albany, and Mrs. Courtland C. Manning from Buffalo, where she has achieved the distinction of being one of the best known literary women of her state. Short stories are her specialty.

Mrs. Courtland Manning is an excellent German student, and her stories, translations from that language, are popular, and she has a charming personality, and makes many friends. She is a well known club woman, member of the board of directors of the Scribblers' Club, associate member of the Society of Artists and member of the Arts and Crafts committee of the Women's Union. She is also in touch with a fine club of brainy women in Germany, the Frauenbildung-Frauenstudium, located at Freiburg, Baden.

Mrs. Manning has come to St. Louis to live during the World's Fair.

Actor Hackett's Triumph: He Resists Temptation to Make Another Speech

The Hackett Smile in Front of the Curtain—the Only One of Its Kind.

James K. Hackett has quit speech-making and gone to acting over at the Grand Opera House.

The audience did its best Wednesday night to entice Mr. Hackett out and have him pass another criticism on his own performance, but the actor resisted the temptation and held his tongue.

Mr. Hackett is not doing a bad business. His Wednesday matinee was one of the best houses he has had, and he did very well Wednesday night. There is no doubt that the audience finds whimsical amusement in his play. There are times when laughter is general and spontaneous, and there is scarcely a moment when there is not a chuckle some place in the house.

Fact is, the man Broadhurst, who wrote the piece, has fun with everyone, not excepting Mr. Hackett. He satirizes everything, and there is no more delicious touch of satire in it than that which leads Mr. Hackett into the delusion that he is a comedian.

All of us bite more or less upon the baits which Broadhurst dangles in this whimsical romance, but it is Mr. Hackett who gulps down the biggest bait of them all. He is enjoying what one might call a smiling trance.

Naturally this tends to enhance the delights of "The Crown Prince."

The sword fighting in the play is exciting enough, heaven knows, but it is too short. How can they expect us to mark the finer points of fencing when they flash their blades about a bit and end it all before we get accustomed to following the flying steel. When James O'Neill was here in "The Adventures of Gerard," he had with him an expert fencer who had taught the art in the English army. We didn't know this at the time, and, in fact, never did learn it until a few days ago, when the gentleman died. The statement that he had a reputtaion for his skill with the foils suggested to me that perhaps the people do not know good fencing when they see it, for there was no enthusiasm with the exhibitions in "The Adventures of Gerard." It is because they make it too short. Mr. Hackett probably does some very skillful work of this sort in the third act of "The Crown Prince," but we are given little opportunity to take a good look at it. Couldn't he kill the whole company there for our edification?

Richar Mansfield's annual pilgrimage to St. Louis is going to be of exceptional interest this spring. He will follow Annie Russell at the Olympic, and will produce four plays. Two of these are new and have not been seen in St. Louis. They are "Ivan the Terrible" and "Old Heidelberg." The other two are "Beau Brummel" and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

Mr. Mansfield will open with "Ivan the Terrible" on Monday night, and he will repeat the Tolstoi play on Wednesday night. Tuesday and Thursday nights and Saturday afternoon he will play "Old Heidelberg." Friday night he will play "Beau Brummel" and Saturday night "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

Edna Bronson, the St. Louis girl, who early in the season made a personal success in "The Fisher Maiden" and who has been appearing in Alice Nielsen's role in "The Fortune Teller," has made such a pronounced hit that the Messrs. Aborn have contracted for Miss Bronson's services for the next five years.

It is reported from Pittsburg that all is not well with Edward Morgan and Darah Truax, who were at the Century last fall in "The Eternal City." It is said that Miss Truax has been winning great applause as Donna Roma and that Mr. Morgan, who has strained his hearing to catch similar plaudits for himself and has heard them not, recently forbade her to respond to curtain calls. So she did not come out at Pittsburg the other night and the audience suspected that something was wrong. They hissed everyone else off the stage and set up a clamor for Miss Truax, who finally came forth, much to the amusement and satisfaction of the people.

Sheridan Tupper, who was at the Olympic last November with William H. Crane, died very suddenly in New York this week, after having been ill five days with pneumonia. He played the part of Zeke Swinney in "David Harum," which Mr. Crane has revived. His last St. Louis appearance was in "The Spenders." His mother lives at Decatur, Ill.

Maude Adams' mother was here with Ethel Barrymore. She will be remembered as the mother in "Cousin Kate."

The concert to be given at the Odeon next Tuesday night under the auspices of the Civic Improvement League for the benefit of the open-air playgrounds, is developing into a society event. Nearly all of the 30 available boxes were disposed of on direct application before the opening of the ticket sale, and the committee at its headquarters in the Merchants' National Bank building is receiving numerous applications for seats in every mail. Aside from the objects of the enterprise, the concert offers many points of interest. Mrs. Louise A. Corley, who is to be the principal soloist, comes back from Europe after an extended stay abroad, and with a collection of songs that cannot fail to please. Mr. Alfred G. Robyn, her accompanist, needs no commendation in advance for anything he may contribute to a carefully chosen program, and the same is true in equal measure of the solos to be performed by Mrs. Lulu Kunkel-Burg, whose violin recitals have for several seasons remained a feature.

The program subjoined in fact offers its own commentary. It is replete with novelties by composers whose reputation is secure. In detail the offering is:

Sonata Op. 8 ..... Grieg
Mrs. Lulu Kunkel-Burg.

Von Ewiger Liebe ..... Brahms
Widmung ..... Schumann
Fruehlingsnacht ..... Schumann
Auch kleine Dinge ..... Hugo Wolf
Rastlose Liebe ..... Schubert
Aufenthalt ..... Schubert
Caecilia ..... Strauss
Mme. Louise A. Corley.

Cavatina ..... D'Ambrosia
Canzonetta ..... D'Ambrosia
Mrs. Kunkel-Burg.

Le Marine ..... Lalo
L'Esclave ..... Lalo
Adieu de l'Hotesse Arabe ..... Bizet
A Toi ..... Widor
Je ne Veux pas Autre Chose ..... Widor
La Solitaire ..... Saint-Saens
Mme. Corley.

Adagio ..... Ries
Mrs. Kunkel Burg.

The Enchantress ..... Hatton
A Folk Song ..... Clutsam
There Was an Ancient King ..... Henschel
Donald Blair ..... Henschel
Blue Skies ..... Newton
Mme. Corley.
Mr. Alfred G. Robyn, Accompanist.

SOCIETY

One of the pretty weddings of April 6 was that of Miss Marguerite Steber and Mr. Arthur O. Fritsche, which took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Steber, at 8 o'clock, Rev. J. J. O'Brien of St. Margaret's Church officiating. Miss Steber looked very pretty in her bridal robe of ivory tinted Louisine. Her veil, which was held in place by a spray of lilies of the valley, fell in long, graceful folds to the hem of her train. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. She was attended by Miss Edna Relth as maid of honor and Misses Laura Schinke and Clara Blum, as bridemaids, who were gowned alike in dainty dresses of Paris lawn, made in 1830 style, with girdles of pale yellow satin. They carried bouquets of Marguerites, symbolic of the bride's name. The groom was attended by Dr. George Maune as best man and Arthur Mack and Henry Rehling as groomsmen. Promptly at the appointed hour the bridal party entered the parlor to the strains of Lohengrin. The house was beautifully decorated with palms and cut flowers. The color scheme, white and yellow, being carried throughout the entire house. The table was lighted by yellow shaded candelabras, and the Marguerito idea being carried out in the ices and bonbons. Mr. Fritsche presented his bride with a diamond and emerald ring. Mr. and Mrs. Fritsche will be at home to their friends on Mondays after May 1 at 3700 Hartford street.

Last Saturday evening Mrs. Thiel and her daughter, Miss Florence, entertained the Italian Literary Club and some distinguished Italian guests at a typical Italian dinner. The dining room was decorated with violets and each guest received a bunch of these flowers on his plate.

Several toasts were made in English and in Italian, vocal selections were given by Mme. Baldanza, Miss Florence Thiel and Miss Mayme Menestrina. Miss Anita Menestrina recited an Italian "La Pentita" of A. Fusinato. The guests were Marechal Ettore Giglin of the Italian navy, Chevalier Luigi Monza of Rome, Italy; Rev. Father C. Spigardi, Oreste Sarsi, Luciano Finzi, Alberto Mateuzzi, Rafael Santos del Hoyo of Mexico City and Senor Macedomio Romero of Bogota, Colombia; Mme. Baldanza, Mrs. Menestrina, Mrs. Mateuzzi, Miss Anna Meisels, Misses Annita and Mayme Menestrina, Miss Mannette Thiel.

The engament of Miss Emma Whitaker and Mr. Sam C. Davis was announced to their friends on Wednesday. Miss Whitaker is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwards WhitaKer of 13 Westmoreland place, and a popular and prominent girl in fashionable circles. Mr. Davis is the son of the late John Davis and Mrs. John Davis of Westmoreland place. No definite date has been decided on for the wedding.

The ladies interested in the South Side Day Nursery on Ninth and Julia streets issued cards for a large reception for the benefit of the nursery on Friday afternoon at the Union Club. The hours will be from 3 to 6 o'clock. In the receiving party are Mmes. C. M. Woodward, H. C. Stifel, Anthony Ittner, R. M. Hubbard, Albert Stracke, H. A. Williams, M. L. Holman J. M. Miller, Adam Flickenger, John A. Laird and William Burg.

Under the auspices of the Ten O'Clock Musicale two very interesting affairs will be given next week. The first is to be an organ recital, given by Miss Carolyn Allen at the West Presbyterian Church, Maple and Maryville avenues, next Wednesday afternoon, April 20, at 2:30 p. m. Miss Allen will be assisted by Mrs. E. E. Frohman, soprano; Mrs. J. G. Quarles, contralto, and Mr. Charles A. Cole, violinist. Church, Lindell and Newstead avenues. A cordial invitation is extended to all the musical clubs of the city to attend both of these affairs.

The Japanese tea, given for the benefit of the Baptist Hospital on Friday afternoon, at Miss Maybelle Fleming's home, 5276 Washington boulevard, will be one of the interesting affairs of the week. Twelve of the prettiest West End girls, gowned as Mme. Butterfly, will serve tea and dainty Japanese confections. The gowns worn by some of these Geisha girls are among Mme. Sugwa's handsomest toilets, which she has kindly loaned them for the occasion. Mrs. Bollman and Miss Ophelia Lang will contribute musical selections in the afternoon, and Mr. Camille Becker, tenor, will sing in the evening. The hours are from 3 to 10 o'clock.

ELKINS FOR VICE-PRESIDENT.

Decided Boom Has Developed for the Senator in West Viriginia.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 14.—The Republican state convention to select four delegates and four alternates-at-large to the Chicago convention met here today. There are sharp contests over everything except the indorsement of Roosevelt as president and Senator Stephen B. Elkins for vice-president. The movement for Elkins for the vice-presidential nomination is a very enthusiastic one. All the delegates, those from the districts as well as those at large, go to Chicago instructed for Elkins, and there will be large delegations at Chicago from this state urging his nomination. It is stated that after this convention there will be Republicans from West Virginia attending Republican conventions in other states in the interest of Elkins. Gov. White and others are said to be working to get favorable consideration for Elkins in Ohio, which is the native state of both Senators Elkins and Fairbanks.

WEDS SIX TIMES IN NINE YEARS

Indiana Woman, Only 29, Has a Remarkable Record.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MARION, Ind., April 14.—Miss Lizzie McCarty of this place has the distinction of having been married six times in nine years.

The first husband was Jessie Hammer, whom she married when she was 20 years old at Kokomo. She was divorced from him three months afterward, and two months later she married him again, a second divorce following in less than four months.

Her next husband, Lemuel Moore, was sent to prison and she obtained a divorce from him. She moved to Tipton, and there married Levi Jack, from whom in less than a year she obtained a divorce. The trouble killed this husband, it is said.

Then the young woman married Ell Coats at Tipton and lived with him two years, when she was given a divorce on account of cruelty. She went to Marion and married Ed Hunt, from whom she obtained a divorce after six months. She has resumed her maiden name.

Lindell Paving in Sections.

Six gangs of 25 men each began work Thursday laying new granitoid gutter and curb on Lindell boulevard near King's highway, the work of tearing up the old pavement having been commenced Tuesday. Not more than three blocks will be impassable at any time, says Street Commissioner Varrelmann. The contractors believe the work, which extends east to Grand avenue, will be done in six weeks.

Park Guards to Wear Gray.

That Forest Park outside the World's Fair may not be completely outshone by Forest Park within, each of the park watchmen, who have heretofore been plain clothes men, is to be uniformed at once in a neat gray, with dark cloth trimmings, collar and cap to match, and will be known as a "park guard." The men get $50 each per month, and are to provide their own uniforms.

"OLD PETE," SAVER OF TWENTY LIVES, TO BE CUT ADRIFT

He and His Faithful Wife and Son Must Move Their Little Houseboat From Wiggins Ferry Landing, Where They Have Been Happy for Many Years.

PETER PRANDLEN.

After 33 years spent in peaceable possession of his little houseboat, Peter Prendleh, squatter, fisherman and the hero of 20 life-saving feats, now fears that a monster corporation may force him to cut adrift into the Mississippi and search for a new stake to which to tie his boat.

"Old Pete," as he is known to every riverman from Minneapolis to New Orleans, now lives in a neat little houseboat on the eastern bank of the Mississippi at the lower ferry landing. There he has been since 1870, and there he wants to live until he dies.

Coming from Germany 33 years ago, almost 30 years spent on the banks of the Rhine, led him to seek in this country a home beside the "Father of Waters." Not 20 yards from where his houseboat is now tied, he built several little shanties. The eastern bank of the river was then a mass of willows where now are hundreds of railroad tracks.

The young man led a lonely life in his shanty for almost five years. All that time he was longing for a companion to share with him the mingled joys and privations of his life. Finally he found such a companion.

When He Met Pretty Josephine Stippich.

Each morning the fisherman made the rounds of certain customers in St. Louis, selling fish. Among them was at a little hotel. One morning a little lassie took his fish from him at this hotel. After two or three visits he mustered courage to speak to the girl who had already inspired in him thoughts of love.

Each time their conversation became more lengthy, until finally the fisherman was neglecting his lines and traps on the river and the hotel maid was forgetting the stacks of dishes which must be cleaned.

Then came the day when he proposed. He was accepted. That day he returned to the river whistling a German love song. A few days later he was wedded to the little maid, Josephine Stippich.

The shanty would not do for the bride. She was taken to a pretty little houseboat, which the happy groom had secretly built. Together they have since lived happily. There was many joys for this couple, yet they also had their sorrows. Two daughters and a son were born, but one daughter died just as she was reaching womanhood. That was one of the sorrows, the greatest one. It will always be remembered by the couple, yet they talk only of their joys. Today they are much the same as they were thirty years ago, laughing children.

Before leaving Germany, Prendlen had won renown on the banks of the Rhine by rescuing from drowning two persons. One more life saved there and he would have been awarded the gold medal.

Twenty Times Has He Saved Lives.

Since taking up his life on the Mississippi, he has secured everlasting fame by his deeds of valor and reckless indifference to self-preservation in risking his life to save others. Twenty times has he battled with the swift, dark waters, carrying in one arm a helpless one, and with the other swimming for the shore. From death he has saved 20, and many more bodies has he brought up from the water that they might be buried by friends.

The most exciting of all his adventures in the water, "Old Pete" tells, was the rescue of a woman who jumped from the bridge fully 20 years ago. Prendlen remembers little about this woman except that she lived on Chouteau avenue in St. Louis, and that she was attired in a silk dress, much finer than anything he had ever before seen.

The woman had been sick for many weeks and was practically demented. She escaped from her nurse and made her way to the bridge, where she jumped from the middle span.

"Pete" was fishing a short distance from the bridge and did not see the woman jump. He was just in the act of landing a fish when he heard a shout from the bridge and turned in time to see the water splash high.

With scarcely a thought he landed his fish. Th eshouting on the bridge was continued and "Pete" turned again. This time, near the spot where he had first seen the splash, he saw a woman's arm and hand stretched above the water.

In quick realization of the woman's danger, "Pete's" skiff was at her side in but a moment. She was buoyed up by her heavy silk dress. "Pete" was alone in his boat and the woman was large.

What should he do? He could not lift her into the boat.

A man of hasty deeds as well as thoughts, he was soon out of his skiff and had one arm about the unconscious form.

Thrilling Rescue of Rich Woman.

It is a good swim to either bank for a man unincumbered, but it had no terrors for the river man, and soon he was fighting across the current with one arm, while the other supported the woman. He became tired before the Illinois shore was reached, but he did not stop.

After a few minutes, which seemed hours to both "Pete" and watchers on the bridge above, the shore was reached. Then, with the assistance of another, the riverman soon had the woman restored.

"Pete" then swam out to his abandoned boat and continued his fishing. The next day he received $35 from the woman's husband, first being called to their fine home to receive their thanks.

For over ten years "Pete" has been assisted in his lifesaving efforts by a son, Amael, now 20 years old. Almost since the boy can remember he has been his father's constant companion. Before he was 10 years of age he was the best swimmer on the river, and there was nothing known to the boys and men on the river which he would not dare. When only 7 years old he had the boat while his father rescued from a grave at the bottom of the river a man who had fallen from a ferryboat. From that day he has always been his father's helper and has assisted in all rescues made by the father.

"Pete" tells of the time many years ago when it was not uncommon for a fisherman to make $75 in one night with the nets. He deplores the fact that this can no longer be done. Then was a day when the "flotsam and jetsam" amounted to much, and the river man was able to get many a dollar from what was picked up from the river. Those days as well as the days of good fishing are past, sighs "Old Pete."

Lived for 33 Years on the River Bank.

During the lifetime of Samuel Cupples, president of the Wiggins' Ferry Co., "Pete" was a favorite with the company. With beaming face he talks of his relations with Cupples and thetime when his wealthy friend told him. "Just as long as there is a Wiggins Ferry Co., just that long shall you stay here if you wish."

A few days ago "Pete" received notice from the company that he must no longer tie his boat to a stake on the company's property.

Now "Pete" does not know what to do. "I can't leave here," he says; "where would I go? People from all over St. Louis come here to buy fish. They come on the ferry boats. If I'm not here the people won't come for there won't be any fish for them to buy. I don't want to go away frm here and I don't believe that they will make me go when they think it over. Why, man, I've been here 33 years. I can go up a hundred yards or down a hundred yards, but I can't leave this neighborhood."

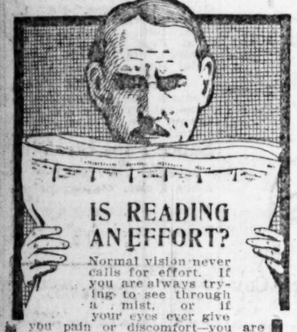

The Wiggins Ferry Co. wants the ground where the houseboats are now located to accommodate the increased business during the World's Fair and insists upon all squatters moving to other shores.

Upon the part of some of the squatters there is open denunciation of the company and open threats of bodily injury to employes of the company if attempt is made t move the boats, but not so with "Pete." He says:

and I believe they always will. When they don't, then it's time for me to talk."

Univesity's Two Debates.

Washington University has selected two debate teams, one composed of Eugene B. Patton, Alva C. Trueblood and Fred L. English, to meet William Jewell College at Liberty, Mo., April 27, on the question of the benefits of trade unionism to the country. The other team, composed of Fred Armstrong, Homer Davenport and Llewellyn Sale, will meet Nebraska University later in a discussion of the Monroe doctrine.

Radium on View

Regal Shoe Store Displaying the Tube of the Rare and Marvelous Metal.

The Regal Shoe Store at 618 Olive street is exhibiting a tube of Radium—imported from the Paris laboratory of Mme. Curie, the famous discoverer.

The tube is encased as elaborately as if it were a splendid diamond—and with reason, for at the present time Radium is estimated to be worth about $8,000,000.00 per pound.

Interesting radiographs taken by Radium and samples of ore—one a specimen of Bohemian Pitchblende, from which Radium comes, are also displayed.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13, 1904.

GENTLEMEN:

The material contained in the tubes furnished by the L. D. Gardner Co., for exhibition in your stores, has been submitted to me for examination.

I have made tests by the electrical method, and can state for your information that real Radium is present. Yours very truly,

(Signed)
GEO. B. PEGRAM, PH. D.,
Professor of Physics,
Columbia University.

(Signed) Prescott I. Hersey, Notary Public.

The Metrostyle Pianola

was made so every one could use the Piano . . .

SIMPLICITY and artistic efficiency were the two points aimed at in the Metrostyle's construction. The successful combination of these two qualities is the secret of the Metrostyle Pianola's present popularity.

When used, its perfect reproduction of the most skillful and artistic handplaying has commended it to the musicians and musical people, while its easy operation, well within every child's understanding, makes it practical to the music-loving but unskillful public.

Is it not strange that any one should delay investigating an instrument which makes the piano so useful and is capable of giving so much genuine enjoyment?

All are welcome, whether curiosity or an intention to purchase prompts the visit.

WONDERFUL ENGINE AT WORLD'S FAIR

Germany Will Send Locomotive That Will Run on Eighty-Mile Schedule.

BERLIN, April 14.—high- speed steam locomotive will be sent to the United States for exhibition at the St. Louis Exposition. The engine was built by Henschel & Sohn of Cassel. This engine is intended to conduct an express traffic, at a speed of 80 miles an hour, with a train of four or five bogie corridor coaches weighing 180 tons. The estimated horse power is 1400.

The locomotive and tender together have a total wheel base of about 68 feet, of which space the locomotive occupies rather more than one-half. The over-all length from the front buffer of the locomotive to the rear buffer of the tender is about 81½ feet.

The outward appearance of the locomotive and tender is peculiar. Both are completely encased in a cover of sheet steel, tapered at the front of the locomotive in order to reduce the resistance of the air, whereby it is hoped to effect an economy of 250 to 300 horsepower. The driver has a position in the wedge-shaped front of the locomotive. An auxiliary driver is also carried in the driver's cab, and takes his turn in stoking with the fireman.

In order to facilitate communication on the locomotive running boards are provided on each side inside the casing. At the rear of the tender a gangway has been placed, which permits through communication from end to end of the train between the engine driver and the rear guard.

The grate area of the locomotive is about 50 square feet and about 32 cwt. of coal of the boiler is 3000 square feet. The tender carries 4000 gallons of water and also seven tons of coal. The weight of the locomotive in service amounts to 79 tons, that of the tender about 57 tons and the weight on the wheels does not in any case exceed that allowed by the authorities.

ILLINOIS TO JOIN STATES FOR PARKER

NOT A CHICAGO WARD FOR HIM

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 14.—The fight for Illinois between the regular Democratic organization and the Hearst organization is now raging in Chicago and Cook County.

The regulars are split into factions, led respectively by Mayor Harison and former Mayor John P. Hopkins, chairman of the state committee. Both are anti-Hearst, but, for political purposes, desire to exercise influence with the delegation that goes to the state convention.

"We expect to carry the county against Hearst," said Chairman Hopkins, "and he will be beaten easily in the state convention. Illinois will be for Judge Parker when the time comes."

The city primaries will be held May 24. Mayor Harrison is said to be particularly anxious to be elected national committeeman from Illinois to succeed Thomas Gahan. Moreover, if Mr. Harrison fails to control the state organization, it is believed he will abdicate as a political leader.

Mayor Harrison repeatedly has espoused the presidential candidacy of Congressman Williams, and, recently, he occupied a seat beside the Carmi congressman in a meeting of country town Democrats. Justice C. G. Boggs, dean of the Illinois Supreme Court and a resident of Fairfield, declared his preference yesterday for Congressman Williams. The situation in the state is this:

County conventions held, naming delegates to state conventions, which elects delegates to St. Louis, 35.
Delegates elected, 252.
Delegates instructed for J. R. Williams, 90.
Contested delegates, 47.
Uninstructed, 50.
Total delegates to convention, 1341.

Within two weeks a decided check has been given the Hearst campaign. Maurice T. Maloney, former attorney-general, says of LaSalle County, which is second in population in the state:

"Hearst has no chance in LaSalle County."

BRYAN'S NEBRASKA FRIENDS FEAR HE WILL BE CAST OUT.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LINCOLN, Neb., April 14.—The Democratic state convention to select national delegates is nearly two months distant and not a single county convention has yet given a satisfactory line on the outcome.

The followers of W. J. Bryan are at once confident and boastful and suspicious and full of unrest. The opposition is hopeful and full of fight.

It is significant that some of the hitherto warmest supporters of Mr. Bryan are now lukewarm and unwilling to make predictions. Robert L. Herdman, one of the leaders of the opposition, says:

"I am not fighting Bryan. He will probably be elected a delegate to St. Louis, and we will not oppose his aspirations in that direction. We are, however, opposing a Hearst delegation or a delegation that favors a reindorsement of free silver, and, on that issue, we believe we will win."

Dr. A. H. Hipple says he regards himself as uncompromising a Democrat as any in Nebraska, Mr. Bryan included, but he refuses to be bound down to old and dead issues and is in favor of a new alignment and organization of the party.

Both Herdman and Hipple are for Judge Parker and are working for a delegation committed to him.

James Manahan, former candidate for Congress in the Lincoln district, is for a Hearst delegation, and is, of course, on the Bryan side of the fight. He believes the Bryan forces will dominate the state convention.

John W. Cutright thinks Bryan will control the state convention, but he is not "cock sure" of it.

The old-time Democrats, who have always opposed free silver, refuse to be quoted, but they have not changed their position, and will, without exception, be arrayed on the side of the reorganizers.

Whatever the state convention does, it is safe to say that the twelve district delegates will not be bound by its action.

JEFFERSON SIMPLICITY GONE

President's Democratic Uncle Says He's Glad and Never Believed Much in It Anyway.

NEW YORK, April 14.—Days of "Jeffersonian Simplicity" are over forever, according to Robert B. Roosevelt, uncle of the President.

Mr. Roosevelt, who is an active Democrat, expressed this belief in an address before the Thirteen Club at a celebration of Thomas Jefferson's birthday.

In arranging the banquet hall every precaution was taken to set at naught the superstition against thirteen. In the course of his speech, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"The days of Jeffersonian simplicity are over. I have a sympathy with them, but I am far from quarreling with the man who thinks and feels otherwise and sometimes I have had doubts about the sincerity of the simplicity of which we have heard so much. Was there not a little too much in riding up to the capitol, hitching the horse to a post, and stepping into the court room to take the oath of office?

"Would our citizens approve if the chief magistrate of this great and powerful nation were today to so disregard the ordinary proprieties and amenities as to follow these examples?

"The simplicity of the days when few had a dollar and no one cared whether he had it or not have passed on. Can anybody say this is altogether bad? Can we have any better test than the power to accumulate and better government than the wise self interest of wealth? I am not childlike enough to suppose that the world is going to pause on account of my prejudices or going to stop getting rich because we don't know how."

Noted Traveler to Lecture.

Edward A. Steiner, Ph. D., who arrives in the city today to lecture before the Men's Club of Compton Hill Congregational Church on Russia and other Slavic peoples, has lived with royalty and the peasantry, and speaks 20 languages and dialects. He has lectured in the leading cities of Europe in six languages. The lecture Friday evening will be illustrated with stereoptican views made from pictures taken with his own camera.

Lot for Extra Police Stable.

Title to 100 feet of ground on Newstead avenue, between West Pine boulevard and Laclede avenue, has been acquired at a cost of $5000 by the police department as the site for a stable in which horses of additional mounted officers during the World's Fair will be kept. The work of building the stable will begin at once.

XRAY SHOWS STOLEN JEWEL IN STOMACH

Iowa Detective Chief Locates Missing Diamond, but How to Get It Puzzles Him.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DES MOINES, April 14.—By means of the Xray, the chief of detectives at Davenport located a stolen diamond in the stomach of a negro.

The negro is under arrest and is willing to compromise the case by returning the stolen property.

He is anxious to make restitution as soon as the doctors can devise some means of producing it. The detectives and surgeons are co-operating on the case.

COMBINE AGAINST EXORBITANT RENTS

New York Labor Federation Heads Move Not to Pay Until Landlords Relent.

NEW YORK, April 14.—A hand will be taken in the anti-high rent agitation here by the Central Federated Union.

The labor men have adopted a resolution which will be submitted to the affiliated unions calling upon all wageworkers of the city to organize at once an anti-high rent union for the purpose of making a general demand throughout the city that the rent be lowered at least 25 per cent and to refuse to pay any rents to landlords until the demand is met.

KAISER MAY MEET PRESIDENT LOUBET

Heads of the Jealous Governments May Hold a Powwow on Visit to Italy.

PARIS, April 14.—The Berlin correspondent of the Journal says it is rumored in diplomatic circles there that a continuous exchange of telegrams is being carried on between the German and French foreign offices and the Quirinal with a view to arranging a meeting between Emperor William and President Loubet.

According to this proposed arrangement Emperor William, on board the German imperial yacht Hohenzollern, would not meet the French fleet returning from Italy.

It is said that the chief of the Emperor's civilian cabinet is reporting to him daily concerning the progress of the negotiations.

UNCLE SAM'S BOATS RUSH TO ST. LOUIS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GREENVILLE, Miss., April 14.—The torpedo boat destroyer Lawrence and the gunboat Nashville, now on their way to St. Louis for the Exposition, dropped anchor here last night, renewing their cruise northward today.

Though traveling only by day—fearing navigation at night—they are making record time. With the high water, they are going about 20 miles an hour during running time. They are making no exhibition stops.

Residents in the levee districts fear the terrific swells caused by the boats may break the embankments.

Homeopathic Alumni Banquet.

The forty-fifth annual commencement exercises of the Homeopathic Medical College of Missouri will be held in Pickwick Theater, Washington and Jefferson avenues, at 8 o'clock Thursday night. The alumni society of the college gave a banquet at the West End Hotel, Vandeventer avenue and West Belle place, Tuesday night. Dr. W. W. Gilbert, president of the society, was toastmaster, and the speakers were: Dr. Willis B. Young, Dr. H. L. Baker, Dr. James A. Campbell, Dr. William Davis Foster of Kansas City, Mo., Dr. W. E. Reilly, Dr. W. E. Jones.

SHAVELESSNESS OF EAST ST. LOUIS

Barbers Threaten to Strike Because of Contemplated World's Fair Changes in Hours.

The tribe of hairy Ainus is threatened with a rival in the bewhiskered masculine population of East St. Louis. On the very eve of the World's Fair opening the barber shops are to close. Such is the prospect succeeding a long and heated session of the East St. Louis boss and journeymen barbers in an effort to reach an agreement. The effort was fruitless and the journeymen threaten to strike May 1. In addition to an advance of prices to the 15-cent scale a guarantee of $11 a week from May 1 to June 1 and $12 from June 1, 1904, to April 30, 1905, and 60 per cent over $18.40 weekly earnings, the journeymen demand that shops be closed at 8 instead of 9 o'clock at night. Over this evening closing hour the employers and employes disagree, the former insisting that World's Fair business will make it necessary to keep open even later than 9 o'clock.

Mayor Calls Spring Cleaning.

April 21, 22 and 23 have been designated by Mayor Wells at the request of the Civic Improvement League for general cleaning days in anticipation of the opening of the World's Fair, as told in late editions of Wednesday's Post-Dispatch. Last year the response to the mayor's proclamation was general.

It's a big satisfaction to me that greatly as people like "FORCE" they can't eat too much of it.

CLEAN OUT Your System

If a frog gets in your spring, you clean out the spring. If your cistern gets foul, you clean it out. If your horse goes lame, you apply immediate relief. If your engine breaks down, you repair it at once. Delay in any of these cases is disastrous. Ninety-seven per cent of the people suffer from some form of stomach or bowel trouble. All sorts of complications result from the delay in treating these organs. Keep your bowels clean and regular; then your stomach will perform its natural functions, your complexion will be clear, your breath sweet, your digestion perfect and your whole system rejoice in a delightful state of health.

PAPER TRUST ON CONGRESS RACK

RETURNS EVASIVE REPLIES

WASHINGTON, April 14.—C. W. Lyman, vice-president of the International Paper Co., has entered a general and specific denial before the House committee on the judiciary of the charges against the "paper trust," recently made before the committee by Don C. Seitz and John Morris, representing the business management of the New York World and New York Times, respectively.

In denying that the International Paper Co. was over-capitalized, Mr. Lyman said the property of the company could not be duplicated for its present capitalization. This capitalization, he said, was $22,000,000 in preferred stock, $17,000,000 in common stock and about $13,000,000 in bonds. Six per cent dividends, he said, were paid on the preferred stock and 2 per cent was paid the first year on the common, but nothing since.

In answer to a question by Representative Powers of Massachusetts, he said the price of the stock was $67 a share and the common $12. Mr. Powers asked if the price of this stock indicated that there was dollar for dollar back of it and suggested that railroad shares paying 6 per cent sold for something like $135 a share.

"The price of your stock would indicate that the public regard the property it represents as worth about 25 per cent on the dollar," said Mr. Powers.

Mr. Lyman said he would make no attempt to account for the opinion of investors, but he knew the water power, the woodlands and the mills of the company could not be duplicated for the amount at which the company was capitalized.

Mr. Lilley, whose resolution for an investigation of the high price of paper is pending before the committee, asked Mr. Lyman if it was not a fact that the Glens Falls Paper Co., which was one of the individual concerns taken over by the "trust" was taken in on a capitalization of practically $8,000,000, when it represented an actual capitalization of only $300,000. Mr. Lyman said he was unable to give the figures, but if desired would submit them later.

As to the charge that the International Paper Co. sold its product in London at lower rates than in this country, Mr. Lyman said that his company did export paper, but that it made 3 per cent more on its export sales than on the sales in this country.

He was asked by Representative DeArmond if he would object to the removal of the tariff on wood pulp and paper. He said he would not advise such a move.

"Did not your company make representation to the ways and means committee at the time the Dingley tariff bill was under consideration that if the industry was protected would result in the formation of a combination which would cheapen the price of paper in this country?" asked Representative Powers.

"We did not anticipate the boom in business and the conditions which have increased the cost of producing paper," was the answer.

Mr. DeArmond inquired how the tariff could be a hindrance in any way when the product of American mills was sold in London in competition with Canadian paper at a greater profit to the American company than could be made on its product sold at home. Mr. Lyman said the Canadian situation was one which he preferred not to discuss for publication; that Canada had placed hindrances in the way of obtaining wood for pulp, all with a view to building up her paper manufacturing industry to supply the markets of the United States.

Mr. Lyman denied that there was a division of territory between his company and the combination in the West.

RANCHMAN WEDS AN ARTIST

Romantic Courtship Began With His Rescuing Her When She Broke Through Ice.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HELENA, Mont., April 14.—Miss Fannie Y. Cory, a well-known artist and illustrator of New York, married Fred W. Cooney, a Montana ranchman, in this city today.

The marriage is the culmination of a romance extending over a year and which has afforded abundant interest to members of local society and the eastern friends of Miss Cory.

The acquaintance of the couple began when Miss Cory, breaking through the ice while skating, was rescued by Mr. Cooney.

Miss Cory is a member of the Society of Illustrators and received honorable mention at the Pan-American Exposition in 1901. She has done much illustrating and for a time conducted an art school in West Twenty-third street, New York.

"OTHER INTERESTS" CAUSE TROUBLE TO COMMISSIONERS.

"Other interests" is a clause which threatens to raise up two rival organizations among commissioners to the World's Fair, and which yesterday caused George N. Kingsbury of Rhode Island to announce his resignation as treasurer of the new Louisiana Purchase Commissioner's Association, to which office he was elected, as he says, without his knowledge, last Tuesday.

The breach grows wider between the organization including all commissioners and that including only the executive commissioners from the states. The former, though organized to promote "social and other interests," is accused by the latter of attempting to dictate relations between the state commissions and the Exposition company. Things will come to a head Saturday.

HARDY NATIVE SOLDIERS TO JOIN PHILIPPINE EXHIBIT.

Maj. Johnston, who will be in charge of the Philippine scouts at the World's Fair, has received a telegram that the entire party of 500 will reach St. Louis Saturday. The scouts include Macabebes, Tagalogs and Illocanos, all representing the highest types of native Filipinos. They are nearly all men enlisted with the United States soon after the battle of Manila, and are now seasoned soldiers.

Three carloads of equipment for the scouts, which are supplied by the government, reached the World's Fair Tuesday. Each man will have four uniforms, white, drab, khaki and the regulation blue. Tents have also been provided by the government. They will have board floors and will be lighted by electricity.

The scouts will bring their own native chaplain. A native band of 40 musicians accompanies them, and will give concerts during the Exposition.

DOGS AND STORK DIVIDE INTEREST

While Igorrotes Await Banquet, Negritos Anticipate Arrival of New Type of American.

While the "little brown men" in the cuartel Filipino at the World's Fair are making merry over their first dog feast, in their midst may be born a future president of the United States. While the Negritos are watching anxiously for a visit of the stork to their quarters, the Igorrotes are whetting their appetites in anticipation of their initial American banquet canine. The new arrival in the Negritos' quarters will be the first American born Filipino, and the Negritos will enjoy their celebration with feasting and dancing in the usual manner as soon as the child is born, be it boy or girl.

The Igorrotes' dog barbecue is now only a week away, that being the date set for their removal from the cuartel across the line to the Philippine reservation in St. Louis County. Six 18-inch pots have been ordered, and Gov. Hunt says they shall have their dog.

A sympathetic southeast Missourian, Mortimer T. Jeffers of Dexter, has offered to supply the Igorrotes 200 fat Missouri dogs, declaring that he spent many weary, hungry months in the Philippines and there learned what it was to be deprived of Missouri cornbread and bacon, the food on which he was brought up. Every dog has his day and every man his meat, says Jeffers. To the Igorrote, then, his dog.

KILLED THE FATHER OF HIS SWEETHEART

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HILLSBORO, Ill., April 14.—Charged with the murder of his sweetheart's father, Edgar Copeland, a 19-year-old boy sits in the courtroom at Hillsboro, eagerly listening to the testimony that threatens his life. His father, bowed with age and grief, sits near.

Edgar Copeland was in love with Emma Green, a girl of 16. They were playmates and schoolmates. She loved young Copeland, but the father, Henry Green, objected to his attentions.

After continual contentions with her father, Emma Green wrote a note to her lover, asking him to take her to his aunt's where she often went. Copeland was glad to comply with her wishes. This was on May 24, 1903. The couple stole away, but Emma was soon missed by the family. Her enraged father found where she was, and, taking another daughter, Pearl, went to the place where Emma was. Copeland met them going to his aunt's as he was returning to his home in Washville.

He realized that his sweetheart would be taken from him and procured a revolver. Then he started back, telling his friends there would be trouble. He met his chum, Frank White, and persuaded him to take a ride. When White heard Copeland's plans he attempted to get off, but was forced to go along. Soon the young fellows met Henry Green returning with his daughters. They tried to drive by, but Copeland halted his horse and stopped Green. A controversy arose and Copeland dragged Green from the wagon, clubbed and shot him.

ADAMS' LIFE IN SING SING EASY

COMPLETES YEAR'S SERVICE

Has Been in Hospital All That Time, but None Knows What His Ailment Is.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 14.—Al Adams, the once all-powerful policy king, who accumulated a fortune variously estimated at from $2,000,000 to $5,000,000, by a defiance of the law, has served one year of the indeterminate sentence which was imposed upon him at the time of his conviction.

Under the law, 12 months was the minimum of his punishment, and that term of confinement being over he has asked the state parole board to release him.

The action of the state board will depend very largely on what District-Attorney Jerome recommends, and the pertinacity with which Mr. Jerome has fought every effort of Adams' powerful friends to free him leaves little doubt of what his attitude will be now.

Taken altogether Adams has been the most remarkable prisoner ever locked within the walls of Sing Sing. No man ever went to that institution with a poorer grace, and yet once there, with a full realization of the hopelessness of escape from a plight he had never believed could overcome a man of his millions, he became a model prisoner, and without once ceasing his efforts to get pardon he still behaved admirably, showing none of the weaknesses which characterized him when he was fairly dragged from the Tombs to make his trip up the river.

In Hospital, but for What?

From the first day of his confinement at Sing Sing Adams has been in the hospital. He has thus enjoyed a freedom which is allotted to few of the convicts. It has never been possible to quite determine the nature of Adams' ailment. Most of his pleas for pardon have been based on alleged illnesses, and the nature of these ranged from tubercular affections to kidney diseases. Even the prison physician has admitted from time to time that Adams was suffering from something, but the belief that his trouble was more of the mind than the body has acted largely in the turning back of his appeals for freedom.

As a matter of fact, Adams is today, as he was when first locked up, a man of tremendous physique and of tireless energy. He could hardly be called a healthy man, for he has suffered for years from a kidney trouble, but neither Mr. Jerome nor any one else familiar with the man believes that he is any worse than he was a year before the raid by Capt. Goddard's men which marked the beginning of his undoing.

In Sing Sing prison Adams has conducted the enormous business connected with his real estate holdings with the same care that he did when he was a free man. Men have occasionally been heard of speculating in Wall street or on the horse races, from the recesses of a prison, but never has a business of the magnitude of Adams' been conducted down to the smallest details from the walls of Sing Sing. If Adams had not been able to get in the prison hospital it would be impossible for him to do what he has done. But life in the Sing Sing hospital is not such a trying existence, and it is a positive luxury to one who has tasted the routine of life in thes hops and cells.

The Hospital Is a Commodious Place.

The Sing Sing hospital is a commodious place, and there the inmates have comfortable cots, arm chairs, plenty of reading and every facility for writing. They are not restricted in their correspondence, and can see their friends once a week. And once every week Al Adams has received his man of business in the Sing Sing hospital, has gone over the work of the past seven days, and laid out that for the coming week. He has every detail of his enormous business at his fingers' ends, and not a move is made by his employes without his approval.

Adams' rent roll is enormous. Most of his money is invested in apartment houses and private residences, and there are scores of people paying rent to Adams in this city who have no idea that their landlord is a convict. An illustration of the grasp on his affairs which Adams has is provided by the experience of one of his tenants on the upper west side who went six weeks ago to the real estate agent to whom he pays his rent and said that he would not renew his lease unless his landlard would repaper his dining room and parlor and put hardwood floors in both rooms.

The agent said he couldn't give an answer right away, but would let him know on the fololwing Tuesday how much he could do for him.

The tenant was curious about the delay. The agent then said to him in confidence:

"Your landlord is Mr. Adams, the policy man, who is in Sing Sing. I see him every Monday and report on the business. I will put your demands before him and he will give them consideration. I can do nothing without his permission."

Knows All About Condition of Houses.

The tenant called on the day named and the agent told him that Mr. Adams was willing to repaper the two rooms and to put a hardwood floor in the dining room, but he could not put a new floor in the parlr, because he refloored the room two years before with hardwood. The agent said Adams knows every detail of every room in every apartment and house that he owns, and that means a good many hundred rooms. In the hospital at Sing Sing Adams has assisted at the planning of several new apartment houses in this city now in course of construction for him.

Adams has always made a practice of carrying a good sum of money with him, even in prison. This is not strictly according to rules, and the violation made it impossible for Adams a short time ago to make any complaint at being robbed by a fellow convict. In the hospital with Adams was a pickpocket, who was nearing the end of a five-year term of imprisonment. Two months before his time was up he became ill and was sent to the hospital, where he had a cot next to that occupied by Adams. He discovered that Adams carried a bankroll and made up his mind to annex it at the first opportunity. The night before he was to leave prison he took the money from the pocket of Adams' striped suit while Adams was reading a book.

Adams discovered the loss shortly afterward. He suspected the right man and spoke to him about it, but the man denied all knowledge of the money and Adams didn't carry the complaint any further.

FROM THE SECTION TO THE PRESIDENCY

Remarkable Rise of Charles H. Markham, the Southern Pacific's New General Manager.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 14.—On Friday last Charles H. Markham became vice-president and general manager of the Southern Pacific Railroad, succeeding Julius Kruttschnitt, who became transportation director of all the Harriman railroad and steamship lines.

The railroad business offers wonderful opportunities for young men of ability, but the rise of Mr. Markham is without a parallel. He is 43 years old.

Twenty-three years ago he was the humblest figure on the long payroll of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad—a section hand at $1.15 a day. Step by step he has climbed the ladder of success, until today his salary is between $35,000 and $50,000 a year, and he stands in the front rank of the railroad men of the world. There has been no one to push him along. He has risen by his own ability.

Mr. Markham was born in Clarksville, Tenn., on May 23, 1861. Later his parents removed to Addison, N. Y., where he went to school and remained until 1880, when he drifted into the southwest in search of adventure, like many eastern lads who at that time thought success never strayed east of the Mississippi. The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe was being pushed through New Mexico in 1881, when the young fellow applied for work as a section laborer. He got it at $1.15 a day. He tramped ties, shoveled dirt, drove spikes and built roadbed the best he knew how. He worked so well that he got a job as trackman at Deming, N. M., afterward obtaining a place as a station hand for the Southern Pacific at that town.

From this position he was promoted to the proud post of station agent at Benson, Ariz. In this remote town in the sands he remained until 1890, when he was transferred to a more responsible, though chiller, post, at Reno, Nev. Reno was at that time an important freight and passenger point, owing to its connection with the Virginia City & Truckee Railroad, which runs back to the Comstock and other mine lodes. Large shipments of bullion were constantly confided to the care of the station agent and, altogether, it was the busiest and most responsible point between Ogden and Sacramento.

He was agent at Reno for about a year and then was appointed division freight agent, with headquarters at Fresno, Cal.

He remained there until 1897, when he was promoted to be general freight and passenger agent for the Oregon lines of the Southern Pacific. Here he remained until 1901, when he was made assistant freight traffic manager for the Pacific system of the Southern Pacific, with offices in San Francisco. Six months later he went to Houston, Tex., as vice-president of the Houston & Texas Central railroad.

There are a half dozen or more Harriman railroads in Texas, the principal ones of which are the Southern Pacific and the Houston & Texas Central. Some of these roads are parallel and naturally should be competitive. The railroad laws of Texas are restrictive regarding railroads. It was part of the work of Mr. Markham to bring these properties into close relations for the handling of freight and passenger business and yet not raise the wrath of the railroad commissioner. How well he has done this may be gathered from his appointment to practically supreme charge of the Southern Pacific system.

Loyal Americans Win Suit.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 14.—In the Sangamon Circuit Court today Judge Creighton stated he would dissolve a temporary injunction which he had issued on application of State Insurance Superintendent Vredenburgh, who asked for a receiver for the Loyal Americans. The court sustains the contention of the Loyal Americans that the insurance superintendent has no jurisdiction in the matter under the law of 1883. The order of Loyal Americans is a fraternal organization.

THREW GARTER AT STUDENTS

Mysterious Girl Startled Harvard Diners by Removing It and Tossing It at Them.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 14.—In the presence of a thousand startled Harvard students a girl, unattended, in the gallery of Memorial Hall, the big eating resort at Cambridge, after attracting the attention of everyone by her peculiar actions, unfastened her garter and threw it at the sea of faces upturned to her.

For a moment the boldness of her action stunned the onlookers and deprived them of breath. Then as they recovered their senses their silence gave way to a long, vast and window-shaking cheer, followed by a mad scramble for the doors. But in that brief second of deathlike stillness the "unknown" had waved her hand for the last time and disappeared.

When the students burst from the dining-hall, smile, bonnet and petticoats had disappeared. Only a cab driving rapidly down Quincy street was seen.

Who the girl was, no one knows. In appearance she was of medium height, smartly dressed, with openwork stockings, as all Harvard students who saw the act are ready to swear.

WANT FRANCHISE VETOED

Business Men of Springfield, Ill., Object to Grant to Traction Company.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 14.—Mayor Devereaux has been appealed to, by a committee representing the Springfield Business Men's Association, to veto the ordinance passed by the city council last Monday night granting the Illinois Central Traction Co. the right to operate its interurban cars through the city of Springfield.

The opposition of the business men is based on the fact that the ordinance, as passed, gives the interurban company a perpetual franchise in the city, places no restriction on the sort of freight that may be handled on the line and permits the hauling of all sorts of construction material through the street of the city.

The mayor has not stated definitely what action he will take on the measure, but the business men are hopeful that he will disapprove of it. The executive has until next Monday night's meeting of the council to attach his signature of approval or veto.

A PAPER SOLD EVERY DAY FOR EVERY HOME IN THE CITY.

Sleep well—Forest Park is safe.

If Togo is patient the Russians will destroy themselves.

Does the attorney-general see a great light in the lighting combine?

And so there are "Indians" in Indianapolis. A little while ago we thought St. Louis was "Indian"apolis.

The poor fellows who went to the bottom with the Petropavlovsk paid heavy toll to barbarism. How long will civilization tolerate such horrors?

FOREST PARK BOND.

The vote of the World's Fair directorate to comply with the demand of the Board of Public Improvement and give the additional bond of $550,000 for the restoration of Forest Park will be highly appreciated by the people of St. Louis.

The assurance that this great and useful property will be preserved without detriment restores public confidence and takes the edge off whatever resentment may have been excited among over anxious persons by the delay in reaching a settlement.

As a further security, it is determined to set aside $650,000 from the receipts as soon as the United States government claim of $4,600,000 is satisfied.

The two measures make assurance doubly sure. The city is secured and the park is safe.

THE SOUL OF DEMOCRACY.

"As the soul of democracy stand the five hundred thousand women teachers of America," said Rev. Anna Garlin Spencer at the Brooklyn Institute last Friday.

This is so near the truth that the exaggeration may be pardoned.

But the question comes—is the soul of democracy in good health? Are the women who have the destinies of America in their keeping qualified by character, training and experience for the trust committed to them?

The teaching profession ought to be the first in public regard. If it were, the best character and intellect would be found in it. But, unhappily, it is not the first. Except in the higher grades it takes rank after law, medicine and journalism. Men, therefore, take to teaching as later choice, and the women who go into it have not the stimulus of first-rate masculine competition.

So, if Mrs. Spencer is right—and she is not far wrong—the duty rests upon the community so to distribute social consideration and pecuniary reward that the best of both sexes will prefer the teaching profession. Let it not be said that the American people care more for the material advantages of democracy than for its essential life.

If there is a law in Russia against carrying concealed weapons the Czar ought to enforce it.

THE DRINK BILL.

During the year ending June 30, 1903, the American people drank alcoholic liquors to the tune of $1,242,943,118.

The per capita cost was $16.50.

Think of it—distributed among the population equally, every man, woman and child paid out $16.50 for drink.

Counting five in a family, the cost to each family was $82.50.

This amount of money would build at least 60,000 miles of railway with equipments (no allowance for water).

Or it would build 200,000 miles of good, substantial highways, affording the farmers exit to market at all seasons of the year, and easy driving, mobiling and wheeling for the whole nation.

But we will not quit drinking. A habit which dates from Noah's time is not to be broken by a display of statistics.

Grizzled Senators came over to listen to Bourke Cockran. Oratory has not lost its power, though orators are few.

POOR ADAM BEDE.

Hon. Adam Bede, M. C., from the Duluth district, is a most unfortunate man. He thought he was a statesman but one day before his seat was warm he made a funny speech and behold! he is only a jester.

Mr. Bede, whose career is thus wrecked before he got fairly started, is a man of good understanding and when he appeared to take his place in the Fifty-eighth Congress he was welcomed as a promising new member.

But he got too funny; unmindful of Proctor Knott and his Duluth speech, the member from Duluth walked into the same trap. He is now in demand all over the country for speeches and lectures and whenever he rises to address Mr. Chairman the members troop in from all parts of the capitol and those who have been asleep wake up prepared to laugh. His jests are keen, brilliant and good natured and he is the light of the House.

But Adam Bede's views on public policy—what are they? Nobody knows. Indeed, nobody cares. He is a jester, not a statesman. He couldn't muster a corporal's guard to hear him speak on the tariff, or colonialism, or foreign policy. But he could pack the St. Louis Coliseum with all sorts of people eager to hear and applaud his jests. Poor Adam Bede.

The official statement that the Petropavlovsk was sunk by a Russian mine is a humiliating confession. If the Russians are as incompetent on land as on sea they cannot hope to escape defeat, even with numerical odds in their favor.

NO MORE ADVENTURES.

Do boys read Robinson Crusoe or Marryat's stories in these days? If so, why are they all so unwilling to run away to sea?

In Boston masters of sailing vessels find it almost impossible to ship crews for long voyages. Two barques, one bound for the west coast of Africa, the other for Buenos Ayres, lay in the harbor two weeks waiting for sailors willing to float on salt water.

Is the spirit of adventure dead? Fancy Magellan's men declining the long voyage and entering the coastwise trade, or De Gama's crew acknowledging a preference for the Mediterranean. In June, 1805, just before Trafalgar Nelson landed in England remarking that it was two years since he had felt terra firma. Sailors in those days were not land animals nor yet amphibious. They were sea dogs and liked to talk of the sea as their natural element.

The change is not superficial. It marks a profound shifting among the points of controlling interest. The sea is commonplace, empty of adventure, almost of danger. Steam has robbed the ship of romance, cables have made foreign parts so familiar that they are falling into the contempt proverbially bred by an acquaintance too intimate, while wireless telegraphy deprives a voyage of the melancholy of loneliness. There is nothing new. If we haven't seen it we have heard of it and a picture is often as good as the wonder itself. Travel is a waste of time since everything of interest is here and now.

Machine politicians are wonderfully successful while the machine runs smoothly, but when a pebble gets in the cogs they are lost. They lack the true cunning which depends upon a knowledge of what is good in human nature, as well as what is base and selfish.

CRUELTIES IN THE CONGO.

The scandals which have for years disgraced the Congo Free State come to a climax of horror in the recital of barbarity given by Dr. William M. Morrison, Presbyterian missionary in that region.

Under pretense of carrying civilization to a region of night the white man has taken a barbarism worse than that of the savages themselves. Cannibalism, equipped with modern rifles, rules the land set apart by the powers of Europe as the territory of a state which should raise Africa into a condition above that of the Hottentot. But such has not been the result. Ivory hunting and slave catching are the principal industries, and if the testimony of witnesses is to be believed, the profit of both go to enrich the richest sovereign in Europe.

The work begun by Wilberforce is not yet done. The horrors of the "middle passage" are repeated in the cannibal raids It is a strange repetition of scenes once dismissed from thought as too hideous to contemplate. And stranger still the interest of greed which blocked the humanity of Wilberforce for a generation now stand in the way of those who protest against the cruelties in the Congo. Man has not yet won the victory over money.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I wish for the benefit of the St. Louis Humane Society that you would please publish this letter. Every time anything appears in your paper about the eating of dogs at the World's Fair grounds, your paper says that it is the St. Louis Humane Society that has made the complaint against those people. Now, I want to say that it is not the St. Louis Humane Society, but the Woman's Humane Society that has raised the objections to eating dogs. So far as I am concerned, I don't see any more harm in eating dogs than in eating sheep, veal or beef, and I want you to deny positively that our society has had anything to do with this matter, as in my opinion it simply holds our society up to public contempt and ridicule. Yours truly,

ROZIER G. MEIGS,
President St. Louis Humane Society.

STREET RECONSTRUCTION.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

As the city's streets are now undergoing reconstruction and improvement, my attention has been called, on several occasions, to a "glaring error," which cannot be readily overlooked. Being a resident of the West End, I would like to call special atention to the condition of West Pine boulevard, between Grand and Spring, also between Spring and Vandeventer avenues. It seems to me a disgrace and rank injustice to property holders to have to submit to the patched condition of this street in the blocks referred to. I cite West Pine only as a sample instance; other reconstructed streets throughout the city are in a similar condition.

There is a cause, likewise a remedy for this. The cause is self-evident, for when gas, water, etc., connections are required, the first thing done is to tear up the street, no matter how well laid. Admitting the necessity of relaying pipes, owing to rust, wear and tear, etc., there seems to me no necessity to tear up a newly-made street and then fill in places with unsightly patches.

The remedy, in my opinion, for such abuses would be to enact a forcible and stringent law, making it compulsory for contractors or those whose duty it is, to make all necessary connections before a street has been reconstructed. Contractors or those in evidence should not be permitted under any circumstances to tear up the streets after reconstruction.

WEST END.

BRUTAL DOG CATCHING.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Seeing so many comments in the People's Column of your valuable paper regarding the Humane Society and the Igorrotes compels me to make a complaint regarding the brutal treatment the dog receives when caught by our dog catchers, viz: The dog is caught with a wire loop which is thrown over his head, then given a sudden jerk, lifted in the air (which, seemingly, is enough to cut his head half off), thrown into a box on a wagon (which from all appearances is a dungeon) and hauled around the streets several hours to find more dogs to be given the same treatment, and thence to the dog pound.

Such inhumanity should not be tolerated, and I sincerely hope the Humane Society will endeavor to devise some means whereby the dogs can be handled in a more humane manner.

Let the Igorrotes have all the dog they want provided they are killed in the proper way, such as we kill cattle, sheep, hogs, chickens, turkeys, etc. To deprive is selfishness. We certainly have no use for some dogs; those we do we should license. Treat all animals kindly.

WATCHING THE AMERICAN EAGLE.

From the St. John (N. B.) Telegraph.

For the information of those who do not read the United States papers it may be stated that the rest of the world never does anything without first considering its effect upon the attitude of the American government and people. An American discovered Japan and woke that country up. Japan then discovered the United States and learned all she knows up to the present time. When Russia heard the rumor that some American officers were on Japanese warships a shiver that some people mistook for an earthquake shock went through the empire from St. Petersburg to Vladivostok. When Secretary Hay of the United States proposed to limit the sphere of hostilities everybody forgot that a man named Balfour, who is a premier or something of that sort in England, had intimated before the war broke out that this should be done, and every country hastened to cable an eager assent to Washington prepaid. National modesty alone prevents the American newspapers from asserting what everybody knows to be true—that when the eagle screams the world quakes.

WHERE THE CLERKS RUN THE STORE.

A Department-Store Experiment in Which the Employes Initiate Shop Rules and Settle Disputes.

An ingenious and original solution of the problem of employer and employe is that now found in one of the largest department stores of Boston. The proprietor of this store during his first years of business had all sorts of trouble with his help, and found that his business was not prospering. After studying the subject for a long time he formed all his employes into a co-operative association. Into its hands he committed the absolute care and control of a clubhouse, social hall and library, which he donated to the employes. He exercises no supervision over that branch of the business at all, and the workers are relieved of all espionage or suspicion of it.

More important and original, however, is the fact that this co-operative association has an important voice in the management of the business. The association has the power to initiate or amend any store rule affecting the efficiency of its members. A vote on a store rule, when passed by two-thirds of a quorum of the members, goes into effect at once—subject to the veto of the firm. And even the firm's veto may be overridden by a two-thirds vote of all the members of the association. Still more interesting is the board of arbitration, consisting of any dispute between the company and its employes. For example, if an employe is dismissed by the firm and a two-thirds vote of the arbitration board decides that his dismissal was a mistake or was unjustified, he must be reinstated. If an employe's salary is reduced and a majority of the board decides that the reduction was not just, the salary is restored to its former figure.

This presupposes the existence of some one of the employes who must become acquainted with the business of the firm. A young woman, who is called "the social secretary," fills that position. She is really the association, and acts for it in almost every case; knows just what the firm can pay for work, and how much justice there is in the employes' claims.

The proprietor of a large concern in Dayton, O., which had a disastrous strike a few years ago, has, it is said, decided to try this scheme, and believes that if he had tried it before there would have been no strike. The trouble in his case was that the firm seemed to say to its employes, "See all these nice things we give you!" In the Boston scheme the offensive element of paternalism is removed.—Collier's Weekly.

A Day Laborer Mexico's Richest Man

As a profession, mining offers more chances for sudden wealth than any other, and this is exemplified in the case of a Mexican miner, Pedro Alvarado, who owns a mine at Parral, in the state of Chihuahua. He is about 50 years old, and comes from the peon, or lowest laboring class, the ability of whose members to write their own name is remarkable. For years this man was a mine laborer, working for fifty cents (Mexican silver) a day; illiterate, unthinking, and, in common with the rest of his kind, he had no ambition beyond the making of enough money to keep body and soul together. He was known to be hard working, but he had no more thrift or foresight than the other peons, and in consequence his taking up of a small piece of property three years ago with the intention of sinking a shaft was a standing joke in the neighborhood. He borrowed enough money to work his property in a small way, but being what he was, his credit did not hold for very long, and it was on the last day before the mortgage would have been foreclosed that he made the strike that gave him a position that is unique.

The vein of gold and silver ore that he found turned him in a day from a peon to a millionaire many times over, and the results have been spectacular and interesting. The wealth of his mine, with its present development, is fabulous, the average ore taken out assaying in the neighborhood of $12,000 a ton, although one shipment of three carloads was made some time ago that brought him a profit of $600,000 a car, this ore being so rich that the native silver could be cut from it with a pocket-knife. After the discovery there was naturally a change in Alvarado's methods of living, and he started the building of an enormous and gorgeous house, which, true to his blood, he placed in the center of the poorest part of town, where it is surrounded by the mud and thatched huts of his old friends. Until it is finished he will continue to live in a mud shack, where he has no less than five pianos, although of course neither he nor his wife has the slightest idea what to do with them.

Alvarado is not inclined to keep his good fortune to himself, and has a pension list among those he worked beside more than $20,000 a month, while during the Christmas feasts it is his custom to load a wagon with silver dollars, which he personally distributes through the poorer parts of the town. He is intensely patriotic, and a year ago made the proposition to the Mexican government to pay the national debt, and undoubtedly would have tried to do so had not Finance Minister Limantour felt that it was for the best interests of the country to decline the offer. Alvarado is very proud of his position, and so jealous of his interests that he has surrounded his property with a high wall, within which he will permit none but his own people to enter.—Leslie's Weekly.

QUAINT JAPANESE NAMES

In Japan the names of even the humblest country girls are often those of flowers or trees. These names are sometimes preceded by the honorific O, as O-Hana, which means the Honorable Miss Blossom. Then there are O-Ume, the Honorable Miss Plum; O-Matsu, the Honorable Miss Pine; O-Haru, the Honorable Miss Springtime; O-Kiku-San, the Honorable Miss Chrysanthemum; O-Tama-San, the Honorable Miss Jewel, and O-Ine, the Honorable Miss Ear-of-Young-Rice.

The name Setsu is often given to Japanese maidens, just as the names Faith, or Fidelia, or Constance are given to English girls. Other names are Flower-of-Bliss, Blossom-Child, Joyous-Sunrise, Happy-Dawn, Blest-Love, Fortunate-Pleasure, Jewel-of-Fortune and Glorious-Victory.

The Japanese poets compare woman to all lovely things—the physical beauty to the cherry blossom, which they consider first among flowers, its spotless purity symbolizing delicacy of beauty. A rich, clear velvety complexion is likened to a ripe, red plum. Womanly sweetness is compared to the blossoms of the plum tree. A graceful form is like the willow; the expression, yanagi-goshi, willow-waist, being one of several in common use.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Col. "Bill" Sterrett of Texas sat dejectedly in the House press gallery last Saturday while Bourke Cockran was delivering his great speech on the decadence of the House and the President's service-pension order.

"What the matter, Bill?" asked a friend. "Why don't you go in and hear Cockran?"

"No," said Sterrett, sadly, "I can't; I jest plumb can't. Why, I remember ten or twelve years ago, when he made his speech on the income tax. I was in there then. I saw that man stand there at the head of the main aisle and talk and shake his head and pull his hair over his eyes and come charging down the aisle, so much in earnest that he couldn't talk, agitated and intense, full of surging thoughts, and when he got down in front of the speaker jest roar it out and then go back and come charging down again. By George! I saw all that, and I can't forget it.

"He had me crying one minute and hurrahing for the Lone Star state the next, and I went and wrote four columns to my paper and said he was the greatest orator since Cicero, and had Cicero beat a block when it came to the real thing. I seemed to me like it came from his heart, and I had hysterics about it for four columns.

"Then next day his secretary told me he had been practicing that speech for four weeks, and had written it over and over and over, and all those spontaneous utterances were cut and dried as a smoked herring; and I quit. I jest plumb quit. I'm taking my acting on the stage now; not out there in Congress."

A spruce-looking young woman tripped into the lobby of the New Willard Hotel a day or two ago and walked up to the counter.

"How do you do?" said Clerk Gilray.

"How do you do, sir?" she said in return.

"Yes, sir, thank you."

"Please sign your name here," said Gilray, and after she had written her name he asked, "Have you a trunk?"

"Yes, sir, thank you."

"Would you like to go to your room now?"

"If you please."

"How long shall you remain?" asked Gilray as he summoned a bellboy.

"I don't know," said the girl, shyly. "I've just got a job in the linen room, and if I like it I shall stay quite a while."

Representative Cayton of Alabama tried to buy a horse last fall that he could use for hunting. He went to a neighbor who knew him as a great hunter and fisherman.

"This horse," the neighbor told Clayton, showing him one, "is not afraid of a gun and can point a bird as well as a dog."

"I'll take him, and if he's all right I'll pay you $60 for him, and if he really finds birds I'll give you $100 for him," Clayton said.

He took the horse for a trial. While riding him the next day the horse stumbled and fell in crossing a stream. Clayton took him back.

"I dont want that horse," he said. "He stumbled and almost drowned me."

From the Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

Mr. Bryan seems bent upon ruling the next Democratic national convention or ruining the chance of the party to elect its ticket in the November election. He has arrayed himself against every conservative leader of the organization, to whom he has delivered the ultimatum, "the Kansas City platform must be indorsed," or else. And this is not all. To the East he has made the remarkable assertion that "the Democratic party will have to be in a very bad shape indeed when it depends for its success on your state (New York)."

So little encouragement has been given his oft-repeated challenge to the party about reaffirming the obsolete issues which brought us defeat that he seems determined to prevent the convention doing what most of us construe to be the wisest, and one of his methods of accomplishing this purpose is to array his followers against that part of the nation which elected McKinley two terms in succession. What else can he mean if this is not so? On what does he base the assumption that the Democracy can elect its ticket without the support of the uncertain states of the East? In two notable elections he tried to reach the White House, and in both instances suffered defeat because he could not carry a single state in that section. In one of these elections he received the largest popular vote ever given a Democratic candidate, and yet, despite this, he could not win. His scornful fling at New York has very much the appearance of sour grapes. And we cannot evade the conclusion that there was method in the making of it. He knows that if the Kansas City platform is reaffirmed the Democracy cannot hope to carry a single eastern state.

A WONDERFUL DETECTIVE STORY

The Fatal Chord,

or the Baffling Mystery of the Odeon Murder

By Albert Payton Terhune.

To Be Completed in Twelve Daily Installments.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Cyril Ballard, a young St. Louisan, is killed during a musicale at Paul Craddock's apartments at the Odeon. Several apparently supernatural events attend his death. Poison tablets are found in his pocket, but the autopsy reveals no trace of poison in the system. As Gresnam and Beckwith, two detectives, are discussing the affair they are joined by a tall, thin Englishman, whom Beckwith introduces to Gresham as the "ideal detective." To which Gresham replies: "Do you mean to tell me this is SHERLOCK HOLMES?" The English detective neither denies nor affirms the suspicion that he is Sherlock Holmes. He makes some inquiries about the Odeon case, and ascertains that Ballard had been engaged to an Italian girl, but that the engagement had been broken. He also ascertained that Ballard had a brother, Royce, a ne'er-do-well, who had studied medicine. Subsequently he announces his determination to work on the case, saying that, while he came here for rest, he cannot resist the temptation to follow his bent. He contrives to get himself invited to another musicale at Craddock's studio, and there manages to overhear a conversation between Royce Ballard and the Italian girl. He ascertains from this that Royce killed his brother, and that the girl, who is in love with Royce, knows it.

CHAPTER IV.
On the Trail.

For a full minute Royce Ballard sat as though paralyzed by the news he had just heard.

When he spoke it was in so low a tone that the unseen listener could not catch the words.

But a few moments later his voice rose somewhat.

"Don't you suppose I've thought of that?" he was saying. "I knew that any one who suspected might try to search my rooms for it when I was absent. I carry it with me all the time. There's no evidence that will let them arrest me and search my clothes. But any third-rate detective—yes, or any woman with a grudge against me, for that matter—might gain access to my rooms in my absence and find it. That's where I was wise."

"You say no one had evidence against you that could warrant your arrest? How about me?"

"I didn't know till tonight that you had any knowledge of the"——

"You know it now. My dear Royce, with me for an enemy you are lost. With me for an ally you are safe and a millionaire. The price of my alliance is a plain gold ring. A wife cannot testify against"——

"You have conquered," he growled, sullenly. "I'll marry you. But," with a snarl of irrepressible rage, "I'll lead you a dog's life. I make you curse the day you forced me into this hateful union. I"—

"I'll take my chance on that, Royce. The woman who can make you cringe before her and agree to marry her can take pretty good care of herself afterward. They're applauding. I'm really sorry to have missed Herr von Rickerl's music, but the talk we've just had is worth it. Shall we join the crowd that are congratulating him? Eh?"

Bona had stepped through the half-drawn portieres, but shrank back with a little gasp.

"What's the matter?" asked Royce, uneasily.

"Why, a man's leaning against the wall right by the edge of the bay window, within two yards of us! How much do you suppose he heard? I thought every one was across the room nearer the piano."

Royce lifted a corner of the portiere in the direction she indicated and took a long look at the man. Then he dropped the curtain with a sigh of relief.

"It's only that stupid Englishman, Dr. Joseph Watts, Beckwith's friend," he said, contemptuously. "He's leaning there with his eyes shut and his mouth open and his silly head nodding. Music's charms seem to have 'soothed his savage breast' to slumber. Even if he'd been awake he hasn't enough sense to understand us."

"Can he have been listening while he pretended to be asleep?"

"If he was, he'd- have moved away the second we discovered he was there. No; Watts is 'a negligible quantity.'"

"You're sure? He gave me a scare. Who is he, anyway?"

"An Englishman who scraped acquaintance with Beckwith on the other side. Beckwith seems to think he owes him something, for he takes him everywhere, even in his researches into the cause of Cyril's death."

"Is Mr. Beckwith on that case?"

"Yes. He is always meddling in other people's affairs. To justify his idiotic nickname of 'The Millionaire Dectective,' I suppose. There's nothing to fear from him. No more than from this stupid Watts fellow."

The "stupid Watts fellow" meanwhile gradually awoke from his doze and strolled over to where Von Rickerl stood by the piano. While seemingly deeply absorbed in the musical discussion going on there, he did not fail to note that Bona Pittani and Royce had emerged from the bay window and had joined the other guests. Taking an envelope from his pocket, the Englishman quietly tore off the superscription and, stepping near to Royce, let the envelope fall to the floor.

"Excuse me, Mr. Ballard," he said, stooping to pick it up, "but I think you have dropped something."

Royce made an involuntary upward movement of the right hand toward his own breast pocket; then, seeing that what The Englishman had picked up was merely a torn envelope he glanced carelessly at it and said:

"No. It isn't mine."

"Good!" murmured The Englishman to himself. "This 'something' that he carries with him all the time for fear of its being discovered is in the left breast pocket of his coat or his waistcoat. But how to get at it? And what is it? Whatever it is it has bearing on his brother's murder. If I were back in London there are a dozen of my assistants who could help me get possession of it. As it is, "this stupid Watts fellow" may possibly outwit the clever Mr. Royce Ballard after all."

For some time past, The Englishman had been quietly but intensely busy. Introduced by Beckwith as an English friend who was interested in watching American methods of detective work, he had accompanied the "Millionaire Detective" on the latter's investigation of the Ballard case; had examined carefully the body, and, as far as Craddock would permit, the surroundings in the latter's appartments at The Odeon, where the crime had been committed. Here, however, he had encountered an unexpected and irritable obstacle.

Craddock had calmly refused to have "a gang of thief-takers prowling about his rooms," as he termed it. Any reasonable investigation, he said, he would permit with pleasure. But he saw no reason why measurements, microscopic examinations, etc., should be made. The law did not demand them and he refused to permit such intrusions.

The Englishman, by admitting that he was a detective, might, of course, have obtained the necessary permission from the authorities. But he did not choose to jeopard his future success on the case by throwing off the incognito of "Dr. Joseph Watts" unnecessarily. He knew that dozens of persons had tramped about Craddock's rooms since Ballard had fallen dead there, and that their careless footprints had doubtless blotted out all significant traces of the crime's origin and originator.

Moreover, there seemed, in view of such probable obliteration, no absolute necessity for such a search. Yet the Englishman was resolved at the first good opportunity to make it. Though realizing that each passing day made the chance of a "find" there more and more unlikely, he was determined to make, some time, such a thorough microscopic investigation of the apartment as his soul craved.

With this object in view he had sedulously cultivated Craddock's acquaintance. To most of the people who had met him through Beckwith the Englishman seemed uninteresting, self-absorbed and somewhat stupid. Craddock, however, who saw far deeper into human nature than did those about him, read "Dr. Watts" differently. He saw the tremendous energy, the keen, analytical mind beneath the difficult exterior, and he felt an unwonted attraction toward the famous sleuth. He and the Englishman were much together.

The great detective, on his part, was keenly interested in Craddock. Here was a man who, with all his great powers of deduction, The Englishman could not make out. Subtle, brilliant, honorable, contemptuous of his fellow men, secure in the knowledge of this own power. Thus he had sized up Craddock's complicated character.

Thus, indeed, he described him to Beckwith as the two detectives walked homeward down Grand avenue late that night.

"He's the sort of man who stands head and shoulders above the average," answered Beckwith. "In times of panic or trouble the rest flock to him like frightened children to a father. He has good nerves, too, to sleep in that place after the awful tragedy that happened there. Especially after the seemingly superhuman events that accompanied it. By the way, have you formed any theory to account for that instant of utter darkness and the crashing out of that one loud chord from the piano?

"Not yet," answered The Englishman, "but if I were not hot on another trail I should have formed a theory to account for that and for certain conditions I noted about Ballard's body and which the police and the doctors alike seem to have overlooked. But that theory was so wild, so utterly improbable—and besides, I had no chance to verify it by proper examination of the room and"——

"Would you mind telling me the nature of this 'wild theory' you at first formed?"

"No—yes, on second thoughts. I'd rather not, until the affair is solved. Then I'll tell you of any of my false clues that may interest you. In the meantime, the probabilities are in favor of our fixing the crime on our friend, Royce Ballard, as you expected."

Briefly he recounted the events of the evening.

"This Pittani girl," he finished, "has some strong hold over Ballard. As I take it, she—and she alone—has proof that he killed his brother. The secret of that crime he carries in his breast—not figuratively—but in his breast pocket. I found that out tonight. My next move is to search Royce Ballard and find what this secret is. It may be the chemical formula for the poison. It may be some of the poison itself. It may be some incriminating document. In any case"——

"But the analysis failed to show any marks of poison in the body, and those mysterious brown tablets, when analyzed, contained no known poison."

"None known to local chemists, you mean. I have sent to my laboratory in London for certain tests of my own invention which I mean to apply to those tablets. The tests should be here in a few days. I flatter myself that they will lay bare the most subtle poison. When I find the nature of the poison I will also know its effects. Then it will be an easy matter to have the body exhumed and see if our suspicions are correct. But a surer and far simpler course will be to obtain the paper or whatever it is that Royce Ballard says he carries night and day. And that is what I am going to get."

"But how?"

"Gresham can get me a blank warrant, and I fancy I can make up sufficiently well as a detective to"——

"You mean you'd arrest him on some trumped-up, fake charge and go through his clothes?"

"No, no; I wouldn't go through his clothes. They'd do that at the nearest station house to which I brought him. I'd examine the papers, find I had the wrong man and let him go. That's all."

"But it's illegal. It's"——

"When your're dealing with a criminal you must meet him on his own ground if you hope to win. Tomorrow I shall get the warrant and put my little plan into execution. May I count on your help?"

"If any other man asked it I'd say 'no,' but you can count on me in everything. I'm with you, though it will involve queer work before we're done."

CHILD'S DRESS.

No. 4530—In the little Princess dress shown here, we have an original design that is both quaint and exceedingly childish. A very pretty result is obtained by the use of tucks in sunburst effect in the upper edge of sleeve and skirt. This edge just fits the little round yoke in the back and the princess front, so that the dress is very easily made. There are so few styles for children of this age that any innovation in dress is warmly welcomed. The dress consists of only five pieces, and the little princess front affords a place for a bit of embroidery, although the insertion which outlines the front is really all the trimming necessary. Any material in the back and the princess that lends itself to tucks is suitable to the mode.

Three yards of material, 36 inches wide, are required for child of 3 years.

Sizes 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 years.

HISTORIC FLAG OF THE MEXICAN WAR

Famous Regiment Still Has Emblem of Victory It Carried Under Gen. Scott.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FORT LEAVENWORTH, Kan., April 14.—Among the many colors possessed by the Sixth United States Infantry, Col. Duncan commanding, now stationed at Fort Leavenworth, there should be some that are highly prized and carefully preserved. There are two in particular that are so prized, one more particularly on account of its interesting historical record.

When the Mexican war broke out the Sixth Infantry was ordered to the front, and, with the exception of two companies left in the United States, the regiment served under Gen. Scott until the fall of the City of Mexico. Upon the surrender the officer of the regiment, to commemorate the work of the regiment, presented a new flag to it. The services of the nuns in the convent of the City of Mexico were called upon and an embroidered silk flag was the result. Although more than fifty years have passed since the flag was presented to the regiment, and time and wear and tear have left their marks and faded the flag, it still shows the delicate work bestowed upon it.

Among the young officers who served under that flag were Second Lieut. Winfield S. Hancock and Second Lieut. Simon B. Buckner—two men whose names are now written in history.

In an old order book appears the order issued the day this flag was presented to the regiment. The order is signed by young Hancock, then fresh from the military academy. It follows:

HEADQUARTERS BATTALION SIXTH INFANTRY, TUCUBAYA, March 25, 1848—Orders No. 7: In presenting our colors to the regiment the commanding officer desired that it may not be looked upon as a mere idle ceremony, but as the eventful occasion of the deposit into our hands by our country a sacred trust, for the safety of which we, each and all of us, will ever be ready to yield our lives a glorious sacrifice. It is the emblem of our country's glory and of our own, and let us strive to wear it and so to greet it that no shadow may obscure the bright luster that has been shed upon our army by the brilliant victory of the valley, and that no stain may sully the honorable name which has been won for the regiment by the heroic sacrifice of so many of our brave comrades. The honorable marks which now distinguish our colors show how gallantly the regiment has done its duty. Let us simulate the heroism of those who have fallen, if the fortunes of war should again call us to the field, and the colors now presented to you bear among its stars the same record of gallantry of its defenders.

By command of Capt. Hoffman.

WINFILED S. HANCOCK,
Second Lieutenant Sixth Infantry, Battalion Adjutant.

The author of this order little thought at that time that his services and those of his regiment would be called for in a more severe struggle than the one they had just passed through, but in that severe struggle neither he nor the regiment was found wanting. Capt. Hoffman was retired as a brevet major-general.

In later years Gen. Buckner wrote as follows regarding the flag he had assisted in presenting to the regiment:

• • • There was a feeling something akin to a protest on the part of some of the officers at replacing by a new flag the tattered standard which the regiment had borne through the battles in the valley, and which had received 45 musket balls in the different conflicts, 35 of which were received at a point where the flag waved for more than half an hour within 25 yards of Casa Mata. • • • Through all these years I have cherished the deepest love and veneration for a regiment whose fame has added so much to the glory of our country.

For many years these flags were kept in the museum at the Military Academy, West Point, but a few years ago they were returned to the regiment. At present they are, with much other regimental property, stored at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., where the regiment had station when it was ordered to the Philippines.

GAVE HIS HORSE ARTIFICIAL TAIL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 14.—Ever since he got an artificial tail for his old horse, Si Potts, John Diehl, a Westchester hackman, has been an unhappy man.

"Si" is a lanky beast that graduated from a Down East farm, where it spent a respectable youth, and came to New York to pull a hack for Diehl. Since then it has kept all sorts of hours, been out in rain, fog, sleet and snow, and is, in fact, a night owl and rounder.

A while ago the hair of "Si's" tail dropped off, leaving a bare and unsightly stump. "Too much dissipation nights" is the way Diehl accounts for it. "Si's" misfortune worried Diehl, as he thought of the torture of summer flies to be endured by "Si," and being a man kind to his beast, he had a harness-maker make an artificial tail for "Si."

When the tail made of long horse hair sewed to a leather socket was slipped over the stump and fastened, the old horse craned his neck to see what it was, heaved a sigh of joy and swished the new tail right and left in a frenzy of enthusiasm. Every night the tail was taken off, brushed out and hung up, and in the morning it is readjusted to the stump.

Since its acquisition "Si" has grown so proud that he won't stand on the same side of the street with the other hack horses, and has worried Diehl almost to the point of distress. When left alone with the other horses "Si" whisks his new tail proudly and stalks down the road or across the street. The other hackmen say that he grins at their bony steeds and "rubs it in" because they haven't tails as long and fine. Morover, the artificial tail has attracted so much interest in the neighborhood that Diehl is besieged daily with questions and comments, and is greatly worn out by "Si's" notoriety.

Two Questions.

"I've got something important to do," said the practical young man, "and I don't just know how to go about it. I'd like you to help me."

"Yes?" replied Miss Pechis. "What is it you propose to do?"

"That's not the question. It's what is it you do to propose?—Catholic Standard and Times.

BRIDAL VEIL: RICE SHOWER.

Owing to the fact that the bride wore her wedding veil while walking along the street with her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hucke of Smithton township were, Wednesday afternoon, tendered a rice and old shoe shower by about a dozen pretty young women of the Belleville High school.

The newly wedded couple passed the school house a few minutes before the afternoon session began. The bridal veil revealed the secret and soon the High school girls had procured from a nearby grocery store a quantity of rice. Several of the girls who lived near the school hurried to their homes and procured old shoes and slippers. For several blocks the shower was continued, much to the embarrassment of the bride and groom.

JAPS CLAIM THEY TORPEDOED SHIP

ing a desultory reply, and at 12 o'clock Admiral Togo withdrew his battleships to the south. It was inspiring to see how this powerful squadron of fighting machines maneuvered. The battleships went boldly in, the less protected vessels conforming to their evolution at a safer distance.

"Although I went closer in to approach Port Arthur than I have ever been before, yet I saw no sign of any Russian shipping. I could, however, make out the lighthouse. The shell which fell nearest to us exploded on impact with the water.

"The Japanese, maneuvering at 18 knots, suffered no damage so far as I could see. Their expenditure of ammunition was small. Admiral Togo's was a magnificent force, the most powerful naval fleet, indeed, which ever sailed eastern seas. Including the torpedo craft there were 40 Japanese vessels before Port Arthur."

"IT IS GOD'S WILL," DECLARED THE CZAR WHEN TOLD OF DISASTER

ST. PETERSBURG, April 14.—The Emperor when reading the dispatch from Rear Admiral Grigorovitch, commandant of Port Arthur, announcing the loss of the Petropavlovsk, turned pale. He was much moved and did not speak for several minutes. Then he asked a lady in waiting to inform the Empress, who burst into tears. The Emperor ordered the news made public immediately and commanded the commission of military censorship to communicate the dispatch to the newspaper correspondents. He next sent for his confessor to celebrate a requiem. His majesty said:

"God has willed that the Yenesei should perish by touching a mine and that the Boyarin should be damaged. Now Providence, whose designs are inscrutable, has willed also to deprive us of the Petropavlovsk and the brave men aboard her."

The Emperor telephoned to the Grand Duke Vladimir announcing the loss of the ship and also the fact that Grand Duke Cyril's life had been saved and then he telephoned to Vice-Admiral Makaroff's widow preparing her for the fatal news.

A high personage at court has given the details received by the Emperor, according to which Vice-Admiral Makaroff went out on the Petropavlovsk to ascertain the position of the Japanese fleet. After he had been out for an hour he saw several vessels which retired.

Shortly afterward he perceived the Japanese squadron of 20 vessels and not being strong enough to attack he returned to Port Arthur.

When two miles outside the entrance an explosion literally hurled the battleship out of the water, completely overturning her. Grand Duke Cyril, five other officers and a couple of score of men alone managed to swim to land.

Grand Duke Cyril was on the bridge of the Petropavlovsk when the explosion occurred and was thrown into the sea, which led to the saving of his life. Vice-Admiral Makaroff was in the cabin of the battleship with Rear-Admiral Molas.

PARIS, April 14, 1:25 p. m.—President Loubet today telegraphed to Emperor Nicholas his profound condolences on the disaster to the Petropavlovsk and the death of Vice-Admiral Makaroff. This dispatch, together with those of Emperor William and the King of Italy, sent yesterday, is regarded here as significant of the acceptance of the European governments that the sinking of the Petropavlovsk was due to an accident and did not occur in a battle with the Japanese. The officials say condolences over the result of a battle might involve questions of neutrality, whereas condolences over an accident do not involve neutrality.

Prior to the sending of M. Loubet's telegram, the French embassy at St. Petersburg had received an official assurance that the accident was due to the Petropavlovsk striking a mine which had become loosened from its moorings during the recent storm.

The awful disaster at Port Arthur and the death of Makaroff have been a terrific blow. It would have fallen less heavily if the ship and the commander-in-chief of the fleet had been lost in battle, but to be the result of another accident, following upon the heels of a succession of tragedies of which the Port Arthur fleet had been victim, has created extreme depression.

The location of six of the mines planted by the Yenesei were unknown, the charts having been lost when that vessel went down. Probably it was one of these mines that the Petropavlovsk struck.

Vice-Admiral Makaroff's death is really a greater loss than would be that of several battleships. He was the pride of the navy and enjoyed the implicit confidence of his sovereign as well as of the officers and men of the service. Speaking of his death officers here all remarked upon the strange fatality that he should lose his life on a heavily armored battleship, to which he had a particular aversion. Yesterday for the first time he raised his flag on a battleship. Previously he had gone out on board the cruiser Novik or the cruiser Askold. It was at the urgent request of his friends that he did not risk his life on these light ships that he transferred his flag to the Petropavlovsk.

MAKAROFF'S DEATH MAY BE TURNING POINT IN WAR PLANS

LONDON, April 14.—There is practical unanimity of opinion here that the loss of the Petropavlovsk and the death of Admiral Makaroff will mark the commencement of active operations on land. In discussing the probabilities the Daily Telegraph military expert says:

"I certainly shall be surprised if the day of the death of the admiral does not become a historic date from which a rapid change in the development of the land campaign will hereafter reckon. It is almost certain that Makaroff's death will be the signal, first, for the blocking up of Port Arthur with loaded merchant ships, for which the Japanese have been so carefully preparing, and immediately afterward for a combined naval and military attack upon Port Arthur."

Despite official and private dispatches the belief continues that many details of the catastrophe to the Petropavlovsk have been concealed by the Russian admiralty. The reinforcement of the enemy was the controlling reason for Makaroff's return to Port Arthur, but a factor in this decision also is undoubtedly the plan of campaign not to engage a superior force or run the risk of damage to his ships, but to wait patiently for the arrival of the Baltic squadron.

Dispatches from St. Petersburg say that in the opinion of the Emperor's advisers the Petropavlovsk disaster occurred yesterday morning about 7 o'clock. It is presumed that Vice-Admiral Makaroff had sailed out from Port Arthur on the previous day to locate the enemy and had been cruising all night when he sighted the enemy, giving pursuit until the Japanese reinforcements appeared and then putting back for the shelter of the guns of Port Arthur. This explains the second sentence in Rear-Admiral Grigorovitch's telegram: "Our squadron was under Golden Hill."

From private advices it is learned that Grand Duke Boris was standing on Golden Hill watching his brother's ship when the catastrophe occurred. Not a single paper here has a special telegram from Port Arthur this morning.

It is certain that only two minutes elapsed between the explosion and the sinking of the battleship.

ALL OF MAKAROFF'S NAVAL STAFF WENT DOWN ON FLAGSHIP

ST. PETERSBURG, April 14.—In naval circles there are those who believe the explosion was internal and not external. The word used in the official dispatch literally means "upset," which is equivalent to turned turtle. In support of the theory of an internal explosion it is declared that the bodies of the victims were fearfully burned, some reports saying that Vice-Admiral Makaroff was blown to pieces.

The loss of life involved in the tragedy is more serious than supposed, it being learned that Makaroff's whole naval staff was on board the Petropavlovsk.

Among the stories current but from what source it comes is not known, is one to the effect that Makaroff was sitting in his stateroom with Rear-Admiral Molas, his chief of staff, when the ship was blown up.

Vice-Admiral Stark, formerly in command of the Russian fleet at Port Arthur, in an interview is quoted as saying: "In my opinion the Petropavlovsk struck one of the contact mines laid off Cape Lita-Shan, but which had been torn from its moorings by the terrible storms prevailing last week, and which drifted under the stress of the south gales into the roadstead. It could not have been a mine laid near the entrance of the harbor because the latter are not contact mines, but are fired by an electric wire from the shore."

Alarming reports prevail regarding Grand Duke Cyril's condition. It is said that he is in a high fever, aggravated by shock, which it is feared may bring about a crisis. The members of his family are greatly disturbed. The wounded grand duke is exceedingly popular and is heir to the throne after Grand Duke Michael, the Emperor's brother, it being generally understood that Grand Duke Vladimir, Cyril's father, would waive his rights in his son's favor.

GRAND DUKE CYRIL WAS FIGHTING FOR LOVE AS WELL AS HIS COUNTRY.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 14.—There is a romantic story connected with the Grand Duke Cyril's anxiety to go to the front. He wanted to win his spurs and then marry the woman with whom he is very much in love.

The match was opposed by his parents. It is an open secret that the grand duke's lady love is his cousin, the divorced wife of the Grand Duke of Hesse and a daughter of the late Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, who married a sister of Alexander III.

It was announced from Berlin, December 15, 1903, that the engagement of the Grand Duke Cyril to the former Grand Duchess of Hesse, who was divorced from her husband, had been broken off, the Emperor having forbidden the Grand Duke to marry the Grand Duchess, whose former husband is a brother of the Czarina. It was said, according to the dispatch, that the Grand Duke was deeply in love with the Hessian Grand Duchess before her marriage. One of the objections of the Emperor to the marriage, it was said, was the fact that the Grand Duke Cyril is of orthodox Russian faith, while the Grand Duchess is a Lutheran. In addition, there seemed to be a personal objection on the part of the Emperor to receiving the Princess at the Russian court.

ITALIAN IMMIGRANTS FLOOD NEW ENGLAND

Wheer There Was One Ten Years Ago, There Are One Hundred Today.

27,000 IN CONNECTICUT ALONE

Most of Them Are Ignorant, Superstitious and Hostile to Church and State.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 14.—Where one Italian settled in New England 10 years ago a hundred are making their homes today.

Bands of them can be seen almost any week on the trains or in the railroad stations of Connecticut, each member of the company wearing his tag, each with a bundle of household goods slung in a red bandanna over his shoulder, each with his $10 or $12 sewed in his clothes.

They scatter throughout the country villages and in the manufacturing centers of the state, herding in the cheap tenements, taking up the tumbledown farms once occupied by thriving New England families, and forming at once a problem for the towns and cities to solve, and a menace to the oldtime high moral evel of the New England people.

There are now 27,000 Italians living in Connecticut. In New Haven alone a quarter of the population is Italian and Hebrew.

In 1900 there were 732,000 of these people in this country. In 1903 alone 210,000 of these people came to America. Over 90,000 Italians have come to the New England states in the last four years. Maine received 681 of these, New Hampshire 253, Vermont 1121, Massachusetts 42,549, Rhode Island 10,418 and Connecticut 20,036. Up to the taking of the last census there was no marked increase in the number of immigrants from southern Italy who came to New England. In the last four years there has been a sudden and most remarkable influx of these people.

This marked change in the character nationality of New England's immigrants is regarded by students of the social conditions in New England as most menacing. The Rev. Joel S. Ives of Hartford, secretary of the Missionary Society of Connecticut, and one of the best-informed and most active workers in this field in New England, has lately stirred up considerable interest in this subject in this state through statistics which he has personally gathered.

Serious Problem in New England.

Mr. Ives states that a serious problem confronts New England just now on account of the new conditions of immigration. In a recent address on this subject when he gave before the Men's Club in the United Church, New Haven, Mr. Ives made some startling statements. On the general subject of immigration he says:

"During the last 40 years an alien multitude of 16,000,000 has been added to our population, which has raised the percentage of foreign parentage in the United States from 28.2 to 34.3 per cent in 1900. Furthermore, the last ten years, and particularly the last five, since the census was made, have shown marked changes, not only in the astonishing increase in numbers, but even more in the sources of that immigration. Since 1898 the annual increase has been more than 100,000, while for the last twelve months it has been more than 200,000, bringing the total for 1903 to the unprecedented figure of 1,000,000. March registered 93,594; April, 129,632; May, 140,850; and June 101,183. Such figures break all records at the immigration office. Think of it, a million aliens in a single year!"

But the present sources of this immigration are more important than the actual figures. Mr. Ives says:

"It is no longer the north of Europe which is sending these vast multitudes to our shores. In large proportion they now come from southern Europe; from Italy, Sicily, Sardinia; from Austria-Hungary, with its 13 different kinds of people; from Poland and Russia; from Turkey, Greece and Portugal.

Poor, Superstitious and Hostile to State.

"During 10 months of 1903 69 per cent of the immigration to this country came from Italy, Austria-Hungary and Russia, a total of 540,827 out of a total immigration of 788,132. These people of Italy, Austria and Dussia are poor, superstitious, ignorant and indifferent, if not hostile, to all forms of church and state. The oppressions of church and state have driven them forth. Of those over 14 years of age in last year's immigration, 28.7 per cent were illiterate. It is an enormous burden on the body politic. It is the unsolved problem of our free institutions. We have absorbed into our Americanism the Saxon, the Celt and the German; it remains to be determined what we can do with the Latin, Slav and Hun. We point with pride to our past, but what shall be said of New Haven, with a quarter of its people Italians and Hebrews; of Fall River or Woonsocket, where almost nine out of every ten people are of foreign parentage?

"While a good many of these immigrants are going West, it still remains a fact that an increasing number are coming into New England. They only average $16 among them—the southern Italians only $10—and therefore in their poverty they are perforce precipitated on our shores. In 1870 New England was 30 per cent foreign; in 1900 it was 48 per cent foreign. In 1870 Rhode Island Massachusetts and Connecticut were 41.5 per cent allen; in 1900 those three states alone were 61.3 per cent foreign born. These three states are therefore more than three-fifths of foreign parentage. If three generations should be counted, hardly more than one-quarter of southern New England would be native."

PLUCKY GIRLS OUTWIT MEN.

Adopt Unique Method of Preventing Erection of 'Phone Pole.

CINCINNATI, O., April 14.—By the quick wit and courage of two pretty girls the telephone company was prevented from erecting a pole in the alley in the rear of 708 Kenyon avenue.

Mrs. L. H. Reed owns the place, and, after the workmen had dug a deep hole in the "shot gravel," it seemed to undermine the foundation of her house, and she complained to City Electrician Weissleder and Building Inspector Tooker. These officials hurried to the place, but declared the foundation would not be affected after the pole was in the ground. They departed and the workmen commenced digging.

As soon as the hole was completed one of the men jumped in, as he feared the woman or her daughters might throw an obstacle into it. To his surprise, the two handsome girls sprang into the hole after him and refused to get out. The man climbed out and left the girls holding the fort. Only the heads of the young ladies were above ground. The other men had the pole ready to put into the hole, but could not do so without injuring the girls.

The scene attracted a large crowd, and excitement ran high. At this juncture City Electrician Weissleder returned and, sizing up the situation, advised the foreman of the laborers to give it up and erect the pole elsewhere. The plucky girls refused to get out of the hole until assured that it would be filled up with dirt at once, which was done, amid the cheers of the amused spectators.

SUPPOSED VICTIM OF INDIANS ALIVE

CLINTON, Io., April 14.—Like the last act of a weird melodrama is the reappearance, after 30 years, of George Patterson, long believed to have been slain by Indians in 1874 while driving from here to California over the old Santa Fe trail.

Patterson is alive and well, and there will be a reunion between him and his brother in a short time.

The fact that Patterson is alive was made known through a letter received here by Chief of Police Rundgren from Miss Henrietta aPtterson, a daughter of the man so long believed to be dead, who wrote that her father wanted to find his only brother, Edward B. Patterson, from whom he had not heard for several years.

Several months after George Patterson departed for California, in an old style "prairie schooner," news was received here by his family that he had been killed by Indians and all his property had been lost. As the years passed and no word was heard from him the story was accepted as true, and no one doubted that such ha been his fate.

But he was not dead. He had had a fight with Indians, but was rescued by a party of soldiers before the redskins had time to complete their work of murder, and he reached California safely, settling down in Santa Barbara County, where he now has a large ranch. He married and had one child, the grown-up daughter who recently worte Chief Rundgern.

ARMY OF IRISH GIRLS COMING.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The springtide of Irish immigration, which ususally sets in May 1, began the last week in March this year, and the first week in April showed unusually large number of immigrants from the green isle.

As a rule about 60 per cent of the Irish who come over during the spring months are girls between the ages of 15 and 30, and many of these are compelled to stay in New York from two to three days, awaiting friends who call for them or provide for forwarding them to their destinations. All such Irish girls are paroled by the immgration authorities in care of the Ellis Island agent of the mission of Our Lady of the Rosary, and are cared for at the home until called for.

During the week, beginning Monday, five ships are due here from British ports with a total of nearly 5000 Irish immigrants. This probably will mean that for one or two days at least this week from 200 to 300 Irish girls will be cared for at the home over night. Father Henry, director of the mission, has arranged with families of his parish to give shelter to all whom the home proper cannot accommodate.

350 HORSES NOW AT UNION TRACK

Pronta Breezed a Quarter in :25—Dr. Carrick's Mile in 1:45 the Best for the Distance So Far.

Additions to the horses stabled at the Union Jockey Club have been numerous. Over 350 horses are now stabled at the track. Sam Morton got in Wednesday with Dodie S., C. G. Campbell, Jerome, Neko, Eggnog and Double O. The last named is a jumper. Jerome is a 2-year-old, by Juvenal and rated only 10 pounds a poorer colt than Pinkerton, Barney Schreiber's crack. Jerome, unfortunately, arrived sick. The long journey from Los Angeles to St. Louis was too much for him.

D. E. Forth also arrived Wednesday from Los Angeles, with Pat Bulger, the crack sprinter; M. F. Tarpey, Jim Gore II and five 2-year-olds. Bulger is a 1:13 horse with 105 pounds up, and held Golden Rule safe when in receipt of 10 pounds. Tarpey is a 1:40 horse with about 100 pounds in the saddle.

Labor, who is out of The Task, the dam of the great Sain, came with D. Rogers' string. Labor is by Montana, once owned by Marcus Daly, who won the Suburban handicap with him in 1892. He is a chestnut gelding, a slow beginner and a lover of a distance. His best route is a mile and an eighth.

Mr. Rogers has a nice lot of maiden 2 and 3-year-olds by Amigo and Rey El Santa Anita. He also brought Kern and Ella Owen, a 2-year-old of fair class. Secretary Tozier thinks that Tom Hurns' has the best sprinter in St. Louis in Col. Bogey, a Crescendo colt. This 3-year-old took three pounds from Golden Rule and beat him at Ascot Park. Col. Bogey won four straight races. Such a good horse as Rag Tag was easy for him.

E. Dealy arrived from the Fair Grounds with The Four Hundred, Five Nations, El Rey, Faice, Haggard and others. Ed L., a famous local sprinter, was one of the party.

Peter McCue, a well-known short-bred sprinter from the Illinois bushes, is represented as a sire at the Union Jockey track by Cherry Ripe and Nilmah G. In his 2-year-old form Peter was a great sprinter on the Chicago tracks.

In Adams, Calvit, Willie Waldo and Jimmie Boland the Union club has at least four jockeys who will compare favorably with the average riders who made St. Louis their headquarters in past seasons. E. Austin, Wapshire, Creim Heidel, Morper and Welton are lesser lights at the track.

"Kid" Delaney, who assisted Caldwell and Charlie Weber, a former assistant of Dick Dwyer, will be Arthur McKnight's men at the barrier.

Superintendent Nepper says that 0:25 is the best quarter made at the Union Jockey Club so far. Pronta did the work. Dr. Carrick's mile in 1:45 is the best mile we have also far.

J. Taylor, the negro rider who made a name for himself on the local tracks last season, has cast his lot with the Union Jockey Club. Taylor was considered a coming Isaac Murphy until he got a fall off Harry Griffith at the Fair Grounds. That accident took all the heart out of him. Thereafter he invariably took to the outside rail when the barrier went up.

Poolrooms in New Orleans are still undecided whether they will take the Union track results or not. Opinion is about evenly divided on the matter. A caucus of poolroom keepers will be held Thursday noon to decide what action will be taken in the matter.

It has heretofore been the custom on western racetracks that the bookmakers should collectively subscribe for one race on the daily program. This practice will not obtain at the Union Jockey Club. Bookmakers will be expected to pay $100 and no more. This is quite a concession to the pencillers.

M'KINLEY HIGH ATHLETIC BOOM

Things are progressing smoothly in an athletic way at the McKinley High School and the boys of that institution are exerting every effort to have the school come to the front in all branches of sport.

To this end Vice-Principal William Schuyler, who promoted athletics at the Central High School and who was responsible in a large measure for the remarkable showing which that school has made in athletics in the past few years, called a meeting last Wednesday for the purpose of forming an athletic association.

About 150 boys were present at the meeting and they unanimously selected Prof. Schuyler as director-in-chief of athletics.

Mr. Schuyler made a short address to the students in which he outlined plans and made several suggestions for organizing. Two managers have been selected in each branch of sport, one a faculty manager and the other a student manager.

Prof. C. H. Slater has been appointed faculty manager of field and track sports and O. Krutzsch has been chosen a student manager in this branch. Prof. R. G. Hoffsten is faculty manager of baseball and William Hilmer, student manager. Prof. S. H. Moore is faculty manager of football and O. J. Miller student manager.

A committee has been appointed to draw up a constitution and next week a meeting will be held to elect officers.

RACING SEASON TO OPEN FRIDAY WITH TWO INAUGURALS

Rivalry Between Union Club and Fair Grounds Has Drawn More Thoroughbreds to the City Than Ever Before and Excellent Programs Are Announced.

The racing season of 1904 will open at St. Louis tomorrow. It will, unquestionably, be the greatest season of sport ever seen in this city.

There are more thoroughbreds in St. Louis just now than ever before in its history.

The Fair Grounds and the Union will be the scene of operations.

They are rival institutions and will cater to public support by giving good programs.

Both tracks are easy of access, and although Friday is counted an unlucky day, both tracks expect a large crowd.

GOOD HORSES AT THE FAIR GROUNDS

A Fine Lot of Three-Year-Olds Now in Training for the Opening of the Local Racing Season.

Nearly every horse that is destined to play an important part at the meeting is already quartered at the Fair Grounds track. J. W. Schorr, G. C. Bennett, T. H. Stevens, Barney Schreiber, Ed Trotter, L. S. Sire, Mose Goldblatt, J. K. Hughes and other prominent owners, arrived with their stables within the past week. A list of the best 3-year-olds and upward at the Fair Grounds will be found below:

Flying Torpedo, Deutschland, Rainland, Dutiful, Vestry, Charlie Thompson, Scorpio, Dan Reader, Sambo, Jack Young, Gravina, Claremont, Tony Lepping, Harmakis, Mauser, Ralph Young, First Mason, Malster, Worthington, The Regent, Sylvia Talbot, Duellist, Van Ness, Imboden, Joe Lesser, Paul Whaley, Caithness, Dr. Kier, Autumn Leaves, Frank Bell, Velos, Clonmell, Omdurman, Edgardo, Aucke, Jordan, Hetzel.

Jockeys W. Fisher, Jenkins, D. Austin and Crawford are the best riders at the Fair Grounds. Other good boys will probably show up in time to ride Friday. Fisher is with the Schorr stable, Jenkins rides for Mose Goldblatt, Crawford is under contract to Pat Civill and D. Austin is Tom Hayes' jockey.

The handsomest and raciest looking 2-year-olds at the Fair Grounds are in John W. Schorr's barn. The Memphis brewer has eight youngsters in training here in charge of Louis Tauber, who handled the Schorr stable at New Orleans last winter. The names and breeding of the Schorr juveniles will be of interest to followers of the sport. The list follows:

Charley's Aunt, br. f., 2, by St. Florian—Derelict.
Little Harry, b. c., 2, by Lieber Karl—Margaret A.

T. H. Stevens, proprietor of the Walnut Hill stud in Kentucky, has a string of splendidly bred 2-year-olds at the Fair Grounds. Stevens bred Wyeth, winner of the American Derby in 1901. Among the 2-year-olds in the string Stevens will handle this season is a half sister to Wyeth. Her name is Alice Platt and she is by Gov. Foraker. A complete list of the 2-year-olds in the Stevens stable follows:

BATTLE SHIP BELL AT FAIR.

The bell for the battleship Missouri, which cost about $1200 and was paid for by popular subscription, is locked in a room of the Missouri state building at the World's Fair. It has not been unpacked.

It will be placed on a pedestal about four feet from the floor in the educational department of the State building, and will be rung at intervals during the day, no stated times being announced. The bell is about four feet high and about three feet across at the mouth. It weighs about three hundred pounds, is gray in color and was made in Philadelphia of the finest bell metal obtainable.

CENTRAL HIGH WON.

The Central High School team played its first game of the season yesterday afternoon on the High School grounds in Forest Park with the St. Louis Medical College Club, winning from the Medics by a score of 3 to 2.

CARDINALS OPEN WITH PIRATES

First of the Series of Three Games Will Be Played Here Friday—Probable Battery Order.

The Pirates arrived in St. Louis Thursday morning for the opening series with the Cardinals, beginning Friday afternoon.

With the exception of four players the full team is now at the Southern Hotel and the absent four will report from Hot Springs today or tomorrow. They are Smith, Pfiester, Scanlon and Leever.

President Dreyfuss and Secretary Locke came in Wednesday night, and the entire club will attend the game between the Browns and the Tigers at Sportsman's Park this afternoon.

"The men are all in the best possible condition," said President Dreyfuss, "and I think that we ought to bring the ribbon to the Smoky City again next fall. We have opened every season for the last four with Phillippe in the box and we are not going to take any chances on breaking the charm. He will pitch in the opening game with the Cardinals tomorrow."

"I have followed the interleague series in St. Louis last week with a great deal of interest and from what I can see the Cardinals must be a very strong aggregation. Their batting is marvelous but that will, of course, fall off when the air gets warmer and the pitchers loosen up. If they keep up anything like the gait they have struck they will give us a good run for our money."

Manager Nichols stated Thursday morning that Jack Taylor will probably pitch the first game of the race against Pittsburg tomorrow.

"I'm glad that we get the champions first," said the local leader. "And I think that we have a good chance to get the odd game. They will have to play baseball to get this series."

The batting order of the two teams will probably be as follows:

Pittsburg—	St. Louis—
Beaumont cf.	Farrell 2b.
Clarke lf.	Shannon rf.
Leach 3b.	Smoot cf.
Wagner ss.	Beckley 1b.
Bransfield 1b.	Shay ss.
Sebring rf.	Burke 3b.
Ritchie 2b.	Barclay lf.
Phelps c.	Byers c.
Phillipe p.	Taylor p.

DEUTSCHLAND IS FAVORITE FOR THE KINLOCH INAUGURAL

KINLOCH INAUGURAL STARTERS

Horses.	Weight.	Probable Jockeys.	Probable Odds.
Sambo	115	Crawford	4
The Regent	112	Jenkins	5-2
*Paul Whaley	109	Dominick	5
Deutschland	111	Mountain	8-5

*Palm Reader	95	McKinney	5
Imboden	93	J. Hennessy	15
Lucian	90	Bridewell	20
Edgardo	98	L. Wilson	25

*Coupled in betting.

The Fair Grounds track has improved to such an extend during the past 24 hours that horsemen predicted this morning that the winner of the Inaugural would have to negotiate the mile in 1:41 or better.

Pat Civill, the owner of Sambo, said the track had improved five seconds since Wednesday. All hands admitted that the Inaugural mile would be covered in better than 1:42 unless it rained between now and the running of the race.

The Inaugural was the sole topic of comment at the track this morning. The announcement that Jockey Dominick would ride Paul Whaley was the cause of much surprise. It was generally understood that Eddie would have the mount on Deutschland. Herman Brandt paraded Deutschland on the track this morning. He said he was looking for a rider for the Schreiber horse. George Mountain, who has been engaged to ride for Schreiber, has not put in appearance yet.

The Regent, who promises to divide favoritism in the betting with Dutchland, worked a full mile this morning, accompanied by Rainland, in 1:45 and a fraction. It is considered the best trial for the race, although Lucian is said to have negotiated the distance in 1:45 and a fraction Wednesday. Lucian is a 3-year-old in Lon Johnson's stable. He won his only two starts last season.

Pat Cavill's Sambo looks well and has been moving nicely. On his eastern form of 1903 he has a royal chance of carrying off the Inaugural. Duelist will represent Schorr in the race, and ought to be a serious factor in the contest. This horse ran an impressive race in the Montgomery at Memphis. Fisher will ride him. Crawford will have the mount on Sambo.

Willie Cole has engaged Johnny Hennessy to pilot Imboden in the Inaugural. McKinney will ride Palm Reader. Paul Whaley's stable mate. Paul Whaley and Palm Reader will be coupled as U. Z. De Arman's entry. Both horses displayed rare form at Hot Springs. The fact that De Arman has wired for Dominick to ride Paul Whaley would indicate that he thought pretty well of the horse's prospects in the race.

Jockey D. Austin arrived from Nashville Wednesday and will ride Jordan in case Tom Hayes ships the horse here for the Inaugural. Should Jordan fail to arrive, D. Austin may ride Deutschland for Schreiber.

TOM SHARKEY UNDER ARREST

Accused of Being Timekeeper at a Prize Fight Raided by the New York Police.

NEW YORK, April 14.—Thomas Sharkey was arrested last night for his alleged connection with the prize fight that was raided by the police yesterday morning at Sixty-fifth street and Broadway.

He was placed in a cell, where he remained about 20 minutes, when "Tom" O'Rourke gave $500 bail for his appearance in court.

It is said by the police that Sharkey was the timekeeper and was one of those who managed to escape when the raid was made.

MAY CUT A WATERMELON.

T. H. Stevens, the man who developed Wyeth and other turf stars, will attempt to "cut a watermelon" in the Gayoso Hotel stakes at Montgomery Park Saturday with Barkley, a 3-year-old maiden. Stevens has his entire stable quartered at the Fair Grounds.

Barkley has been moving great guns in his morning trials. Stevens and all his friends were so impressed with Barkley's trials that the colt was bundled on a train last night and shipped to Memphis. The Gayoso Hotel stakes will be worth about $3000 to the winner. Barkley will probably be a 20 to 1 shot in the betting, as he never has won a race, and nobody at Memphis thinks he has a chance to carry off the Gayoso prize.

CORNELL CREWS IN A BAD WAY

Epidemic of Illness in the Boat House Darkens the Hopes of the University.

ITHACA, N. Y., April 14.—The bright prospects for the Cornell University boat crews have been darkened somewhat by an epidemic of illness in the boathouse.

Coach Courtney is confined to his home with a severe cold, at least four of last year's varsity men are sick, and half a score of candidates are complaining of colds or stomach troubles.

Brandlow, Foote, Nutting and Ballinger of the 1903 victorious crew may not be able to row again for some time.

HARVARD SENIORS WIN INTERCLASS ROWING CONTEST.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 14.—The senior rowing club of Harvard won the interclass rowing race, which was rowed over a one and seven-eighths miles straightaway course on the Charles river yesterday afternoon. They made the distance in 12 minutes and 32 seconds. The juniors finished second, the sophomores third and the law school fourth.

In the interclub race the Weld sophomores defeated the Weld seniors. The same course was rowed over in this race and the time made was 13 minutes and 43 seconds.

EXPERTS PICK O'BRIEN TO WIN HIS FIGHT WITH TWIN SULLIVAN

William Clark, the "Belfast Chicken," champion pugilist of the old school of fighting, will also write exclusively for the Post-Dispatch his impressions of the O'Brien-Sullivan fight, and compare the methods of the old and new styles of boxing.

"Philadelphia" Jack O'Brien and Jack ("Twin") Sullivan will decide at the West End Club tonight which one is to have the honor of forcing Tommy Ryan to fight for the middleweight title or retire from the stage.

Experts generally agree that Ryan cannot avoid fighting the winner of tonight's battle at the West End Club and the chance for the title is enough to make both men put up the fight of their lives.

Sullivan and O'Brien have been training in the country and will weigh at 3 o'clock in their own training camps in the presence of witnesses. There is no doubt that both will make the weight and Sullivan will probably be several pounds under the mark.

The fight is generally "doped" this way: O'Brien will win on points or lose on a knockout. Though Sullivan has worked hard for speed he will meet a cyclone tonight and will naturally be slow in comparison. Besides O'Brien is as foxy a ring general as Fitz, and while he has stopped many a knockout punch he has always managed to come back and hang on to the end of the round. That is, however, Sullivan's best chance to win. If it goes the limit O'Brien, it is believed, will get the decision.

Most of the local experts give O'Brien the fight, but the Sullivan-Kelly fight has made them a trifle uneasy and most of them protect themselves against accidents.

"Brooklyn Tommy" Sullivan: O'Brien for mine always until he meets Tommy Ryan, and then I refuse to guess.

Bob Douglas: The straight left and the brainy ring work will win again unless O'Brien gives Sullivan the same chance that he gave Mike Schreck in the second round.

Johnny Regan—I always like the boxer, but that man Sullivan is a tougher proposition than I thought until he beat Hugo Kelley. O'Brien will have to be careful of his punch. But if he sticks to boxing he will win with his head.

Mal Doyle: It will be one of the best fights we ever had in St. Louis and may the best man win. It looks like a pretty even thing, but O'Brien has a way of avoiding a knockout that ought to pull him through.

Jack McKenna: O'Brien should win on points and I am willing to give any man the better of the odds that he will. I don't think that he would be a bad bet against Ryan.

SANDERS WON FOR THE VETS

A few shivering fans watched a good game between the Veterans and the Colts of the Cardinals at League Park Wednesday afternoon. The Veterans nosed out a victory with considerable luck by a score of 1 to 0.

The Colts had men on bases in nearly every inning and had several golden opportunities to score, but failed to hit at the proper time. Taylor would have scored in the seventh with the tieing run, but he was called out because Grady ran down the line from third with him in violation of the rule.

Starnagel caught for the Colts and did some excellent work. His throwing to the bases was perfect. McLean at shortstop for the Colts was the joke of the day. He went out after base hits and fielded them, then tried to throw the ball over the grand stand.

Taylor worked for the Colts in the opening innings and was followed by Dunleavy.

Pool and Billiards.

Albert Howe was defeated by Edward Dowd in the state pool championship tournament at the Broadway last night by a score of 100 to 59. Frank Ely and Walter Alooke will play tonight. Hook defeated Clayton in the class B three-cushion tournament last night, 25 to 21.

GEIER TO PLAY WITH BOSTON

CINCINNATI, April 14.—The National Baseball Commission, through Chairman Herrmann, handed down several important decisions yesterday.

In the case of the claim of the Colorado Springs club for the services of Outfielder H. G. Lumley, playing with Brooklyn, the commission decided against the claim.

In the several contentions of the Boston National League team, it was decided that Phil Geier either would have to play with Boston or not at all.

A similar decision was given in the case of Pitcher Bressler, with the addenda that the Boston club might suspend him indefinitely in order not to be held for salary under the contract which Bressler had signed.

The club's request for advice in the Joe Bean case was answered with the reply that Bean could play nowhere but with Boston.

Jeffries Arrives in Oakland.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 14.—Champion Jim Jeffries arrived in Oakland last night, accompanied by his manager, Billy Delaney. Kid Eagan and Joe Kennedy. In a few days he will leave for Harbin Springs, where he will begin training for his coming battle with Jack Monroe on June 1.

An endless number of men have one or more of the above symptoms and drag from day to day in despair of a prosperous, happy future, and well they may, for if neglected their health is sure to be wrecked by a complete loss of physical, mental and sexual power.

CHAS. A. DUFF, M. D.

My method completely and permanently revives manhood after "cure-all" remedies and "quick-cure" specialists fail to even benefit.

My scientific, systematic course of treatment for weak, nervous, broken-down youths and men, who have, through folly, dissipation and excesses, unfitted themselves for work and the enjoyment of life, is a system that has been tested many times over and proven entirely satisfactory in every case. It is totally different from the many sickening pills and tablets, and the stimulating stomach-ruining drugs given by would-be specialists. My specific treatment for all the symptoms indicating Failing Manhood is harmless, though so effective as to remove them immediately. It is constitutional; therefore, by purifying and enriching the blood, strengthening the nervous system, nourishing the tissues, the patient becomes strong and healthy, with all signs of the trouble forever gone. This treatment is to the human system what the sap is to the tree—it buds energy, ambition and confidence that leaf into a prime, healthy, manly feeling of new life.

NO CURE, NO PAY.—Absolutely no charge unless satisfaction is given. Every patient is given a written guarantee to refund every dollar paid for services in a specified length of time if they do not recieve a complete lifelong cure and entire satisfaction, and my well-known financial standing is sufficient evidence to anyone that I am entirely resposible for any contract that is not fulfilled.

Consultation Free, Confidential and Invited, both at office and by correspondence. Successful treatment by mail. Terms are always made to suit the convenience of any one applying for treatment, and very reasonable charges. Do not treat elsewhere until you have investigated my methods and terms. POST-DISPATCH DAILY RECORD OF DOINGS IN MARKET AND FINANCIAL WORLD

MARKET SOLD LOWER TOWARDS THE CLOSE

Lack of Buying Power and a Small Bank Failure Gave the Bears Ammunition for Their Campaign.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The market opened quiet and featureless this morning, with price changes very narrow. London came stronger and with buying orders aggregating about 20,000 shares. As had been expected, the Bank of England discount rate has been reduced to 3½ from 4 per cent, which had been the rate for several months. Traders figure that this should encourage more foreign buying and consequently reflect favorably in our market.

There was a scarcity of news at the opening, the main topic of gossip being the expected decision in the Northern Securities case, which, it was announced, would be handed down at 11 o'clock, New York time. As this was supposed to cut considerable figure in the stock market, traders naturally held back until word was received from St. Paul.

Baltimore & Ohio showed good strength yesterday and again this morning. The increase in the dividend rate of Reading second preferred was the main cause of the strength, the Baltimore & Ohio being a considerable holder of Reading stock.

The payment of the last dividend on Steel preferred is receiving some criticism, as it appears that under present conditions it will be necessary for the company to postpone its plans of general improvements for the present.

The trading of the first half hour was light and the prices showed no material changes in that time.

The opening prices and changes were as follows: Copper 50⅝, decline ¼; Atchison 74¼, unchanged; Baltimore & Ohio 80⅝, unchanged; Brooklyn 47¼, advance ¼; Erie 26¾, advance ⅛; Louisville & Nashville 109¼, advance ¼; Missouri Pacific, 93⅞, decline ⅛; Pennsylvania 119¼, advance ⅛; Reading 45½, advance ⅛; St. Paul 145⅝, advance ⅛; Southern Pacific 50, advance ⅜; Union Pacific 86⅞, advance ¼; Steel common 11½, unchanged; Steel preferred 61⅜, advance ¼.

The announcement that there would be no decision in the Northern Securities case today had little effect on the market and again places conditions where the brokers have something yet to worry about.

National Lead, usually an inactive issue, woke up today and under what seemed to be pool operations the stock was lifted to 19¾ on active trading. No new developments appeared on the floor to account for the advance.

The sales to noon aggregated 206,500 shares, with money on call easy at 1½ per cent.

Prospects of further legal complications in the Copper suit were noted and the stock was on the decline on the rumors that injunctions would be asked that would suspend operations of some of the properties.

Now that the decision is postponed, the gossips are busy with stories that there will shortly be announced a close traffic alliance between the Union Pacific and St. Paul lines. Rockefeller interests are known to be heavily identified with both roads, and such an alliance would be in the range of possibilities.

The market pursued an erratic course during the afternoon, first selling off and then displaying some hardening tendencies, but a lack of absorbing power developed, and the condition was taken hold of by the bears with an attack on the entire list.

The announcement that the Federal bank, a small institution, had been taken in charge by the state banking officers served to supply additional ammunition, and the entire list was lower.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 14.—Insignificant gains were made of first sales of stocks today, and the small dealings showed a languid interest in the market. Union Pacific moved up an eighth and then ran off a fraction. Gains of ⅜ in Southern Pacific and Mexican stocks represented the maximum changes.

Postponement of the decision on the petition to intervene in the Northern Securities case induced some short covering and a sluggish advance. Later, prices sank to below last night's level on very slight offerings. St Louis Southwestern preferred and General Electric rose a point and Anaconda and United States Rubber preferred lost as much.

Bonds at noon were firm, except the United States Steel 2d 5s.

After a brief period of hesitation the tendency upward became sharply defined. Southern Pacific led, and was followed b Southern Pacific led and was followed by the Lead stocks and Reading second preferred. The borrowing of these benefited them from 1 to 2 points, with the chief gains in Reading second preferred. Consolidated Gas rose 2¾. The market in general advanced a small fraction and then halted.

Selling became more urgent and in larger volume. Standard stocks were the most affected and but little resistance was offered at any point. Union Pacific, United States Steel preferred and Manhattan yielded a point, and Virginia-Carolina Chemical and Long Island two.

After Amalgamated had been driven down a point the general selling ceased and the market hardened. The buying, however, was too scanty, and the market lapsed into stagnation.

TRACTION ISSUES REMAIN INACTIVE

Dealings in Local Stocks Are Mainly in the Trust Company Section.

MISSOURI TRUST WAS HIGHER

United Railways Preferred Regained Yesterday's Loss and Sold at $54.

The market at the opening session of the local stock exchange showed a continuation of the demand for the trust company issues. Tractions continued to be neglected and the trading in that section was confined to a sale of United Railways preferred at $54, a gain over the price of yesterday.

St. Louis-Union Trust moved up another peg this morning and sold at $320, with that price bid for more. Missouri also scored an advance, the prices of today's sales at the morning session being $116.50 and $116.75, with the latter price bid for more. National Bank of Commerce was smartly advanced, $288 being bid during the session. Title Guaranty Trust was on the down turn, a sale at $56 being followed by one at $55, with offerings at $54 when the bell sounded.

Miscellaneous issues were much neglected.

REVIEW OF THE IRON TRADE.

Production Rapidly Getting Back to the Normal Rate.

NEW YORK, April 14.—Reports dealing with anthracite and coke blast furnaces show, says the Iron Age, the production is rapidly getting back to the normal rate. It reached 1,465,507 tons in March, as compared with 921,231 tons in January and 846,695 tons in December, the low record month. Important plants have been added to the active list since the opening of the month, with others to follow before May 1.

The lion's share of the increased output is due to the great steel companies, which increased their production from 406,730 tons in December to 913,412 tons in March.

In spite of an increase in the production of the merchant furnaces, the stocks of pig-iron in their hands declined from 597,904 tons Jan. 1 to 455,673 tons April 1. This in striking proof of the increase in the consumption of the past quarter, a rallying in the rate of home requirements, which is all the more surprising since it has not been accompanied by any notable increase in the exports.

It is in the light of these developments that we must interpret the fact that the United States Steel Corporation has declined to exercise its option for the purchase of 40,000 tons of Bessemer pig, which has weakened the market somewhat.

It is intimated also that the rate at which outside furnaces were blowing in to make metal for the steel producers was considered too rapid for the good of the future of the industry.

Others in the trade coupled the refusal to avail itself of the options with the continuance of the ore association, which is to be taken up on the 19th inst.

Little interest attaches to the action of the billet association, which is of minor importance nowadays, with the restricted market for steel in crude form. It is interesting to note as bearing on the international market that the official prices established by the German steel syndicate are 74 marks for billets, 71 marks for blooms and 76 marks for sheet bars, all f. o. b. Antwerp, for delivery during the second quarter. This represents a moderate advance.

There is little to report concerning the markets for finished iron and steel. Rail road purchases are slightly larger, but still remain far below normal. In the East the outlook for a large business in structural material is good, provided labor matters continue to improve. From the Chicago district come rather discouraging reports in this branch. One factor in the situation is looming up, and that is the entry into the market of the large new plant at Buffalo.

In the bar trade employment is active and some of the implement makers of the central West are negotiating for the second quarter's requirements of merchant steel. Sheets are irregular, while the ship and wire trades continue to do a heavy business.

BEARS DID THE BULLING

Heavy Buying by Shorts Advanced Price of Wheat and Other Grain.

CLOSE WAS NOT SO STRONG

Further gains in price were made in speculative grain today, the close at advances of ½c for wheat, ⅜c for corn and ½c for oats. Chicago furnished most of the bull news and action to impress the outside markets, and announced that another bull campaign had been started. This will probably end as have most of them—that is, when the shorts have been driven in. If it is an attempt to draw in outside speculation it will hardly pan out, after the throw-down the outsiders received on that dollar boom. So far as wheat goes and the local market is concerned, the country is a seller. Crop damage, on which the Indiana string was principally played, and a snow storm in the Northwest, were reported conditions that went a long way toward helping the boom in wheat along. The shorts were the principal motive power, however, and it was said a leading St. Louis bear trader was one of them. The market at the close looked as though the shortage had been well cleaned up and needed support to keep up an advance. No improvement in the cash situation was made. Corn and oats were bulled entirely on the strength in Chicago and had neither extensive speculation nor cash demands. Their receipts were small and the scarcity of good grain still notable.

WHEAT—The usual slight or unresponse by foreign markets to America's speculative or crop-scare booms was shown in this morning's cables, Liverpool, after opening ½d higher, easing off ⅛d, while London ⅛d lower and Paris unchanged. The weather, too, showed a disposition to warm up, though still of the chilly kind. But the Indiana state statistician confirmed the statement of an unusually low-conditioned crop, and the Cincinnati Price Current reported some decline in parts of Ohio and Indiana, these having more effect than anything bearishly constructed, especially as all domestic markets opened higher. July opened here at 83¼c, which asked at close of yesterday, and sold up to 83⅝@83½c. September sold ⅛@⅜c higher at 81c. For May 92¾c was bid. Receipts at St. Louis were 11,700 bu, against 37,100 bu one year ago.

Following the early advance came a relapse on a shut off of the more urgent buying. Selling increased, too, in part on country account, and July declined to 82⅞c. May opened at 92½c, sold at 92⅝c and later offered at 92⅜c. Sept. sold at 80⅝c. Reported heavy snows in the Northwest and a backward season, delaying seeding, created an uneasy feeling and on a spurt in Chicago July went up to 83⅝c and Sept. to 81⅝c. It was gossip that a leading short here was buying. Closing cables reported Liverpool ⅜d higher for the day, London ⅛d lower to ⅛d higher, Paris ¼c lower, Berlin unchanged and Budapest ¼c higher. Primary receipts were 242,000 bu, against 236,000 bu a year ago, and shipments 220,000 bu, against 508,000 bu last year. Clearances in flour and wheat were only 36,000 bu.

A final boost was given the market after 12 o'clock, July selling up to 84½c, but a large amount came out for sale that caused a recession to 83½@83⅝c, closing at that. September sold up to 81¾@81⅞c and closed at 81⅝c asked. May sold at 92⅝c and 92½c asked at close. No improvement in cash demand reported, but Broomhall announced smaller Argentine shipments for week.

Cash market—Higher for choice soft winter, but hard winter unchanged and demand still limited, though a better inquiry reported. By sample delivered: No. 2 red at $1.03½ local and $103 destination for nearby. Western nominally 98c@$1; No. 3 red quotable at 95c@$1 and No. 4 at 80@92c; No. 2 hard nominally 91@93c, choice selling at 92½@93c; No. 3 hard sold at 87@87½c and off grade offered at 85c; No. 4 hard sold at 78@81c; No. 3 mixed at 88@91c.

CORN—Weather conditions showed some improvement, the skies clear and temperature rising in the sections where planting delayed, but as Chicago was strong and advanced there was more pressure this morning on the buying than the selling side in the home market. Receipts were small, amounting to 22,600 bu, against 37,800 bu one year ago. Liverpool had advanced ⅜d. July opened ⅜c higher at 48⅞c and September ⅛c better at 47⅞c, soon selling at 47⅞@48c. For May 47⅝c bid.

Bids of 36⅝c for July and 31c for September were made later in the forenoon. Primary receipts were 231,000 bu, against 249,000 bu one year ago and shipments 251,000 bu, against 258,000 bu last year. Clearances were 4000 bu.

Cash market—Firm, the buying mainly for shipment. Basis local—No. 2 at 49½c; No. 3 at 48½c; no grade at 32c; No. 2 white at 50c f. o. b.; No. 3 white at 48½c. Destination—No. 2 at 50c; No. 3 at 48½c; No. 4 at 45c; No. 2 white at 50c; No. 3 white at 48½@49c.

OATS—The absence of speculative interest was still marked in this grain and outside a bid of 39c for May no mention of it in the pit. Weather was more favorable for seeding. Local receipts were 55,300 bu, against 60,750 bu one year ago.

An easing off in price followed, July selling at 48⅛ (offered at 48½@48⅝c), and September at 47¼c, May then offered at 47½c. Later sold subsequently at 47⅝c. Liverpool closed ⅜d higher for the day. Primary receipts were 258,000 bu, against 137,000 bu one year ago, and shipments 207,000 bu, against 765,000 bu last year. Clearances were 106,000 bu.

Later in the day 39½c was bid for May and 37¼c for July.

Cash market—Stronger and a better demand, though confined to local wants. By sample delivered—No. 2 at 42c; No. 3 at 40@41c and colory 42@42½c; No. 4 nominally 37@39c; No. 2 white 45½c No. 3 white at 42¼@44½c; No. 4 white at 41@42c and corn mixed at 38½c; standard at 45c.

Trade Topics.

Assessors' reports, based on the average harvest in past 10 years and made to the Indiana state statistician, indicate poor crop prospects for a wheat crop in that state. Five classifications were made—a normal crop of 100 per cent, a good crop of 90 per cent, a fair crop, 80 per cent; a poor harvest, 70 per cent, and a very poor crop, 60 per cent. The last is the lowest estimate asked for. Reports show, however, that in many townships the harvest will be much less than 60 per cent, some as low as 10 per cent. The statistician estimates the harvest at 55 to 60 per cent.

The Cincinnati Price Current says of crop conditions: "Wheat crop is maintained or slightly improved. Some decline in parts of Indiana and Ohio, but an improvement in the South and West. Oats seeding and plowing much delayed by wet ground. Season one to two weeks late. All grain movement light to moderate. Hog packing for week, 35,000 head, against 310,000 last year.

Yesterday's strength in American markets, together with talk of smaller Argentine shipments, caused a higher opening in Liverpool wheat. Corn was affected by the higher American cables and opened at an advance. Trading neglected, however.

Minneapolis wires: "The snow storm prevailing today through the northwest, in addition to what they have already had, will make seeding very late, even with best of weather from now on."

The decrease in the wheat visible last year for wheat, corresponding with the present, was over 2,806,00 bu. It is doubtful whether [illegible] decrease this week will be a third of that. St. Louis' stock will probably decrease about 250,000 bu.

Minneapolis wired: "Last night's Journal quotes Premier Roblin of Manitoba, who has just been through that country, as saying that in 22 years he had not seen so backward a spring. Much ice and snow still remains and under the most favorable condition seeding will not begin until first week in May.

A St. Louis cordage house representative says that damage reports from Kansas and Oklahoma are exaggerated to a great extent. Liberal sales of twine have been made.

Broomhall estimates the Argentine shipments for week as 3,000,000 bu wheat and 400,000 bu corn. Last week 3,800,000 bu wheat were shipped and a year ago 2,200,000 bu.

FLOUR—A sale for export reported and that of soft winter, too, but as the lot a small one of a special brand and sales of hard winters not possible, the sale was not a bit significant. However, a Hamburg bid was higher and a disposition to buy was evinced that may eventually result in business. Domestic demands are improving. Quotations on soft winter in wood: Patents, $4.90@5 and special brands 20@25c higher; straights, $4.75@4.85; extra fancy, $4.60@4.70; clears, $4@4.25; medium and low grade in jutes: Patents, $4@4.10; straights, $3.80@3.90; clears, $3.10@3.30; lower grades, $2.50@2.75. Spring wheat patents, in bulk, $4.60@4.75.

MILLFEED—Strong, so much smaller are offerings than demands. Basis east track and in 100s, bran salable at 82c for hard or soft winter, latter selling at 82½c; mixed feed at 85c for hard and 87@88c for soft winter; mids at 90c to 95c and fancy $1. At mill bran jobs at 85c and ships at $1.

HAY—Good feeding stock continues to sell quickly at strong prices, as its supply small, but the lower qualities are dull. Market basis east track: Timothy—Choice, $14; No. 1, $12@13.50; No. 2, $9@11; No. 3, $7@9. Clover—$10.50@11 for light and $9@9.50 for heavy mixed. GRAIN MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH

CHICAGO, April 14.—Higher cables and continued reports of unfavorable weather conditions, practically in sections of the Northwest where snow is reported to have fallen, caused a bullish sentiment in wheat today. July opened ⅜c lower to ¼c higher, at 87c to 87⅛c, eased off temporarily to 87⅛c, but again advancing, touched 87⅞c. Receipts at Chicago, Duluth and Minneapolis today were 137 cars, against 125 cars a year ago.

GOOD CHANGE FOR BAD BILL.

Linguist Wins Confidence and Cash of a New Arrival.

Theodore Deutsch, who has been in this country too short a time to speak English, and who lives at 2303 Eugenia street, reported to one of Chief Kiely's police linguists Wednesday night that a stranger at Sixteenth and Market streets had fleeced him out of $100 by giving him a Confederate bill in place of $100 worth of good money. Deutsch said the swindler first addressed him in English, then in French, and when he indicate that he understood neither language, then the confidence man used the tongue of the fatherland, which completely won Deutsch's heart and confidence. He readily accommodated his new-found friend with change for the big bill, and did not discover that he had been duped till he endeavored to buy a pair of gloves with the $100 Confederate note.

FIRE IN BENTON COTTAGE.

Fir edestroyed the residence at 2100 Bellevue avenue, in Benton, which was just being vacated by the family of Herbert B. Calkins, Thursday afternoon.

Until the arrival of the fire department, other property in the neighborhood, including the residence of Judge Thomas P. Bashaw, just across the street, was seriously threatened.

The house which was burned was a frame cottage of eight rooms. No one was on the premises at the time that the fire was discovered, and its origin is a complete mystery to Mr. Calkins and the neighbors.

The interior of the house was completely ruined, and some of the walls will have to be rebuilt.

DONOVAN COMMISSION CO. ON THE MARKETS.

ST. LOUIS, April 14.—It toow one day longer to clear up that speculative shortage in grain than I had looked for, but the crevices and corners were swept out pretty clean and the markets, if anything, are long tonight. Thehre was considerable loading up on the bulge of today and that grain will be for sale on any decline. If it comes loog out for a collopse. The whole line of wheat, corn and oats should be sold. Weather conditions have been the principal bull power. Too many clouds and chilly winds got into the nerves of the people who were shot and when they heard of blizzards blowing through the Northwest they went up in the air. They found the stuff thehre they had sold and grabbed it. About tomorrow they will find that bad weather has slipped off the trolley and nothing stirring in crop damage. The season is late, but a good spell of weather will see a bustle on planting corn and oats and pushing the wheat plant along. I don't see any good in the demands that gets away with the actual stuff.

IMPROVED PROPERTY FOR SALE
14 Words, 20c

Why pay rent when you can own your home? This question has probably been in your mind before. We are here to show you how you can own your home for less than rent. We have a plan whereby we can place you in possession of a home of your choice and give ten, fifteen, twenty or thirty years in which to pay for it.

To Whom It May Concern—This certifies that I am the holder of a property contract in the EQUITABLE HOME ASSOCIATION for $1650 on twenty-year term. That in February, 1903, the said association purchased for me, under my contract, a home at Kansas City, Kan., and gave me possession of it. I am paying each month on my contract $5.36, which is a credit on my home, and I pay $5.51 each month as interest on its purchase price, or it may be considered as rent.
I am well satisfied with my contract and it is giving me a home much cheaper and to a far greater advantage to me than I could get in any other way.
I believe the plan of the association a good one for a man to save his money and secure a home, and that the men in charge of it are reliable and understand their business. Very respectfully, MRS. ANNA SCHRAMM,
No. 639 Northup av., Kansas City, Kan.

We have the original copy of the above (and hundreds of others) at our office open for inspection, or you can write for the particulars direct. In writing these parties we would suggest, out of courtesy, that you inclose a stamp for reply.

RISKS LIFE FOR ENTOMBED DIVER

INVOLVES RACE, WITH DEATH

"Bill" Hoar Still a Prisoner and Probably Dead, Though Air Is Pumped to Him.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEWARK, N. J., April 14.—A more perilous task than that which caused "Bill" Hoar to lose his life at the bottom of the reservoir at Boonton, N. J., will be undertaken by the diver who has undertaken to bring to the surface the body.

While there is little hope that Hoar is alive, the air pumps will be kept going until he is taken out of the reservoir.

The work today will be dangerous in the extreme.

The man has been engaged to close the valve at the bottom of the 90-foot shaft. This valve is designed to stop the water from flowing through the big pipe which now holds the body of "Bill" Hoar fast. It is broken, and in order to repair it Hoar attempted to stop the water by putting in the big wooden ball at the mouth of the pipe. Hoar was asked to go down the shaft and loosen the valve, but declined to do so.

"I prefer to fight it out in the open," he said. "I'll go down to the bottom of the reservoir and stop the mouth of this pipe rather than take my chances in the bottom of a narrow shaft 90 feet deep with a broken valve."

This shaft leads down from the top of the dam to the valve, which is now half open and cannot be closed. Once closed the water cannot pass and the suction that holds Hoar's body will be neutralized and the wooden ball and the body of the man will be released.

The danger of the work today lies in the fact that when the big iron hook, or bonnet, which covers the valve, is taken off water will rush in from the reservoir and fill the shaft, which is only five feet in diameter. It will be a race with these inrushing waters that the man will have to make to safety, retreating up the shaft.

The air pumps are kept going without one instant's cessation. It requires two men to turn the wheel and they work in turns every half hour. When asked if he thought it possible that Hoar was still alive at the bottom of the reservoir, Engineer Honness said:

"I don't think so, but who would take the responsibility of stopping that air pump? So long as we don't know he is dead, the pump will continue to send fresh air into his helmet."

WHISKY A CAUSE OF TYPHOID.

Chicago Doctor Says It Lowers the Resisting Vitality.

CHICAGO, April 14.—Whisky drinking is given as one of the causes of typhoid fever by Dr. George W. Webster, president of the State Board of Health, in an address before the Young Men's Christian Association.

The only safe prevention, Dr. Webster averred, was pure drinking water, the keeping of the digestive system in perfect condition and the maintenance of a high state of vitality.

"Do not drink whisky if you wish to avoid typhoid fever," said Dr. Webster. "It lowers the vitality and prevents perfect digestion. There is nothing more conducive to stomach troubles than whisky. A low vitality and imperfect digestive organs invite typhoid fever."

WHITE ELEPHANTS SCARCE IN SIAM

KEPT IN STATE IN BIG HALL.

Once Each Year They Take Part in State Processions, Arrayed in Gorgeous Trappings.

CHICAGO, April 14.—From Bangkok, Siam, under date of Feb. 2, Eliza R. Scidmore writes to the Chicago Tribune that there is no guide book to Bangkok, no map or plan of the city to be bought and no regular book store to buy one in.

If one wants a guide the hotel proprietors think a minute, and then agree to find someone who knows the way around; or one goes to his consul, who can always send for a Chinese or Siamese who has shown strangers the city's lions after a fashion.

Through the consulate one gets permission to see the great temple within the palace precincts, the Wat Phra Kao, where the famous emerald Buddha is enshrined, and at the same time one sees the four white elephants now in the King's stable—probably the last of their line.

After the dust and noise, and untidy houses, and general offensiveness of the Chinese quarter, the City of the King, with broad streets and spaces, gardens of shrubbery and whitewashed walls, comes to one as a glimpse of paradise. One dismounts at a fantastic, spirited gateway in the immaculate white wall of the palace and passes into the great outer court—a lawn on one side, the buildings of the ministers of the interior, of the foreign office and the treasury on the other.

Young Trees Are Trained Like Umbrellas.

Young trees, clipped and trained like the storied umbrellas of priests and royalty, stand along the pathway, and on one of the stone-flagged inner courts are the stables of the sacred animals, who have given name and coat of arms, symbol and standard of Siam.

We all know now that one shall not find the "white" elephant really white—as white as a white rat, a white fox, or a white polar bear. The four "white" elephants now in attendance at the palace are a good mouse color—as gray as a Maltese cat, perhaps, shading to a pinkish flesh color at the ends of the ears, where they are speckled and freckled as if with some skin disorder.

Each beast occupies a great, roomy, vaulted hall to itself; each one stands on a square pedestal or platform, and each one that I saw was tethered by one, two or three legs, according to his disposition, to as many stout posts sunk in the floor.

The first elephant we came to was tied fast by three feet. He swung his trunk and rested from one foot to the other in an unpleasant way.

The keeper crawled out of his sleepy corner and gave a bunch of green fodder to the elephant, and the animal turned its small, yellow, wall eye more amiably to the light.

The next elephant was the same spotty, leprous-looking creature, but more peaceful in disposition, and the third one was best looking of all. This pretty Maltese gray beast tossed its trunk in salute and banged its forehead loudly, and several bunches of greens went to it in reward.

None of the caparisons of state, the harness, howdahs, or clothes was visible in the great halls where the beasts kept state.

Fourth Was Most Vicious of All.

The fourth and last elephant in line was warranted most savage and vicious of all, and a long distance look from the doorway was enough, for the elephant was swinging his trunk and fidgeting from one foot to another and the keeper had a wild eye and the look of one drugged to a dangerous point.

The stables are clean and well kept, spacious and airy, and the animals are carefully tended and fed, exercised within the palace grounds, and rarely, more rarely each year, given part in state processions.

The elephant, and especially the white elephant, being sacred to Buddha, was held in the greatest reverence in all these Buddhist provinces and petty kingdoms of further India, and their possession was a matter of great pride and rivalry. Now that the other kingdoms have fallen and gone, and only in Siam does a native dynasty and a Buddhist believer rule, the sacred white animal makes his last stand here.

The last addition to the royal stables was made five years ago, when a faded and speckled elephant was found in the Laos country, in the north, and brought down to Bangkok in great state and received with all the time honored ceremonies by the King, clergy and all the court following.

STORK LIKES NAME OF QUINN

Of Three Families Bearing It in One City, Two Get Twins and Third Triplets.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., April 14.—There are several Quinn families at South Scranton and recently in three of their homes things have happened which forced the other Quinns into a speculative mood.

A short time ago, Charles Quinn of Prospect avenue smilingly handed his friends two cigars each. Twins had arrived.

Dr. M. H. Quinn, who officiated at the births, twitted the proud father, who had only to wait a few days to make a pat rejoinder. Twins arrived at the doctor's home.

On Monday of this week Thomas Quinn of Stone avenue, called Dr. Quinn on a matter of importance and waited anxiously downstairs to hear the results.

"I'll give you three guesses," said the doctor.

"A girl, then?"

The doctor shook his head again.

"You don't mean to say its twins?"

"No," said the doctor, still smiling.

"Well, my gracious, what has happened, then?" cried the father.

"Triplets," said the doctor; "two girls and a boy."

SLEEPING VOLCANOES

A thin, vapory smoke, lazily ascending from its crater, may be the only visible sign of life in the sleeping volcano; but within is a raging sea of fire, molten rock and sulphurous gases. Those who make their homes in the peaceful valleys below know the danger, and though frequently warned by the rumblings and quakings, these signs of impending eruption go unheeded. They are living in fancied security, when the giant awakes with deafening roars, and they are lost beneath a downpour of heated rock and scalding ashes. Thousands of blood poison sufferers are living upon a sleeping volcano, and are taking desperate chances, for under the mercury and potash treatment the external symptoms of the disease disappear, and the deluded victim is happy in the belief of a complete cure; but the fires of contagion have only been smothered in the system, and as soon as these minerals are left off will blaze up again. Occasional sores break out in the mouth, a red rash appears on the body, and these warning symptoms, if not heeded, are soon followed by fearful eruptions, sores, copper-colored splotches, swollen glands, loss of hair and other sickening symptoms. Mercury and potash not only fail to cure blood poison, but cause mercurial Rheumatism, necrosis of the bones, offensive ulcers and inflammation of the stomach and bowels. The use of S. S. S. is never followed by any such bad results. It cures without the slightest injury to the system. We offer $1,000 for proof that it contains a mineral of any description. S. S. S. is an antidote for contagious blood poison, and the only radical and permanent cure known. It destroys every atom of the virus and purifies and strengthens the blood and builds up the general health.

Bowling Green, Ky., Mar. 24, 1902.

Gentlemen: For over four years I suffered greatly from a severe case of contagious blood poison. I went to Hot Springs, staying there four months at a big expense. I then consulted physicians, who prescribed Mercury. Nothing did me any good; in fact, the treatment proved more harmful than beneficial. I mentioned my case to a friend, who told me that S. S. S. had certainly cured him. I at once commenced its use, and after continuing it for sometime could find no trace of the disease whatever. This was about two years ago. I can truthfully say I am entirely well. D. M. SANDERS.

POST-DISPATCH PATTERNS

Lady's Shirt-Waist.

No. 6125—The styles for the 1904 Spring shirt-waists are varied and effective—but they all point to a continuation of the quaint and picturesque. Whenever it is possible, the shoulder seam is either entirely concealed by various means of adornment, or cut so that the seam is not to be found. This latter idea is by far the most quaint and the shoulder-cap coming well down over the usual joining line of sleeve and body gives even greater width.

In the original model shown here, we have a style that is quite in keeping with the old-fashioned tendencies of the times. The deep yoke, together with the sleeve cap, is indeed pretty, and a style that everyone can wear. The sleeve is finished by a little gauntlet cuff, and the blouse, like all the newer designs, is to be worn with a separate collar. These collars are finished by a little "curtain or shield," and may be made of the material or lace. The lower edge of the blouse is finished off with a peplum. This insures a perfect fit over the hips, and besides holds the waist in position. The model is suitable for either shirt waist or costume. Made of mercerized cotton, it is a most practical design, and a summer wash silk made on these lines and outlining the yoke edges with ruching would be charming.
